MANY of the members of the legal profession in Illinois have for some years entertained the belief that there existed a necessity for a thorough and radical revision of the Statute Laws of the State. No specific work of the kind has as yet been undertaken, and, of course, none could be successfully prosecuted, without the direct sanction of the General Assembly.

The revisions of 1827 and 1833 were compilations merely; and the Revised Statutes of 1845, in most respects, retain the phraseology of the laws, as they were originally enacted.

Whether an entire revision of our laws would, at the present time, prove a general benefit to the citizens at large, is a question for the Legislature alone to determine. Many thinking men believe that with however much of ability such a work might be executed, it would prove of doubtful utility. Experience has taught them the salutary lesson, that unless a law, which has for a long time been acquiesced in, and which has received judicial construction, is palpably wrong, oppressive or burdensome, it should neither be altered, modified or repealed—that, in the attempt to do either, there is danger that its substitute may not be an improvement, and a wide door is sure to be opened for new constructions, often to the great embarrassment of the lawyer, and always at the expense of his client.

The revisions in other States, when they have been really revisions, that is, a new code, have not usually met the approbation of the legal profession, where they have been adopted. Compelled, by their introduction, to relearn the Statute Laws, and build up and establish a new system of practice, lawyers have found themselves "afloat upon a sea of speculation," and obliged to wait the "slow and toilsome progress" of the courts, until they shall have decided which, out of some half dozen constructions which often may, with equal propriety, be placed upon any new enactment, is the legitimate one, before they can safely advise their clients what is the law.

But whether such a revision of the Statute Laws may be deemed advisable or otherwise, or whether the same may or may not, at some future period, be accomplished, all must admit the necessity that exists, and that will continue to exist, for a compilation of the General Laws now in force, in such form as to afford a convenient reference to the decisions of our courts under the same, and to the several dates of the passage of the various laws relating to the same subject matter.

Such is the design of this work. The Revised Statutes of 1845 show us what the laws were, existing up to the date of their publication, but they afford us no opportunity, by reference to the times of their original enactment, and the contemporaneous history of those periods, by which to determine the intention of the Legislature; and we are often compelled to wade through imperfect indices of twenty volumes of public and private statutes, to find the origin of the law. The compiler flatters himself that in this work, these inconveniences and evils will be measurably obviated, if not entirely removed.

The edition of the Revised Statutes of 1845 is exhausted. Gentlemen of the legal profession, who are not already supplied, cannot now procure the General Laws of the State: this publication will afford facilities to them and others desiring to learn or practice the law, for obtaining that necessary information, without which they can neither merit nor expect success.

N. H. PURPLE.

Peoria, May 1, 1856.

WHEN the publication of this work was commenced, it was supposed that it might be comprised in one volume of about one thousand pages, and that it could be afforded at about seven dollars per volume. As it progressed, it became manifest that it must make, at least, thirteen hundred pages of printed matter, and be published in two volumes. To improve the appearance of the volumes, in a mechanical point of view, and increase the interest and utility of the work, thereby more than compensating the purchaser for the advance in price, the publishers and compiler have added to the original design, the charter of the Central Rail Road, and the laws relating to the same, and several Acts of Congress, highly useful and important to the interests of the people of the State.

The price of the work, in two volumes, will be necessarily increased to ten dollars.

It is hoped that the alteration and improvement may meet the approbation of the subscribers and the public.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE,

The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires, that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate, that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation, till his assent should be obtained, and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies, at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large, for their exercise; the state remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others, to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction, foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us, without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments:

For suspending our own legislature, and declaring themselves invested with power, to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy, scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrection amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts, by their legislature, to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connection and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice, and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION,

AND PERPETUAL UNION,

Between the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

ARTICLE I.

The style of this confederacy shall be, "THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA."

ARTICLE II.

Each State retains its sovereignty, freedom and independence, and every power, jurisdiction and right which is not by this confederation expressly delegated to the United States in Congress assembled.

ARTICLE III.

The said States hereby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other for their common defense, the security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare; binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to, or attacks made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade, or any other pretense whatever.

ARTICLE IV.

The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different States in this Union, the free inhabitants of each of these States (paupers, vagabonds and fugitives from justice excepted) shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several States; and the people of each State shall have free ingress and regress to and from any other State, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions and restrictions, as the inhabitants thereof respectively, provided that such restrictions shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any State to any other State, of which the owner is an inhabitant: Provided, also, That no imposition, duties or restriction, shall be laid by any State on the property of the United States, or either of them.

If any person guilty of, or charged with treason, felony, or other high misdemeanor, in any State, shall flee from justice, and be found in any of the United States, he shall, upon demand of the governor, or executive power of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, and removed to the State having jurisdiction of his offense.

Full faith and credit shall be given in each of these States to the records, acts and judicial proceedings of the courts and magistrates of every other State.

ARTICLE V.

For the more convenient management of the general interests of the United States, delegates shall be annually appointed, in such manner as the legislature of each State shall direct, to meet in Congress on the first Monday in November, in every year, with a power reserved to each State, to recall its delegates, or any of them, at any time within the year, and to send others in their stead, for the remainder of the year.

No State shall be represented in Congress by less than two, nor by more than seven, members; and no person shall be capable of being a delegate for more than three years in any term of six years; nor shall any person, being a delegate, be capable of holding any office under the United States, for which he, or another for his benefit, receives any salary, fees, or emoluments of any kind.

Each State shall maintain its own delegates in a meeting of the States, and while they act as members of the committee of the States.

In determining questions in the United States in Congress assembled, each State shall have one vote.

Freedom of speech, and debate in Congress, shall not be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Congress, and the members of Congress shall be protected in their person from arrests and imprisonments, during the time of their going to and from, and attendance on Congress, except for treason, felony, or breach of the peace.

ARTICLE VI.

No State, without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, shall send any embassy to, or receive any embassy from, or enter into any conference, agreement, alliance or treaty with any king, prince or state; nor shall any person, holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them, accept of any present, emolument, office or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince or foreign state; nor shall the United States in Congress assembled, or any of them, grant any title of nobility.

No two or more States shall enter into any treaty, confederation or alliance whatever, between them, without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, specifying accurately the purpose for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

No State shall lay any imposts or duties, which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties entered into by the United States in Congress assembled, with any king, prince or state, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by Congress to the courts of France and Spain.

No vessels of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any State, except such number only as shall be deemed necessary by the United States in Congress assembled, for the defense of such State, or its trade; nor shall any body of forces be kept up by any State in time of peace, except such number only as, in the judgment of the United States in Congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such State; but every State shall always keep up a well-regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutred, and shall provide and have constantly ready for use, in public stores, a due number of field pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition and camp equipage.

No State shall engage in any war without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, unless such State be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such State, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit of a delay till the United States in Congress assembled, can be consulted; nor shall any State grant commissions to any ships or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States in Congress assembled; and then only against the kingdom or state, and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States in Congress assembled; unless such State be infested by pirates; in which case, vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States in Congress assembled, shall determine otherwise.

ARTICLE VII.

When land forces are raised by any State for the common defense, all officers of, or under the rank of colonel, shall be appointed by the legislature of each State respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such State shall direct; and all vacancies shall be filled up by the State which first made the appointment.

ARTICLE VIII.

All charges of war and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense, or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in Congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several States, in proportion to the value of all land within each State granted to, or surveyed for any person, as such land, and the buildings and improvements thereon, shall be estimated, according to such mode as the United States in Congress assembled shall, from time to time, direct and appoint.

The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several States, within the time agreed upon by the United States in Congress assembled.

ARTICLE IX.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article—of sending and receiving ambassadors—entering into treaties and alliances: Provided, That no treaty of commerce shall be made, whereby the legislative power of the respective States shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners, as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever—of establishing rules for deciding, in all cases, what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated—of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace—appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures: Provided, That no member of Congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that hereafter may arise between two or more States, concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever; which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: Whenever the legislative or executive authority, or lawful agent of any State in controversy with another, shall present a petition to Congress, stating the matter in question, and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of Congress, to the legislative or executive authority of the other State in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint, by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question; but if they cannot agree, Congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the lists of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven nor more than nine names, as Congress shall direct, shall, in the presence of Congress, be drawn out by lot; and the persons whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges, to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges, who shall hear the cause, shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons which Congress shall judge sufficient, or being present shall refuse to strike, the Congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each State, and the secretary of Congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court, to be appointed in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear or defend their claim or cause, the court shall, nevertheless, proceed to pronounce sentence or judgment, which shall, in like manner, be final and decisive, the judgment or sentence and other proceedings, being in either case transmitted to Congress, and lodged among the acts of Congress, for the security of the parties concerned: Provided, That every commissioner, before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior courts of the State where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection, or hope of reward:" Provided, also, That no State shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

All controversies concerning the private right of soil, claimed under different grants of two or more States, whose jurisdiction, as they may respect such lands and the States which passed such grants, are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the Congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different States.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective States; fixing the standard of weights and measures throughout the United States; regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the States: Provided, That the legislative right of any State within its own limits be not infringed or violated—establishing and regulating post offices from one State to another throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same, as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office—appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers—appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States—making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of Congress, to be denominated "A committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each State; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers, as may be necessary, for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction—to appoint one of their number to preside: Provided, That no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses; to borrow money, or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective States, an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted; to build and equip a navy, to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each State for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such State; which requisitions shall be binding, and thereupon the legislature of each State shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and clothe, arm and equip them in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so clothed, armed and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled; but if the United States in Congress assembled, shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any State should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other State should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, clothed, armed and equipped, in the same manner as the quota of such State, unless the legislature of such State shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spared out of the same; in which case, they shall raise, officer, clothe, arm and equip, as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared; and the officers and men so clothed, armed and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander in chief of the army or navy, unless nine States assent to the same; nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States in Congress assembled.

The Congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months; and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof, relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations, as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each State on any question, shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate, and the delegates of a State, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislatures of the several States.

ARTICLE X.

The committee of the States, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of Congress, such of the powers of Congress as the United States in Congress assembled, by the consent of nine States, shall from time to time, think expedient to vest them with; provided that no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which, by the articles of confederation, the voice of nine States in the Congress of the United States assembled is requisite.

ARTICLE XI.

Canada, acceding to this confederation, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into, and entitled to all the advantages of this Union: but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine of the States.

ARTICLE XII.

All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed, and debts contracted, by or under the authority of Congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof, the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ARTICLE XIII.

Every State shall abide by the determination of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions which, by this confederation, are submitted to them. And the articles of this confederation shall be inviolably observed by every State, and the Union shall be perpetual; nor shall any alteration, at any time hereafter, be made in any of them, unless such alteration be agreed to in a Congress of the United States, and be afterwards confirmed by the legislature of every State.

And whereas it hath pleased the Great Governor of the world to incline the hearts of the legislatures we respectively represent in Congress, to approve of, and to authorise us to ratify, the said articles of confederation and perpetual union; KNOW YE, That we, the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do, by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained; and we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents; that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions which, by the said confederation, are submitted to them; and that the articles thereof, shall be inviolably observed by the States we respectively represent; and that the Union shall be perpetual.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, in Congress. Done at Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, the ninth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight, and in the third year of the Independence of America.

ACT OF VIRGINIA, DEC. 20, 1783.

An Act to authorize the delegates of this State in Congress, to convey to the United States in Congress assembled, all the right of this commonwealth to the territory north-westward of the river Ohio.

1. Whereas the Congress of the United States did, by their act of the sixth of September, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty, recommend to the several States in the Union, having claims to waste and unappropriated lands, in the western country, a liberal cession to the United States, of a portion of their respective claims for the common benefit of the Union :

2. And whereas this commonwealth did, on the second day of January, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one, yield to the Congress of the United States, for the benefit of the said States, all right, title, and claim, which the said commonwealth had to the territory north-west of the river Ohio, subject to the conditions annexed to the said act of cession :

3. And whereas the United States in Congress assembled, have, by their act of the thirteenth of September last, stipulated the terms on which they agree to accept the cession of this State, should the legislature approve thereof, which terms, although they do not come fully up to the propositions of this commonwealth, are conceived, on the whole, to approach so nearly to them, as to induce this State to accept thereof, in full confidence that Congress will, in justice to this State for the liberal cession she hath made, earnestly press upon the other States claiming large tracts of waste and uncultivated territory, the propriety of making cessions equally liberal for the common benefit and support of the Union : Be it enacted by the General Assembly, that it shall and may be lawful for the delegates of this State to the Congress of the United States, or such of them as shall be assembled in Congress, and the said delegates, or such of them so assembled, are hereby fully authorized and empowered, for and on behalf of this State, by proper deed or instrument in writing, under their hands and seals, to convey, transfer, assign and make over to the United States in Congress assembled, for the benefit of the said States, all right, title, claim, as well of soil as jurisdiction, which this commonwealth hath to the territory or tract of country within the limits of the Virginia charter, situate, lying and being to the north-west of the river Ohio, subject to the terms and conditions contained in the before recited act of Congress of the thirteenth day of September last, that is to say : Upon condition that the territory so ceded shall be laid out and formed into States, containing suitable extent of territory, not less than one hundred, nor more than one hundred and fifty miles square, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit ; and that the States so formed, shall be distinct republican States, and admitted members of the Federal Union, having the same rights of sovereignty, freedom and independence, as the other States ; that the necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by this State in subduing any British posts, or in maintaining forts or garrisons within and for the defense, or in acquiring any part of the territory so ceded or relinquished, shall be fully reimbursed by the United States ; and that one commissioner shall be appointed by Congress, one by this commonwealth, and another by those two commissioners, who, or a majority of them, shall be authorized and empowered to adjust and liquidate the account of the necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by this State, which they shall judge to be comprised within the intent and meaning of the act of Congress of the tenth of October, one thousand seven hundred and eighty, respecting such expenses. That the French and Canadian inhabitants, and other settlers of the Kaskaskies, St. Vincents, and the neighboring villages, who have professed themselves citizens of Virginia, shall have their possessions confirmed to them, and be protected in the enjoyment of their rights and liberties. That a quantity not exceeding one hundred and fifty thousand acres of land, promised by this State, shall be allowed and granted by them to the then Colonel, now General George Rogers Clarke, and to the officers and soldiers of his regiment, who marched with him when the forts of Kaskaskies and St. Vincents were reduced, and to the officers and soldiers that have been since incorporated into the same regiment, to be laid off in one tract, the length of which is not to exceed double the breadth, in such place on the north-west side of the Ohio, as a majority of the officers shall choose, and to be afterwards divided among the said officers and soldiers in due proportion according to the laws of Virginia. That in case the quantity of good lands on the south-east side of the Ohio, upon the waters of Cumberland river, and between the Green river and Tennessee river, which have been reserved by law for the Virginia troops upon continental establishment, should, from the North Carolina line bearing in further upon the Cumberland lands than was expected, prove insufficient for their legal bounties, the deficiency should be made up to the said troops in good lands, to be laid off between the river Scioto and Little Miami, on the north-west side of the river Ohio, in such proportions as have been engaged to them by the laws of Virginia. That all the lands within the territory so ceded to the United States, and not reserved for or appropriated to any of the before mentioned purposes, or disposed of in bounties to the officers and soldiers of the American army, shall be considered as a common fund for the use and benefit of such of the United States as have become, or shall become members of the confederation or federal alliance of the said States, Virginia inclusive, according to the usual respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and shall be faithfully and bona fide disposed of for that purpose, and for no other use or purpose whatsoever. Provided, that the trust hereby reposed in the delegates of this State shall not be executed, unless three of them, at least, are present in Congress.

Passed December 20, 1783.

ACT OF VIRGINIA, OF DECEMBER 30, 1788.

Whereas the United States in Congress assembled did, on the seventh day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, state certain reasons, showing that a division of the territory which hath been ceded to the United States, by this commonwealth, into States, in conformity to the terms of cession, should the same be adhered to, would be attended with many inconveniences, and did recommend a revision of the act of cession, so far as to empower Congress to make such a division of the said territory into distinct and republican States, not more than five nor less than three in number, as the situation of that country and future circumstances might require; and the said United States in Congress assembled, have, in an ordinance for the government of the territory north-west of the river Ohio, passed on the thirteenth of July, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, declared the following as one of the articles of compact between the original States and the people and States in the said territory, viz:

[Here the 5th article of compact, of the ordinance of Congress of 13th July, 1787, is recited verbatim. Post, p. 24.]

And it is expedient that this commonwealth do assent to the proposed alteration, so as to ratify and confirm the said article of compact between the original States and the people and States in the said territory:

2. Be it therefore, enacted, by the general assembly, That the aforesaid article of compact, between the original States and the people and States in the territory north-west of Ohio river, be and the same is hereby ratified and confirmed, anything to the contrary in the deed of cession of the said territory by this commonwealth to the United States, notwithstanding.

DEED OF CESSION FROM THE STATE OF VIRGINIA.

To all who shall see these presents, we, Thomas Jefferson, Samuel Hardy, Arthur Lee, and James Monroe, the underwritten delegates for the commonwealth of Virginia, in the Congress of the United States of America, send greeting:

Whereas, the general assembly of the commonwealth of Virginia, at their sessions begun on the 20th day of October, 1783, passed an act, entitled,

“An act to authorize the delegates of this State in Congress, to convey to the United States in Congress assembled, all the right of this commonwealth to the territory north-westward of the river Ohio, in these words following, to wit:” [Here follows the first act of cession. Ante, p. 20.]

And whereas, the said general assembly, by their resolution of June sixth, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, had constituted and appointed us, the said Thomas Jefferson, Samuel Hardy, Arthur Lee, and James Monroe, delegates to represent the said commonwealth in Congress, for one year from the first Monday in November then next following, which resolution remains in full force: Now, therefore, know ye, that we, the said Thomas Jefferson, Samuel Hardy, Arthur Lee, and James Monroe, by virtue of the power and authority committed to us by the act of the said general assembly of Virginia, before recited; and in the name and for and on behalf of the said commonwealth, do, by these presents, convey, transfer, assign, and make over unto the United States in Congress assembled, for the benefit of the said States, Virginia inclusive, all right, title, and claim, as well of soil as of jurisdiction, which the said commonwealth hath to the territory or tract of country within the limits of the Virginia charter, situate, lying and being to the north-west of the river Ohio, to and for the use and purposes and on the conditions of the said recited act. In testimony whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our names and affixed our seals, in Congress, the first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, and of the independence of the United States the eighth.

ORDINANCE OF JULY 13, 1787:

FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE TERRITORY OF THE UNITED STATES NORTH-WEST OF THE OHIO.

1. BE IT ORDAINED, by the United States in Congress assembled, That the said territory, for the purpose of temporary government, be one district; subject, however, to be divided into two districts, as future circumstances may, in the opinion of Congress, make it expedient.

2. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That the estate both of resident and non-resident proprietors in the said territory, dying intestate, shall descend to, and be distributed among, their children and the descendants of a deceased child in equal parts, the descendants of a deceased child or grand-child to take the share of their deceased parent in equal parts among them: and where there shall be no children or descendants, then in equal parts to the next of kin, in equal degree; and among collaterals, the children of a deceased brother or sister of the intestate shall have, in equal parts among them, their deceased parent's share; and there shall, in no case, be a distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood; saving in all cases to the widow of the intestate, her third part of the real estate for life, and one-third part of the personal estate; and this law relative to descent and dower, shall remain in full force until altered by the legislature of the district. And until the governor and judges shall adopt laws as hereinafter mentioned, estates in the said territory may be devised or bequeathed by wills in writing, signed and sealed by him or her in whom the estate may be, (being of full age,) and attested by three witnesses; and real estate may be conveyed by lease and release, or bargain and sale, signed, sealed and delivered by the person, being of full age, in whom the estate may be, and attested by two witnesses, provided such wills be duly proved, and such conveyances be acknowledged, or the execution thereof duly proved, and be recorded within one year after proper magistrates, courts and registers, shall be appointed for that purpose; and personal property may be transferred by delivery; saving, however, to the French and Canadian inhabitants, and other settlers of the Kaskaskies, St. Vincents, and the neighboring villages, who have heretofore professed themselves citizens of Virginia, their laws and customs now in force among them, relative to the descent and conveyance of property.

3. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid. That there shall be appointed, from time to time, by Congress, a governor, whose commission shall continue in force for the term of three years, unless sooner revoked by Congress: he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in one thousand acres of land, while in the exercise of his office.

4. There shall be appointed, from time to time, by Congress, a secretary, whose commission shall continue in force for four years, unless sooner revoked: he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of his office; it shall be his duty to keep and preserve the acts and laws passed by the legislature, and the public records of the district, and the proceedings of the governor in his executive department; and transmit authentic copies of such acts and proceedings, every six months, to the secretary of Congress. There shall also be appointed a court, to consist of three judges, any two of whom to form a court, who shall have a common law jurisdiction, and reside in the district, and have each therein a freehold estate, in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of their offices; and their commissions shall continue in force during good behavior.

5. The governor and judges, or a majority of them, shall adopt and publish in the district, such laws of the original States, criminal and civil, as may be necessary, and best suited to the circumstances of the districts, and report them to Congress from time to time; which laws shall be in force in the district until the organization of the general assembly therein, unless disapproved of by Congress; but afterwards the legislature shall have authority to alter them as they shall think fit.

6. The governor for the time being, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia, appoint and commission all officers in the same, below the rank of general officers; all general officers shall be appointed and commissioned by Congress.

7. Previous to the organization of the general assembly, the governor shall appoint such magistrates and other civil officers, in each county or township, as he shall find necessary for the preservation of the peace and good order in the same. After the general assembly shall be organized, the powers and duties of magistrates and other civil officers shall be regulated and defined by the said assembly; but all magistrates and other civil officers, not herein otherwise directed, shall, during the continuance of this temporary government, be appointed by the governor.

8. For the prevention of crimes and injuries, the laws to be adopted or made, shall have force in all parts of the district, and for the execution of process, criminal and civil, the governor shall make proper divisions thereof; and he shall proceed from time to time, as circumstances may require, to lay out the parts of the district in which the Indian titles shall have been extinguished, into counties and townships, subject, however, to such alterations as may thereafter be made by the legislature.

9. So soon as there shall be five thousand free male inhabitants, of full age, in the district, upon giving proof thereof to the governor, they shall receive authority, with time and place, to elect representatives from their counties or townships, to represent them in the general assembly: Provided, That for every five hundred free male inhabitants, there shall be one representative, and so on, progressively, with the number of free male inhabitants, shall the right of representation increase, until the number of representatives shall amount to twenty-five; after which the number and proportion of representatives shall be regulated by the legislature: Provided, That no person be eligible or qualified to act as a representative, unless he shall have been a citizen of one of the United States three years, and be a resident in the district, or unless he shall have resided in the district three years; and in either case, shall likewise hold in his own right, in fee simple, two hundred acres of land within the same: Provided, also, That a freehold in fifty acres of land in the district, having been a citizen of one of the States, and being a resident in the district, or the like freehold and two years' residence in the district, shall be necessary to qualify a man as an elector of a representative.

10. The representatives thus elected, shall serve for the term of two years; and in case of the death of a representative, or removal from office, the governor shall issue a writ to the county or township, for which he was a member, to elect another in his stead, to serve for the residue of the term.

11. The general assembly, or legislature, shall consist of the governor, legislative council, and a house of representatives. The legislative council shall consist of five members, to continue in office five years, unless sooner removed by Congress; any three of whom to be a quorum; and the members of the council shall be nominated and appointed in the following manner, to wit: As soon as representatives shall be elected, the governor shall appoint a time and place for them to meet together, and when met, they shall nominate ten persons, resident in the district, and each possessed of a freehold in five hundred acres of land, and return their names to Congress, five of whom Congress shall appoint and commission as aforesaid: and whenever a vacancy shall happen in the council, by death or removal from office, the house of representatives shall nominate two persons, qualified as aforesaid, for each vacancy, and return their names to Congress, one of whom Congress shall appoint and commission for the residue of the term; and every five years, four months at least before the expiration of the time of service of the members of council, the said house shall nominate ten persons, qualified as aforesaid, and return their names to Congress, five of whom Congress shall appoint and commission to serve as members of the council five years, unless sooner removed. And the governor, legislative council and house of representatives, shall have authority to make laws, in all cases for the good government of the district, not repugnant to the principles and articles in this ordinance established and declared. And all bills, having passed by a majority in the house, and by a majority in the council, shall be referred to the governor for his assent; but no bill or legislative act whatever, shall be of any force without his assent. The governor shall have power to convene, prorogue and dissolve the general assembly, when in his opinion it shall be expedient.

12. The governor, judges, legislative council, secretary, and such other officers as Congress shall appoint in the district, shall take an oath or affirmation of fidelity, and of office; the governor before the president of Congress, and all other officers before the governor. As soon as the legislature shall be formed in the district, the council and house assembled, in one room, shall have authority, by joint ballot, to elect a delegate to Congress, who shall have a seat in Congress, with a right of debating, but not of voting, during this temporary government.

13. And for extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, which form the basis whereon these republics, their laws, and constitution, are erected; to fix and establish those principles as the basis of all laws, constitutions and governments, which forever hereafter shall be formed in the said territory; to provide, also, for the establishment of States, and permanent government therein, and for their admission to a share in the federal councils on an equal footing with the original States, at as early periods as may be consistent with the general interest.

14. It is hereby ordained and declared, by the authority aforesaid, That the following articles shall be considered as articles of compact, between the original States and the people and States in the said territory, and forever remain unalterable, unless by common consent, to wit:

ARTICLE I.

No person, demeaning himself in a peaceable and orderly manner, shall ever be molested on account of his mode of worship or religious sentiments, in the said territory.

ARTICLE II.

The inhabitants of the said territory shall always be entitled to the benefits of the writs of habeas corpus, and of the trial by jury; of a proportionate representation of the people in the legislature, and of judicial proceedings according to the course of the common law. All persons shall be bailable, unless for capital offenses, where the proof shall be evident or the presumption great. All fines shall be moderate; and no cruel or unusual punishments shall be inflicted. No man shall be deprived of his liberty or property, but by the judgment of his peers, or the law of the land, and should the public exigencies make it necessary, for the common preservation, to take any person's property, or to demand his particular services, full compensation shall be made for the same. And, in the just preservation of rights and property, it is understood and declared, that no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said territory, that shall, in any manner whatever, interfere with, or affect private contracts or engagements, bona fide, and without fraud previously formed.

ARTICLE III.

Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged. The utmost good faith shall always be observed towards the Indians; their lands and property shall never be taken from them without their consent; and in their property, rights and liberty they shall never be invaded or disturbed, unless in just and lawful wars authorized by Congress; but laws founded in justice and humanity shall, from time to time, be made, for preventing wrongs being done to them, and for preserving peace and friendship with them.

ARTICLE IV.

The said territory and the States which may be formed therein, shall forever remain a part of this confederacy of the United States of America, subject to the articles of confederation, and to such alterations therein as shall be constitutionally made; and to all the acts and ordinances of the United States in Congress assembled, conformable thereto. The inhabitants and settlers in the said territory shall be subject to pay a part of the federal debts, contracted or to be contracted, and a proportional part of the expenses of government to be apportioned on them by Congress, according to the same common rule and measure by which apportionments thereof shall be made on the other States; and the taxes for paying their proportion, shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the district or districts, or new States, as in the original States, within the time agreed upon by the United States in Congress assembled. The legislatures of those districts, or new States, shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil by the United States in Congress assembled, nor with any regulations Congress may find necessary, for securing the title in such soil, to the bona fide purchasers. No tax shall be imposed on lands the property of the United States; and in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents. The navigable waters leading into the Mississippi and St. Lawrence, and the carrying places between the same, shall be common highways, and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of the said territory, as to the citizens of the United States, and those of any other States that may be admitted into the confederacy, without any tax, impost or duty therefor.

ARTICLE V.

There shall be formed in the said territory, not less than three, nor more than five, States; and the boundaries of the States, as soon as Virginia shall alter her act of cession, and consent to the same, shall become fixed and established as follows, to wit: The western State in the said territory, shall be bounded by the Mississippi, the Ohio, and the Wabash rivers; a direct line drawn from the Wabash and Post Vincents, due north, to the territorial line between the United States and Canada; and by the said territorial line to the Lake of the Woods and Mississippi. The middle State shall be bounded by the said direct line, the Wabash from Post Vincents to the Ohio, by the Ohio, by a direct line drawn due north from the mouth of the Great Miami to the said territorial line, and by the said territorial line. The eastern State shall be bounded by the last mentioned direct line, the Ohio, Pennsylvania, and the said territorial line: Provided, however, And it is further understood and declared, that the boundaries of these three States shall be subject so far to be altered, that, if Congress shall hereafter find it expedient, they shall have authority to form one or two States in that part of the said territory which lies north of an east and west line drawn through the southerly bend or extreme of Lake Michigan. And whenever any of the said States shall have sixty thousand free inhabitants therein, such State shall be admitted, by its delegates, into the Congress of the United States, on an equal footing with the original States, in all respects whatever; and shall be at liberty to form a permanent constitution and State government: Provided, The constitution and government, so to be formed, shall be republican, and in conformity to the principles contained in these articles, and, so far as it can be consistent with the general interest of the confederacy, such admission shall be allowed at an earlier period, and when there may be a less number of free inhabitants in the State than sixty thousand.

ARTICLE VI.

There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the said territory, otherwise than in the punishment of crimes, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted: Provided, always, That any person escaping into the same, from whom labor or service is lawfully claimed in any one of the original States, such fugitive may be lawfully reclaimed, and conveyed to the person claiming his or her labor or service as aforesaid.

Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That the resolutions of the twenty-third of April, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, relative to the subject of this ordinance, be, and the same are hereby repealed, and declared null and void.

Done by the United States in Congress assembled, the thirteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and of their sovereignty and independence the twelfth.

CHARLES THOMPSON, Secretary.

And all lands which have been granted as a common to the inhabitants of any town, hamlet, village or corporation, by any person, body politic or corporate, or by any government having power to make such grant, shall forever remain common to the inhabitants of such town, hamlet, village or corporation; and the said commons shall not be leased, sold or divided, under any pretense whatever: Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be so construed as to effect the commons of Cahokia or Prairie du Pont: Provided, also, that the general assembly shall have power and authority to grant the same privileges to the inhabitants of the said villages of Cahokia and Prairie du Pont as are hereby granted to the inhabitants of other towns, hamlets and villages.

NEW CONSTITUTION OF ILLINOIS.

PREAMBLE.

WE, the people of the State of Illinois—grateful to Almighty God for the civil, political and religious liberty, which he hath so long permitted us to enjoy, and looking to him for a blessing upon our endeavors to secure and transmit the same unimpaired to succeeding generations—in order to form a more perfect government, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense—promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Illinois.

ARTICLE I.

BOUNDARIES.

SEC. 1. The boundaries and jurisdiction of the State shall be as follows, to wit: Beginning at the mouth of the Wabash river; thence up the same, and with the line of Indiana, to the north-west corner of said State; thence east with the line of the same State, to the middle of Lake Michigan; thence north along the middle of said lake, to north latitude forty-two degrees and thirty minutes; thence west to the middle of the Mississippi river, and thence down, along the middle of that river, to its confluence with the Ohio river, and thence up the latter river, along its north-western shore, to the place of beginning: Provided, That this State shall exercise such jurisdiction upon the Ohio river as she is now entitled to, or such as may hereafter be agreed upon by this State and the State of Kentucky.

ARTICLE II.

CONCERNING THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT.

SEC. 1. The powers of the government of the State of Illinois shall be divided into three distinct departments, and each of them be confided to a separate body of magistracy, to wit: Those which are legislative, to one; those which are executive, to another; and those which are judicial, to another.

SEC. 2. No person or collection of persons, being one of these departments, shall exercise any power properly belonging to either of the others, except as hereinafter expressly directed or permitted, and all acts in contravention of this section shall be void.

ARTICLE III.

OF THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 1. The legislative authority of this State shall be vested in a general assembly, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives, both to be elected by the people.

SEC. 2. The first election for senators and representatives shall be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight; and thereafter elections for members of the general assembly shall be held once in two years, on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, in each and every county, at such places therein as may be provided by law.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained the age of twenty-five years; who shall not be a citizen of the United States, and three years an inhabitant of this State; who shall not have resided within the limits of the county or district in which he shall be chosen twelve months next preceding his election, if such county or district shall have been so long erected; but if not, then within the limits of the county or counties, district or districts, out of which the same shall have been taken, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of the United States, or of this State; and who, moreover, shall not have paid a State or county tax.

SEC. 4. No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained the age of thirty years; who shall not be a citizen of the United States; five years an inhabitant of this State, and one year in the county or district in which he shall be chosen immediately preceding his election, if such county or district shall have been so long erected; but if not, then within the limits of the county or counties, district or districts, out of which the same shall have been taken, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of the United States, or of this State, and shall not, moreover, have paid a State or county tax.

SEC. 5. The senators, at their first session herein provided for, shall be divided by lot, as near as can be, into two classes. The seats of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, and those of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year; so that one-half thereof, as near as possible, may be biennially chosen forever thereafter.

SEC. 6. The senate shall consist of twenty-five members, and the house of representatives shall consist of seventy-five members, until the population of the State shall amount to one million of souls, when five members may be added to the house, and five additional members for every five hundred thousand inhabitants thereafter, until the whole number of representatives shall amount to one hundred; after which, the number shall neither be increased or diminished; to be apportioned among the several counties according to the number of white inhabitants. In all future apportionments, where more than one county shall be thrown into a representative district, all the representatives to which said counties may be entitled, shall be elected by the entire district.

SEC. 7. No person elected to the general assembly shall receive any civil appointment within this State, or to the senate of the United States, from the governor, the governor and senate, or from the general assembly, during the term for which he shall have been elected; and all such appointments, and all votes given for any such member for any such office or appointment, shall be void; nor shall any member of the general assembly be interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract with the State, or any county thereof, authorized by any law passed during the time for which he shall have been elected, or during one year after the expiration thereof.

SEC. 8. In the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, and every tenth year thereafter, an enumeration of all the inhabitants of this State shall be made in such manner as shall be directed by law; and in the year eighteen hundred and fifty, and every tenth year thereafter, the census taken by authority of the government of the United States shall be adopted by the general assembly as the enumeration of this State; and the number of senators and representatives shall, at the first regular session holden after the returns herein provided for are made, be apportioned among the several counties or districts to be established by law, according to the number of white inhabitants.

SEC. 9. Senatorial and representative districts shall be composed of contiguous territory bounded by county lines; and only one senator allowed to each senatorial, and not more than three representatives to any representative, district: Provided, That cities and towns containing the requisite population may be erected into separate districts.

SEC. 10. In forming senatorial and representative districts, counties containing a population of not more than one-fourth over the existing ratio, shall form separate districts, and the excess shall be given to the nearest county or counties not having a senator or representative, as the case may be, which has the largest white population.

SEC. 11. The first session of the general assembly shall commence on the first Monday of January, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, and forever after, the general assembly shall meet on the first Monday of January next ensuing the election of the members thereof, and at no other period, unless as provided by this constitution.

SEC. 12. The senate and house of representatives, when assembled, shall each choose a speaker and other officers, (the speaker of the senate excepted.) Each house shall judge of the qualifications and election of its members, and sit upon its own adjournments. Two-thirds of each house shall constitute a quorum; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.

SEC. 13. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish them. The yeas and nays of the members on any question shall, at the desire of any two of them, be entered on the journals.

SEC. 14. Any two members of either house shall have liberty to dissent and protest against any act or resolution which they may think injurious to the public, or to any individual, and have the reasons of their dissent entered on the journals.

SEC. 15. Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected, expel a member, but not a second time for the same cause; and the reason for such expulsion shall be entered upon the journal, with the names of the members voting on the question.

SEC. 16. When vacancies shall happen in either house, the governor, or the person exercising the powers of governor, shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

SEC. 17. Senators and representatives shall, in all cases, except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session of the general assembly, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

SEC. 18. Each house may punish, by imprisonment during its session, any person not a member, who shall be guilty of disrespect to the house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in their presence: Provided, Such imprisonment shall not, at any one time, exceed twenty-four hours.

SEC. 19. The doors of each house, and of committees of the whole, shall be kept open, except in such cases as in the opinion of the house require secrecy. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than two days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

SEC. 20. The style of the laws of this State shall be: "Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly."

SEC. 21. Bills may originate in either house, but may be altered, amended or rejected by the other; and, on the final passage of all bills, the vote shall be by ayes and noes, and shall be entered on the journal; and no bill shall become a law without the concurrence of a majority of all the members elect in each house.

SEC. 22. Bills making appropriations for the pay of the members and officers of the general assembly, and for the salaries of the officers of the government, shall not contain any provisions on any other subject.

SEC. 23. Every bill shall be read on three different days in each house, unless, in case of urgency, three-fourths of the house, where such bill is so depending, shall deem it expedient to dispense with this rule; and every bill, having passed both houses, shall be signed by the speakers of their respective houses; and no private or local law which may be passed by the general assembly shall embrace more than one subject, and that shall be expressed in the title. And no public act of the general assembly shall take effect or be in force until the expiration of sixty days from the end of the session at which the same may be passed, unless in case of emergency the general assembly shall otherwise direct.

SEC. 24. The sum of two dollars per day, for the first forty-two days' attendance, and one dollar per day, for each days' attendance thereafter, and ten cents for each necessary mile's travel, going to and returning from the seat of government, shall be allowed to the members of the general assembly, as a compensation for their services, and no more. The speaker of the house of representatives shall be allowed the sum of one dollar per day, in addition to his per diem as a member.

SEC. 25. The per diem and mileage allowed to each member of the general assembly shall be certified by the speakers of their respective houses, and entered on the journals, and published at the close of each session.

SEC. 26. No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and an accurate statement of the receipts and expenditures of the public money shall be attached to, and published with, the laws at the rising of each session of the general assembly. And no person, who has been or may be a collector or holder of public moneys, shall be eligible to a seat in either house of the general assembly, nor be eligible to any office of profit or trust in this State, until such person shall have accounted for, and paid into the treasury, all sums for which he may be accountable.

SEC. 27. The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeaching; but a majority of all the members elected must concur in an impeachment. All impeachments shall be tried by the senate; and when sitting for that purpose, the senators shall be upon oath, or affirmation, to do justice according to law and evidence. No person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators elected.

SEC. 28. The governor, and other civil officers under this State, shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office; but judgment in such cases shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold any office of honor, profit or trust under this State. The party, whether convicted or acquitted, shall, nevertheless, be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

SEC. 29. No judge of any court of law or equity, secretary of state, attorney general, attorney for the state, recorder, clerk of any court of record, sheriff or collector, member of either house of Congress, or person holding any lucrative office under the United States or of this State—provided that appointments in the militia, or justices of the peace, shall not be considered lucrative offices—shall have a seat in the general assembly; nor shall any person, holding any office of honor or profit under the government of the United States, hold any office of honor or profit under the authority of this State.

SEC. 30. Every person who shall be chosen or appointed to any office of trust or profit, shall, before entering upon the duties thereof, take an oath to support the constitution of the United States, and of this State, and also an oath of office.

SEC. 31. The general assembly shall have full power to exclude from the privilege of electing, or being elected, any person convicted of bribery, perjury, or other infamous crime.

SEC. 32. The general assembly shall have no power to grant divorces, but may authorize the courts of justice to grant them for such causes as may be specified by law; Provided, That such laws be general and uniform in their operation.

SEC. 33. The general assembly shall never grant or authorize extra compensation to any public officer, agent, servant or contractor, after the service shall have been rendered, or the contract entered into.

SEC. 34. The general assembly shall direct by law in what manner suits may be brought against the State.

SEC. 35. The general assembly shall have no power to authorize lotteries for any purpose, nor to revive or extend the charter of the State bank, or the charter of any other bank heretofore existing in this State, and shall pass laws to prohibit the sale of lottery tickets in this State.

SEC. 36. The general assembly shall have no power to authorize, by private or special law, the sale of any lands or other real estate belonging, in whole or in part, to any individual or individuals.

SEC. 37. Each general assembly shall provide for all the appropriations necessary for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the government until the adjournment of the next regular session, the aggregate amount of which shall not be increased without a vote of two-thirds of each house, nor exceed the amount of revenue authorized by law to be raised in such time; Provided. The State may, to meet casual deficits or failures in revenues, contract debts never to exceed, in the aggregate, fifty thousand dollars; and the moneys thus borrowed shall be applied to the purpose for which they were obtained, or to repay the debt thus made, and to no other purpose; and no other debt, except for the purpose of repelling invasion, suppressing insurrection, or defending the State in war, (for payment of which the faith of the State shall be pledged,) shall be contracted, unless the law authorizing the same shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for members of the general assembly at such election. The general assembly shall provide for the publication of said law for three months at least before the vote of the people shall be taken upon the same; and provision shall be made, at the time, for the payment of the interest annually, as it shall accrue, by a tax levied for the purpose, or from other sources of revenue; which law, providing for the payment of such interest by such tax, shall be irrevocable until such debt be paid; And provided, further, That the law levying the tax shall be submitted to the people, with the law authorizing the debt to be contracted.

SEC. 38. The credit of the State shall not, in any manner, be given to, or in aid of, any individual, association or corporation.

SEC. 39. The general assembly shall provide, by law, that the fuel and stationery furnished for the use of the State, the copying, printing, binding, and distributing the laws and journals, and all other printing ordered by the general assembly, shall be let, by contract, to the lowest responsible bidder; and that no member of the general assembly, or other officer of the State, shall be interested, either directly or indirectly, in any such contract; Provided, That the general assembly may fix a maximum price.

Hereafter, no purchaser of any land or town lot, at any sale of lands or town lots for taxes due either to this State or any county, or incorporated town or city within the same, or at any sale for taxes or levies authorized by the laws of this State, shall be entitled to a deed for the land or town lot so purchased, until he or she shall have complied with the following conditions, to wit: such purchaser shall serve, or cause to be served, a written notice of such purchase on every person in possession of such land or town lot, three months before the expiration of the time of redemption on such sale; in which notice he shall state when he purchased the land or town lot, the description of the land or lot he has purchased, and when the time of redemption will expire. In like manner he shall serve on the person or persons in whose name or names such land or lot is taxed, a similar written notice, if such person or persons shall reside in the county where such land or lot shall be situated; and in the event that the person or persons in whose name or names the land or lot is taxed do not reside in the county, such purchaser shall publish such notice in some newspaper printed in such county; and if no newspaper is printed in the county, then in the nearest newspaper that is published in this State to the county in which such lot or land is situated; which notice shall be inserted three times, the last time not less than three months before the time of redemption shall expire. Every such purchaser, by himself or agent, shall, before he shall be entitled to a deed, make an affidavit of his having complied with the conditions of this section, stating particularly the facts relied on as such compliance; which affidavit shall be delivered to the person authorized by law to execute such tax deed, and which shall be filed with the officer having custody of the records of lands and lots sold for taxes and entries of redemption in the county where such land or lot shall lie, to be by such officer entered on the records of his office, and carefully preserved among the files of his office; and which record or affidavit shall be prima facie evidence that such notice has been given. Any person swearing falsely in such affidavit shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and punished accordingly. In case any person shall be compelled under this section to publish a notice in a newspaper, then, before any person who may have a right to redeem such land or lot from tax sale, shall be permitted to redeem, he or she shall pay the officer or person who by law is authorized to receive such redemption money, the printer's fee for publishing such notice, and the expenses of swearing or affirming to the affidavit and filing the same.

SEC. 5. The corporate authorities of counties, townships, school districts, cities, towns and villages, may be vested with power to assess and collect taxes for corporate purposes; such taxes to be uniform in respect to persons and property within the jurisdiction of the body imposing the same. And the general assembly shall require that all the property within the limits of municipal corporations belonging to individuals, shall be taxed for the payment of debts contracted under authority of law.

SEC. 6. The specification of the objects and subjects of taxation shall not deprive the general assembly of the power to require other objects or subjects to be taxed in such manner as may be consistent with the principles of taxation fixed in this constitution.

ARTICLE X.

CORPORATIONS.

SEC. 1. Corporations, not possessing banking powers or privileges, may be formed under general laws, but shall not be created by special acts, except for municipal purposes and in cases where, in the judgment of the general assembly, the objects of the corporation cannot be attained under general laws.

SEC. 2. Dues from corporations, not possessing banking powers or privileges, shall be secured by such individual liabilities of the corporators, or other means, as may be prescribed by law.

SEC. 3. No State bank shall hereafter be created, nor shall the State own or be liable for any stock in any corporation or joint stock association for banking purposes, to be hereafter created.

SEC. 4. The stockholders in every corporation, or joint stock association, for banking purposes, issuing bank notes, or any kind of paper credits to circulate as money, shall be individually responsible, to the amount of their respective share or shares of stock in any such corporation or association, for all its debts and liabilities of every kind.

SEC. 5. No act of the general assembly, authorizing corporations or associations with banking powers, shall go into effect, or in any manner be in force, unless the same shall be submitted to the people at the general election next succeeding the passage of the same, and be approved by a majority of all the votes cast at such election for and against such law.

SEC. 6. The general assembly shall encourage internal improvements, by passing liberal general laws of incorporation for that purpose.

COMMONS.

All lands which have been granted as a "common," to the inhabitants of any town, hamlet, village or corporation, by any person, body politic or corporate, or by any government having power to make such grant, shall forever remain common to the inhabitants of such town, hamlet, village or corporation; but the said commons, or any of them, or any part thereof, may be divided, leased or granted, in such manner as may hereafter be provided by law, on petition of a majority of the qualified voters interested in such commons, or any of them.

ARTICLE XII.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

SEC. 1. Whenever two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly shall think it necessary to alter or amend this constitution, they shall recommend to the electors at the next election of members of the general assembly, to vote for or against a convention; and if it shall appear that a majority of all the electors of the State voting for representatives, have voted for a convention, the general assembly shall, at their next session, call a convention, to consist of as many members as the house of representatives at the time of making said call, to be chosen in the same manner, at the same place, and by the same electors, in the same districts that chose the members of the house of representatives, and which convention shall meet within three months after the said election, for the purpose of revising, altering or amending this constitution.

SEC. 2. Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in either branch of the general assembly; and if the same shall be agreed to by two-thirds of all the members elect in each of the two houses, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be referred to the next regular session of the general assembly, and shall be published at least three months previous to the time of holding the next election for members of the house of representatives; and if, at the next regular session of the general assembly after said election, a majority of all the members elect in each branch of the general assembly shall agree to said amendment or amendments, then it shall be their duty to submit the same to the people at the next general election for their adoption or rejection, in such manner as may be prescribed by law; and if a majority of all the electors voting at such election for members of the house of representatives, shall vote for such amendment or amendments, the same shall become a part of the constitution. But the general assembly shall not have power to propose an amendment or amendments to more than one article of the constitution at the same session.

ARTICLE XIII.

That the general, great and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and unalterably established, WE DECLARE:

SEC. 1. That all men are born equally free and independent, and have certain inherent and indefeasible rights; among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, and of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and reputation, and of pursuing their own happiness.

SEC. 2. That all power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness.

SEC. 3. That all men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences; that no man can of right be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent; that no human authority can, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience; and that no preference shall ever be given by law to any religious establishment or modes of worship.

SEC. 4. That no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office of public trust under this State.

SEC. 5. That all elections shall be free and equal.

SEC. 6. That the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate; and shall extend to all cases at law, without regard to the amount in controversy.

SEC. 7. That the people shall be secure in their persons, houses, papers and possessions, from unreasonable searches and seizures; and that general warrants, whereby an officer may be commanded to search suspected places without evidence of the fact committed, or to seize any person or persons not named, whose offenses are not particularly described and supported by evidence, are dangerous to liberty, and ought not to be granted.

SEC. 8. That no freeman shall be imprisoned or disseized of his freehold, liberties or privileges, or outlawed or exiled, or in any manner deprived of his life, liberty or property, but by the judgment of his peers or the law of the land.

SEC. 9. That in all criminal prosecutions, the accused hath a right to be heard by himself and counsel; to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him; to meet the witnesses face to face; to have compulsory process to compel the attendance of witnesses in his favor; and in prosecutions by indictment or information, a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the county or district wherein the offense shall have been committed, which county or district shall have been previously ascertained by law; and that he shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself.

SEC. 10. No person shall be held to answer for a criminal offense unless on the presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases of impeachment, or in cases cognizable by justices of the peace, or arising in the army or navy, or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger: Provided, That justices of the peace shall try no person, except as a court of inquiry, for any offense punishable with imprisonment or death, or fine above one hundred dollars.

SEC. 11. No person shall, for the same offense, be twice put in jeopardy of his life or limb; nor shall any man's property be taken or applied to public use without the consent of his representatives in the general assembly, nor without just compensation being made to him.

SEC. 12. Every person within this State ought to find a certain remedy in the laws for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property or character: he ought to obtain right and justice freely, and without being obliged to purchase it, completely and without denial, promptly and without delay, conformably to the laws.

SEC. 13. That all persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offenses where the proof is evident or the presumption great; and the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

SEC. 14. All penalties shall be proportioned to the nature of the offense, the true design of all punishment being to reform, not to exterminate mankind.

SEC. 15. No person shall be imprisoned for debt, unless upon refusal to deliver up his estate for the benefit of his creditors, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, or in cases where there is strong presumption of fraud.

SEC. 16. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in this State, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

SEC. 17. No ex post facto law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall ever be made; and no conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate.

SEC. 18. That no person shall be liable to be transported out of this State for any offense committed within the same.

SEC. 19. That a frequent recurrence to the fundamental principles of civil government is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of liberty.

SEC. 20. The military shall be in strict subordination to the civil power.

SEC. 21. That the people have a right to assemble together in a peaceable manner to consult for their common good, to instruct their representatives, and to apply to the general assembly for redress of grievances.

SEC. 22. No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war, except in manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 23. The printing presses shall be free to every person who undertakes to examine the proceedings of the general assembly, or of any branch of government; and no law shall ever be made to restrain the right thereof. The free communication of thoughts and opinions is one of the invaluable rights of man; and every citizen may freely speak, write and print on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty.

SEC. 24. In prosecutions for the publication of papers investigating the official conduct of officers, or of men acting in a public capacity, or when the matter published is proper for public information, the truth thereof may be given in evidence; and in all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right of determining both the law and the fact, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.

SEC. 25. Any person who shall, after the adoption of this constitution, fight a duel, or send or accept a challenge for that purpose, or be aider or abettor in fighting a duel, shall be deprived of the right of holding any office of honor or profit in this State, and shall be punished otherwise, in such manner as is or may be prescribed by law.

SEC. 26. That from and after the adoption of this constitution, every person who shall be elected or appointed to any office of profit, trust or emolument, civil or military, legislative, executive or judicial, under the government of this State, shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, in addition to the oath prescribed in this constitution, take the following oath: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be,) that I have not fought a duel, nor sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel, the probable issue of which might have been the death of either party, nor been a second to either party, nor in any manner aided or assisted in such duel, nor been knowingly the bearer of such challenge or acceptance, since the adoption of the constitution; and that I will not be so engaged or concerned, directly or indirectly, in or about any such duel, during my continuance in office. So help me God."

SCHEDULE.

That no inconvenience may arise from the alterations and amendments made in the constitution of this State, and to carry the same into complete effect, it is hereby ordained and declared:

SEC. 1. That all laws in force at the adoption of this constitution, not inconsistent therewith, and all rights, actions, prosecutions, claims and contracts of this State, individuals or bodies corporate, shall continue and be as valid as if this constitution had not been adopted.

SEC. 2. That all fines, penalties and forfeitures due and owing to the State of Illinois under the present constitution and laws, shall enure to the use of the people of the State of Illinois under this constitution.

SEC. 3. Recognizances, bonds, obligations, and all other instruments entered into or executed before the adoption of this constitution, to the people of the State of Illinois, to any State or county officer or public body, shall remain binding and valid, and rights and liabilities upon the same shall continue, and all crimes and misdemeanors shall be tried and punished as though no change had been made in the constitution of the State.

SEC. 4. That "Article XI," entitled "Commons," is hereby adopted as a part of the constitution of this State, without being submitted to be voted upon by the people.

SEC. 5. That at the first election fixed by this constitution for the election of judges, there shall be elected one circuit judge in each of the nine judicial circuits now established in this State.

SEC. 6. The county commissioners' courts, and the probate justices of the several counties, shall continue in existence and exercise their present jurisdiction until the county court, provided in this constitution, is organized in pursuance of an act of the general assembly to be passed at its first session.

SEC. 7. That the clerk of the circuit court, in each county fixed by this constitution as the place for holding the supreme court, except in the county of Sangamon, shall be ex officio clerk of the supreme court, until the clerks of said court shall be elected and qualified, as provided in this constitution, and all laws now in force, in relation to the clerk of the supreme court, shall be applicable to said clerks and their duties.

SEC. 8. That the sheriffs, State's attorneys, and all other officers elected under this constitution, shall perform such duties as shall be prescribed by law.

SEC. 9. That the oaths of office herein required to be taken, may be administered by a justice of the peace until otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 10. That this constitution shall be submitted to the people for their adoption or rejection at an election to be held on the first Monday in March, A. D. 1848, and there shall also be submitted for adoption or rejection at the same time, the separate articles in relation to the emigration of colored persons, and the public debt.

SEC. 11. That every person entitled to vote for members of the general assembly, by the constitution and laws now in force, shall, on the first Monday in March, A. THE STATUTES OF ILLINOIS.

AN ACT

FOR REVISING AND CONSOLIDATING THE GENERAL STATUTES OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS.

Whereas, it is expedient that the general statutes of this State should be consolidated, and arranged in appropriate chapters and sections; that omissions should be supplied, and defects amended; and that the whole should be rendered plain, concise and intelligible: therefore,

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, in manner following, that is to say:

CHAPTER I.

ABATEMENT.

SECTION

1. Pleas in abatement to be sworn to.
2. Full costs on overruling plea in.
3. Non-joinder of one of a company, &c., not to abate suit: but defendant brought in by summons.
4. What proceedings when defendant not found; no other plea in abatement allowed.
5. Marriage of feme sole plaintiff not to abate suit, but husband made a party.
6. Marriage of feme sole defendant.
7. Death of sole plaintiff not to abate action; when and how to proceed.
8. Death of sole defendant: how to proceed in case of.
9. Death of co-plaintiff or co-defendant not to abate action: how to proceed in case of.

SECTION

10. When plaintiff or defendant, who is executor or administrator, shall die, how to proceed.
11. When plaintiff, being a public officer or trustee, shall die, &c., how to proceed.
12. Proceedings for partition of lands not to abate by death of parties; proceedings in such cases.
13. Suit in the name of one, for another's use, not to abate by death, &c.: proceedings in such cases.
14. The provisions of this chapter to extend to proceedings in equity, to appeals, &c.
15. Orders of court to bring in or substitute parties, how to be made: and writs of scire facias, how issued; within what time such writs shall be sued out.

[Approved March 3, 1845. Rev. Stat. 1845, p. 43.]

SECTION I. No plea in abatement, other than a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, or when the matters relied upon to establish the truth of such plea appear of record, shall be admitted or received by any court of this State, unless the party offering the same, or some other person for him, file an affidavit of the truth thereof.

SEC. II. When a plea in abatement shall be adjudged insufficient by the court, the plaintiff shall recover full costs to the time of overruling such plea.

SEC. III. When one or more of the persons composing any company or association of individuals, shall be sued, and the person or persons so sued, shall plead in abatement that all the persons who should have been made defendants are not joined in the suit, such suit shall not for that cause, abate, if the plaintiff or plaintiffs forthwith sue out a scire facias against the persons named in such plea; and on the return of such scire facias, the names of the persons named in such plea may be inserted in the declaration, and the suit shall proceed in all respects thereafter as if the persons named in such plea had been named in the original suit.

SEC. IV. If the persons named in such plea cannot be served with process, the plaintiff or plaintiffs, on the return of such summons, may suggest on the record the names of those not served, and proceed, as in other cases in which service is made on part of the defendants only; and no other plea in abatement for non-joinder of defendants shall be allowed in the same case.

SEC. V. No action or complaint, in law or equity, commenced by a feme sole, shall abate on account of her intermarriage before final judgment: Provided, The husband shall appear and cause such marriage to be suggested on the record, and himself made a party in the suit; after which the suit may proceed in the same manner as if commenced after such marriage.

SEC. VI. If a feme sole defendant intermarry before final judgment or decree, the action shall not thereby abate, but the husband, on his own application, or on that of the plaintiff, and due notice thereof given, may, by order of the court, be made a party to the suit; and the suit shall then proceed as in other cases.

SEC. VII. When there is but one plaintiff in an action, and he shall die before final judgment, such action shall not thereby abate, if the cause of action survive to the heirs, devisees, executors or administrators of such plaintiff, but any of such, to whom the cause of action shall survive, may, by suggesting such death on the record, be substituted as plaintiff or plaintiffs therein, and prosecute the same as in other cases.

SEC. VIII. When there is but one defendant in an action, and he shall die before final judgment, such action shall not thereby abate, if it might be originally prosecuted against the heirs, devisees, executors or administrators of such defendant; but the plaintiff may suggest such death on the record, and shall, by order of the court, have summons against such person or persons, requiring him or them to appear and defend the action, after which such suit shall proceed to final judgment according to law.

SEC. IX. If there are two or more plaintiffs in any action, and one or more of them die before final judgment, the action shall not thereby abate, if the cause of action survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs; and if there are two or more defendants in any action, and one or more of them shall die before final judgment, such action shall not be abated thereby; but in either of said cases, such death or deaths shall be suggested on the record, and the action may proceed at the suit of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants, as the case may require, in all respects as if such persons had been originally sole parties to the suit.

SEC. X. When any executor or administrator shall be plaintiff or defendant in any suit, and shall, before final judgment, die, or cease to be such executor or administrator, the suit shall not thereby abate; but the same may be continued by or against the successor of such executor or administrator, by an order of court substituting such successor as defendant therein.

SEC. XI. When an action is authorized or directed by law to be brought by or in the name of any public officer, or by any trustee appointed by virtue of any statute, and such officer or trustee shall, before final judgment, die, or cease to be such officer or trustee, the suit shall not thereby abate, if the cause of such suit survive to his successor; but the same may be continued by such successor, who shall be substituted for that purpose by order of the court, on a suggestion of such death being made upon the record.

SEC. XII. Proceedings for the partition of lands shall not abate by the death of any party thereto, but shall continue in the names of the survivors, if the interest of such deceased person in the lands shall survive to them; and if such interest shall pass to other persons, they may, by rule of court, be made parties, and the same proceedings shall be had as though they had been made parties originally.

SEC. XIII. No suit instituted in the name of one for the use of another, shall abate by reason of the death of the person whose name is used; but may be continued by the real plaintiff in interest in his own name, on his suggesting such death on the record, and an order of the court being made, substituting his name for that of the deceased plaintiff.

SEC. XIV. The provisions of this chapter shall extend as well to proceedings in equity as at law, and the provisions of sections five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve and thirteen, shall be applicable to all appeals, writs of error, and of certiorari.

SEC. XV. All orders authorized by this chapter to be made, for the purpose of introducing into a suit a new person as a co-defendant with the original party, or for the purpose of substituting a person as defendant in place of the original party, shall be made either upon the voluntary appearance of such person, or by order of the court, after the party to be made such defendant shall have been served with a scire facias; and all such writs of scire facias may be sued out either in term time or in vacation, and may be directed to any county, and shall correspond, as nearly as practicable, to the original writ, and may be executed and returned in the same manner; but no scire facias for the purpose of substituting another person in place of the original defendant, shall be sued out after the second day of the second term of the court, next after the term at which the death or disability of the original party shall be suggested on the record.

PRIOR LAWS relating to this subject. Act, Feb. 6, 1819. Laws, 1819, pp. 6, 7. Act, Dec. 30, 1826. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 59.

DECISIONS. When there are several defendants sued jointly, and they desire to plead in abatement, denying their joint liability, they must all join in the plea, or such of them as do not join will admit their liability. The plea may be verified by the affidavit of one defendant, or of a third person. Warren v. Chambers et al., 12 Ill. 124.

Under the act of Dec. 30, 1826, the affidavit to a plea in abatement was required to be sworn to by the party himself—aliter under the statute now in force. Bancroft v. Eastman, 2 G. 263.

CHAPTER II.

1. What persons shall account, and to whom.

SECTION I. When one or more joint tenants, tenants in common, or co-parceners in real estate, or any interest therein, shall take and use the profits or benefits thereof, in greater proportion than his, her or their interest, such person or persons, his, her or their executors and administrators, shall account therefor to his or their co-tenant jointly or severally.

SEC. II. Joint tenants, tenants in common, and co-parceners in any estate, real or personal, may maintain actions of account against their co-tenants, who receive as bailiffs more than their due proportion of the profits and benefits of such estate.

SEC. III. Any executor, being residuary legatee, may bring and maintain an action of account against his co-executor; and any other residuary legatee shall have the same remedy against executors and administrators.

SEC. IV. Actions of account may be maintained by and against executors and administrators in all cases in which the same might have been maintained by and against their testator or intestate.

SEC. V. The original process in actions of account, shall be the same as is provided by law for other personal actions, and shall be served and returned in the same manner.

SEC. VI. When any person is or shall be liable to account, as guardian, bailiff or receiver, or otherwise, to another, and will not give an account willingly, the party to whom such an account ought to be made, may bring his action of account, and if the person against whom such action may be brought, being summoned, does not appear at the return of the writ, then the defendant shall be attached by his body to appear and render his account.

SEC. VII. Whenever a judgment shall be rendered against any defendant, that he account, the court shall appoint not more than five, nor less than three able, disinterested and judicious men as auditors, to take the account, who shall, before they enter on their duties, be sworn faithfully and impartially to take and state the account between the parties, and make report to the court.

SEC. VIII. Such auditors, or a majority of them, shall have power to appoint the time and place for the hearing, and shall give reasonable notice to the parties; and if the defendant shall neglect or refuse to attend at the time and place appointed and render his account, or appearing, shall not render an account, the auditors shall receive a statement of the account from the plaintiff, and award to him the whole sum he claims to be due.

SEC. IX. If the parties appear, and produce their books and accounts before the said auditors, such auditors, or a majority of them, shall proceed to take and state the accounts, and may take the testimony of witnesses, and examine either or both of the parties on oath, respecting their accounts; and may administer all necessary oaths to witnesses and parties. If either party shall refuse to be sworn, or answer proper questions respecting his account, the auditors, or a majority of them, may commit him to jail, there to remain until he consent to be sworn, or answer the interrogatories.

SEC. X. The auditors, or a majority of them, shall liquidate and adjust the accounts, and state the balance, and to whom due. DECISIONS. The judgment upon the declaration, in an action of account, is interlocutory, that the defendant account. The final judgment is upon the report of the auditors. Lee v. Abrahams, 12 Ill. 116.

Defenses which deny the liability of the defendant, must be set up before the court, and cannot be interposed before the auditors. Idem, 118.

The circuit court has a discretion to approve or disapprove the auditor's report. After a judgment quod computet, the defendant is still at liberty to show before the auditors that there is nothing due from him to the plaintiff; but he cannot refuse to account, nor defend upon the ground that he has already accounted. Idem, 119.

SECTION I. By the misprision of any clerk in any place wheresoever it be, no record or process shall be annulled or discontinued, by mistaking in writing one syllable or one letter too much or too little; but as soon as the thing is perceived, by challenge of the party, or in other manner, it shall be immediately amended in due form, without giving advantage to the party that challenges the same, because of such misprision; and the court before whom such plea or record is made, or shall be depending, as well by adjournment as by way of appeal or error, or otherwise, shall have power and authority to amend such record and process as aforesaid, as well after judgment in any suit, plea, record or process given, as before judgment, as long as the same record and process is before them.

SEC. II. The court in which any record, process, declaration, count, plea, warrant of attorney, writ, panel or return is or may be, while the same remains before them, shall have power to examine such records, processes, declarations, counts, pleas, warrants of attorney, writs, panels and returns, by them and their clerks, and amend (in affirmance of judgments of such records and processes) all that which to them, in their discretion, seemeth to be misprision of the clerks therein; so that by such misprision of the clerks, no judgment shall be reversed or annulled. And if any record, process, declaration, count, plea, warrant of attorney, writ, panel or return be certified defective, otherwise than according to the writing which thereof remaineth in the offices, courts or places from whence they are certified, the parties, in affirmance of the judgments of such records and processes, shall have advantage to allege that the same writing is variant from the said certificates; and that being found and certified, the same variance shall be, by the said court, reformed and amended according to the first writing.

SEC. III. The courts before whom any misprision or default is or shall be found in any record or process which is, or hereafter shall be, depending before them, as well by way of appeal or error, as otherwise, or in the returns, (the same made or to be made by sheriffs, coronors, or any other,) by misprision of the clerk of any of the said courts, or by misprision of the sheriffs, under-sheriffs or deputies, coroners or their clerks, or other officers, clerks or other ministers whatsoever, shall have power to amend such defaults or misprisions, according to their discretion, and, by examination thereof by the said courts, to be taken when they shall think needful; and all such amendments may be made as well after a judgment given upon verdict, confession, nihil dicit, or non sum informatus, as upon matter of law pleaded.

SEC. IV. For errors assigned, or to be assigned, in any record, process, warrant of attorney, writ, original or judicial, panel or return, or that in any places of the same there be erasures or interlineations, or that there be any addition, subtraction or diminution of words, letters or titles, or parcels of letters, found in any such record, process, warrant of attorney, writ, panel or return, no judgment, or record, or decree, shall be reversed or annulled.

SEC. V. Record and process, real, personal or mixed, whereof judgment or decree shall be given and enrolled, or things touching such pleas, shall in nowise be amended or impaired by new entering of the clerks, either by the record of things certified, in no term subsequent to that in which such judgment or decree is or shall be given and enrolled.

SEC. VI. If any issue hath been or shall be tried by any court or jury, and be found for either party, in any court of record, then the court by whom judgment ought to be given, shall proceed and give judgment in the same, any mispleading, lack of color, insufficient pleading, or jeofail, or any miscontinuance, discontinuance, misconceiving of process, misjoining of the issue, lack of warrant of attorney, or any other default or negligence of any of the parties, their counsellors or attorneys to the contrary notwithstanding; and the said judgments thereof, so to be had and given, shall stand in full strength and force, to all intents and purposes, according to the said verdict or finding, without any undoing the same by appeal, writ of error or false judgment, in like form as though no such default or negligence had ever been had or committed.

SEC. VII. If a verdict of a court or jury shall hereafter be given for either party in any court of record, the judgment thereupon shall not be stayed or reversed by any default of form, or lack of form in any writ, original or judicial, count, declaration, plaint, bill, suit or demand, for want of any writ, or by reason of any imperfect or insufficient return of any sheriff or other officer, or for want of any warrant of attorney, or by reason of any manner of default in process, upon or after any aid, prayer or voucher; nor shall any such record or judgment after verdict, to be given hereafter, be reversed for any of the defects or causes aforesaid.

SEC. VIII. If any verdict be rendered by the court or jury, for either party, in any court of record, the judgment thereupon shall not be stayed or reversed by reason of any variance in form only, between the original writ or process and the declaration, petition, plaint or demand, or for lack of an averment of any life or lives of any person or persons, so as upon examination the said person be found to be in life, or by reason that any of the persons in whose favor the verdict is rendered, is an infant and appeared by attorney.

SEC. IX. If any verdict shall hereafter be given by a court or jury for either party, in any court of record, judgment thereon shall not be stayed or reversed for any default in form, or lack of form, or by reason that there are not pledges or but one pledge to prosecute, returned upon the original writ, or because the name of the sheriff is not returned upon the original writ or process, or for default of entering pledges upon any petition or declaration, or for default of alleging the bringing into court of any bond, bill, indenture or other deed or writing mentioned in the declaration or other pleading, for default of allegation of bringing into court of letters testamentary or of administration, or by reason of the omission of the words "with force and arms," or "against the peace," or for or by reason of mistaking the christian or surname of the plaintiff or defendant, demandant or tenant, sum or sums of money, day, month or year, by the clerk, in any bill, petition, declaration or pleading, where the right name, surname, sum, day, month or year, in any writ, record or proceeding, or on the same record where the mistake is committed, is or are once truly and rightly alleged, whereunto the party might have demurred and shown the same for cause, nor for want of the averment or words "and this he is ready to verify," or "and this he is ready to verify by the record," or for not alleging "as appears by the record," or that there was no right venue, so as the cause was tried by a jury of the proper county or place where the action is laid, nor shall any judgment after verdict be reversed, for want of entering that the person against whom such judgment is given, "be in mercy," or "be taken," or by reason that the words "be taken" are entered for "be in" mercy," or the words "be in mercy" for "be taken," nor for that in the judgment "it is granted," are entered for "it is considered," nor for that the increase of costs, after the verdict in any action, are not entered at the request of the party for whom judgment is given, nor by reason that the costs on any judgment are not entered to be by consent of the plaintiff; but all such omissions, variance, defects, and all other matters of the like nature, not being against the right of the matters of the suit, nor whereby the issue or trial is altered, shall be amended by the courts where such judgments are or shall be given, or whereunto the record is or shall be removed by appeal or writ of error.

SEC. X. When any demurrer shall be joined and entered in any action or suit, in any court of record, the judges shall proceed and give judgment according as the very right of the cause and matter in law shall appear unto them, without regarding any imperfection, omission or defect for want of form in any writ, return, plaint, declaration or other pleading, process or course of proceeding whatsoever, except those only which the party demurring shall specially and particularly set down and express, together with his demurrer, as cause of the same, notwithstanding that such imperfection, omission or defect might heretofore have been taken to be matter of substance, so as sufficient matter appear on the said pleadings upon which the court may give judgment according to the very right of the cause; and therefore no advantage or exception shall be taken of or for an immaterial traverse, of or for default of entering pledge upon any petition or declaration, or for the default of alleging the bringing into court of any bond, bill, indenture or writing mentioned in the declaration or other pleadings, or of or for the default of alleging the bringing into court of letters testamentary or of administration, or of or for the omission of the words "with force and arms," and "against the peace," or either of them, or of or for want of the averment or words, "and this he is ready to verify," or "and this he is ready to verify by the record," or of or for not alleging "as appears by the record," but the court shall give judgment according to the very right of the cause as aforesaid, without regarding any such imperfection, omissions and defects, or other matter of like nature, except the same shall be specially and particularly set down and shown for cause of demurrer; and no judgment shall be reversed for any such imperfection, omission, defect or want of form, except such only as are before excepted. And after demurrer joined, the court before whom the same shall be pending, may, from time to time, amend all and every such imperfection, omission, defect and want of form as are before mentioned, other than those only which the party demurring shall specially and particularly set down, together with his demurrer as aforesaid.

SEC. XI. Every thing herein before contained shall extend to all judgments which shall be entered upon confession, "nil dicit," or "non sum informatus," in any court of record; and no such judgment shall be reversed; nor any judgment on any writ of inquiry of damages executed thereon shall be stayed or reversed for or by reason of any imperfection, omission, defect, matter or thing which would have been aided and cured by this chapter in case a verdict had been given in such action or suit, so there be an original writ, duly issued according to law.

SEC. XII. This chapter shall extend to all suits in any court of record for the recovery of any debt due the State, or any duty or revenue thereto belonging, and also to all writs of mandamus and informations of the nature of quo warranto and proceedings thereon.

SEC. XIII. All writs of error, wherein there shall be any variance from the original record, or any other defect, may and shall be amended and made agreeable to such record by the respective courts where such writs of error are or shall be made returnable.

SEC. XIV. No part of this chapter shall extend to any indictment or presentment for any criminal matter or process upon the same; nor to any writ, action or information upon any popular or penal statute; nor to any outlaw, or process thereupon in order thereunto.

Any minor who shall have no parent or guardian living in this State, may, by and with the approbation of the judge of probate, or of any two justices of the peace of the county in which such minor shall reside, bind himself or herself as aforesaid, which approbation shall be indorsed on the said indenture.

SEC. V. The executor or executors who are or shall be, by the last will and testament of a father, directed to bring up his child or children to some trade or calling, shall have power to bind such child or children by indenture, in like manner as the father, if living, might have done; or shall raise such child or children according to such directions.

SEC. VI. Whenever any minor shall habitually beg for alms, or shall become chargeable to the county, or shall be likely to become so, by reason of being an orphan without means of support, or by reason of the inability, refusal or neglect of the parent or parents of such minor to support him or her, such minor may be bound as aforesaid by the county commissioners' court, or by any two overseers of the poor, or by any two justices of the peace of the county in which such minor may reside, by the approval and consent of the judge of probate; and such indenture shall be as valid and binding as though such minor had bound himself or herself with the consent of his or her father; but this section shall not apply to females over the age of fifteen years.

SEC. VII. The persons authorized in the foregoing section to bind the minors therein specified, may, respectively, as the case may require, issue their order, directing the sheriff or any constable of their county, to bring such minors before them.

SEC. VIII. The mayor, or any two aldermen of any city or incorporated town, which, by its charter, is charged with the custody and maintenance of the poor within its limits, may bind minors as provided in the two foregoing sections.

SEC. IX. The indenture or covenant of service, shall be of two parts, and in all cases shall be signed and sealed by all the parties whose consent is herein made necessary thereto: Provided, That in cases requiring the consent and approval of the judge of probate, such consent and approval shall be indorsed on said indenture, attested by his seal of office.

SEC. X. The age and time of service of every apprentice or servant, shall be inserted in his or her indentures; but if such age shall be unknown, then it shall be inserted according to the best information, which age shall, in relation to the term of service, be deemed and taken as the true age of such minor.

SEC. XI. In all indentures it shall be provided that the master or mistress shall cause such clerk, apprentice or servant, to be taught to read and write, and the ground rules of arithmetic; and shall also, at the expiration of such term of service, give to such apprentice a new bible, and two complete suits of new wearing apparel, suitable to his or her condition in life: Provided, That if such minor be a negro or mulatto, it shall not be necessary to require that he or she shall be taught to write, or the knowledge of arithmetic.

SEC. XII. Every sum of money paid or agreed for, with, or in relation to the binding of any clerk, apprentice or servant, as a compensation for his or her services, shall be inserted in the indentures; and all money or property so paid or agreed to be paid, shall be secured to and for the sole use and benefit of the minor.

SEC. XIII. Whenever any minor shall be bound by other than his or her parent or guardian, one copy of the indentures shall be filed in the office of the judge of probate for safe keeping; and it shall be the duty of the officers or persons binding such minors, and of the judge of probate, to see that the terms of such indentures are complied with, and that such minor is not ill used.

SEC. XIV. All indentures, covenants, promises and bargains, for taking, binding or keeping any apprentice, clerk or servant, not in conformity with the provisions and requirements of this chapter, shall be utterly void in law, as against such clerk, apprentice or servant.

SEC. XV. The judge of probate, or any two justices of the peace, excepting the justices who may have bound the apprentice complaining, shall at all times receive the complaints of clerks, apprentices and servants, who reside within the jurisdiction of such judge or justices, against their masters or mistresses, alleging undeserved or immoderate correction, unwholesome food, insufficient allowance of food, raiment or lodging, want of sufficient care or physic in sickness, want of instruction in their trade or profession, or the violation of any of the agreements or covenants in the indentures of apprenticeship contained, or that he or she is in danger of being removed out of the jurisdiction of this State; and shall cause such masters or mistresses to be summoned before them, and shall, on return of the summons, whether such master or mistress appear or not, hear and determine such cases, in a summary way, and make such order thereon, as in the judgment of the said judge of probate, or two justices of the peace, will relieve the party injured in future; and shall have authority, if said judge or two justices think proper, to discharge such clerk, apprentice or servant from his or her apprenticeship or service. And in case any money or other thing, shall have been paid, given, contracted or agreed for by either party in relation to the said apprenticeship or service, shall make such order concerning the same as the said judge or justices of the peace shall deem just and reasonable. And if the said apprentice so discharged shall have been bound originally, as provided in the sixth, seventh and eighth sections of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the court granting the discharge, again to bind him or her, if said court shall judge proper.

SEC. XVI. The said judge of probate, or any two justices of the peace, shall, on the complaint of masters or mistresses, issue a warrant against any clerk, apprentice or servant, for desertion without good cause, or for any misdemeanor, miscarriage or ill behavior, and may punish such clerk, apprentice or servant, according to the nature and aggravation of his or her offense, by imprisonment not exceeding ten days; and in addition to the above punishment, where the offense shall be desertion without good cause, the court may order the said clerk, apprentice or servant guilty thereof, to make restitution by the payment of a sum not exceeding eight dollars for each and every month he or she may be so absent, to be collected as other debts, after such clerk, servant or apprentice shall become of full age. The awarding of costs on proceedings under this and the preceding sections, shall be in the discretion of the court. An appeal to the circuit court from any decisions made under this or the preceding sections, shall be allowed to either party, upon the party appealing entering into a bond, with good and sufficient security, in the penalty of one hundred dollars, conditioned to prosecute such appeal to effect, and to abide by and perform the decision of the circuit court in the premises; which court shall hear and decide such appeal upon the same principles as the said judge of probate or justices ought to have heard and decided the original complaint. The decision of the circuit court shall be final and conclusive in the premises, and shall not be subject to appeal or writ of error. The bond above mentioned, shall be entered into before the clerk of the circuit court, who shall thereupon proceed in said appeal as is directed by law, in cases of appeal from the decisions of justices of the peace in other cases.

SEC. XVII. Every person who shall counsel, persuade, entice, aid or assist any clerk, apprentice or servant, to run away or absent himself or herself from the service of his or her master or mistress, or to rebel against or assault his or her master or mistress, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than twenty, nor more than five hundred dollars, to be sued for and recovered by action on the case, with costs, by such master or mistress, in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

SEC. XVIII. Every person who shall conceal any clerk, apprentice or servant, knowing such clerk, apprentice or servant to have run away, or to have absented himself or herself from the service of his or her master or mistress without leave, shall forfeit and pay one dollar for every day's concealing as aforesaid; to be sued for and recovered by action of debt with costs, by such master or mistress, in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

SEC. XIX. It shall not be lawful for any master or mistress to remove any clerk, apprentice or servant bound to him or her as aforesaid out of this State; and if at any time it shall appear to any judge, or justice of the peace, upon the oath of any competent person, that any master or mistress is about to remove, or cause to be removed, any such clerk, apprentice or servant out of this State, it shall be lawful for such judge or justice, to issue his warrant, and to cause such master or mistress to be brought before him, and if, upon examination, it appear that such apprentice, clerk or servant is in danger of being removed without the jurisdiction of this State, the judge or justice may require the master or mistress to enter into recognizance, with sufficient security, in the sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned that such apprentice, clerk or servant, shall not be removed without the jurisdiction of this State, and that the said master or mistress will appear with the apprentice, clerk or servant before the circuit court, at the next term thereof, and abide the decision of the court therein; which recognizance shall be returned to the circuit court, and the said court shall proceed therein, in a summary manner, and may discharge or continue the recognizance, or may require a new recognizance, and otherwise proceed according to law and justice. But if the master or mistress, when brought before any judge or justice, according to the provisions of this section, will not enter into a recognizance as aforesaid, if required so to do, it shall be lawful for such court or justice to discharge such clerk, apprentice or servant from such apprenticeship or service, and to award judgment against such master or mistress for costs, and for such sum as, considering the term of indenture and the condition of the parties, may be deemed just and reasonable.

SEC. XX. Whenever any master or mistress of any clerk, apprentice or servant, bound by the court as aforesaid, shall wish to remove out of this State, or to quit his or her trade or business, it shall and may be lawful for him or her to appear with his or her clerk, apprentice or servant before the probate court of the proper county; and such court shall have power, if deemed expedient, to discharge such clerk, apprentice or servant from the service of such master or mistress.

SEC. XXI. When any person shall become bound as clerk, apprentice or servant, according to the provisions of this chapter, to two or more persons, and one or more of them die before the expiration of the term of service, the indentures and contracts shall survive to and against such survivor or survivors; and in case of the death of all the masters or mistresses in any such indenture or contract named, before the expiration of the term of service, such clerk, apprentice or servant shall be thereby discharged from such service.

SEC. XXII. Any clerk, apprentice or servant, bound according to the provisions of this chapter, who shall absent himself or herself from the service of his or her master or mistress, without leave first obtained, or who shall run away, so that the master or mistress shall be deprived of his or her service during the remainder of the term, or any part thereof, for which he or she was bound to serve, then, and in that case, it shall and may be lawful for the master or mistress of such clerk, apprentice or servant, to have an action on the case, in any court of competent jurisdiction, against such clerk, apprentice or servant, after he or she arrives at full age, for the damage that such master or mistress may have sustained by reason of the absence of such clerk, apprentice or servant: Provided, That such action shall be brought within six years after such clerk, apprentice or servant shall arrive at full age.

PRIOR LAWS. An act relating to apprentices; approved Feb. 6, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 5. Repealed Dec. 30, 1826.

An act respecting apprentices; approved Dec. 30, 1826. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 69.

DECISIONS. Under the act of Dec. 30, 1826, two justices of the peace might bind out any poor child, and it was unnecessary to describe the child in the indentures as a poor child. Hays v. Bowers, 1 G. 46.

The masters of apprentices enticed away, are entitled to pay for their services, and for expenses in getting them back. Idem.

The fact that a person is an indentured servant cannot be proved by parol. Chambers v. The People, 4 S. 355.

By the act of Feb. 12, 1849, Laws, 1849, p. 65, the powers and duties of probate judge are conferred upon the county court.

6. Award shall be in writing; shall be signed, and copies delivered to parties.

SECTION

7. Either party not complying, right of the other to file papers in court.
8. Aggrieved party may have judgment at next term for amount of award and costs.
9. Proceedings when award is other than for the payment of money.
10. In what cases court may set aside the award.
11. Court may modify or correct award in case of mistake, &c.
12. Applications to set aside or correct awards: when to be made; chancery jurisdiction reserved.
13. Writs of error and appeals allowed.
14. Fees of arbitrators, witnesses and officers.
15. Arbitrators may be compelled to report.
16. When matter in suit is referred, cause continued.

SECTION I. All persons having the requisite legal capacity, may, by an instrument in writing, to be signed and sealed by them, and attested by at least one witness, submit to one or more arbitrators, any controversy existing between them, not in suit; and may in such submission agree that a judgment of any court of record competent to have jurisdiction of the subject matter, to be named in such instrument, shall be rendered upon the award made pursuant to such submission.

SEC. II. Whenever the parties to any suit pending in any court of record, shall be desirous and willing to submit the matters involved in such suit to the decision of arbitrators, an order shall be entered, directing such submission to three impartial and competent persons, to be named in such order; such arbitrators to be agreed upon and named by the parties. But if the parties are unable to agree, each shall name one, and the court the third.

SEC. III. The arbitrators appointed in pursuance of the foregoing provisions, or a majority of them; shall proceed with diligence to hear and determine the matters in controversy. They shall appoint a place and time for hearing, and adjourn the same from time to time, as may be necessary. And on the application of either party, and for good cause, they may postpone such hearing from time to time, not extending beyond the next term of the court in which the said suit is pending, if the subject matter be in suit.

SEC. IV. Before proceeding to hear any testimony in the cause, the arbitrators shall be sworn, faithfully and fairly to hear, examine and determine the cause, according to the principles of equity and justice; and to make a just and true award according to the best of their understanding, which oath may be administered by any justice of the peace, or clerk of the circuit court, in which the suit is pending.

SEC. V. The several clerks of the circuit courts, and the justices of the peace in their several counties, may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses before arbitrators. If any witness, after being duly summoned, shall fail to attend, the arbitrators may issue an attachment to compel his attendance, and the said witness shall moreover be liable to the party for refusing to attend the same as in trials at law. Any one of the arbitrators may administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses; they may punish contempts committed in their presence during the hearing of a cause, the same as a court of record, and may admit depositions to be read in evidence, the same as in trials at law.

SEC. VI. The award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them, shall be drawn up in writing, and signed by such arbitrators, or a majority of them, and a true copy of such award shall, without delay, be delivered to each of the parties thereto.

SEC. VII. If either of the parties shall neglect to comply with said award, the other party may, at any time within one year from the time of such failure, file such award, together with the submission or arbitration bond, in the court named in the submission.

SEC. VIII. The party filing such award may, at the next term after such filing, by giving four days' notice of his intention, to the opposite party, and if no legal exceptions are taken to such award or other proceedings, have final judgment thereon, as on the verdict of a jury, for the sum specified in said award to be due, together with the cost of arbitration and of the court; and execution may issue therefor as in other cases.

SEC. IX. When the award requires the performance of any act other than the payment of money, the court rendering such judgment shall enforce the same by rule, and the party refusing or neglecting to comply with such rule, may be proceeded against by attachment or otherwise, as for a contempt.

SEC. X. If any legal defects appear in the award or other proceedings, or if it shall be made to appear on oath or affirmation that said award was obtained by fraud, corruption or other undue means, or that such arbitrators misbehaved, said court may set aside such award.

SEC. XI. If there be any evident miscalculation or misdescription, or if the arbitrators shall appear to have awarded upon matters not submitted to them, not affecting the merits of the decision upon the matters submitted, or where the award shall be imperfect in some matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy; and where such errors and defects, if in a verdict, could have been lawfully amended or disregarded by the court, any party aggrieved may move the court to modify or correct such award.

Sec. XII. Application to set aside, modify or amend such award, as provided in the two preceding sections, must be made before the entry of final judgment on such award: Provided, Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to deprive courts of chancery of their jurisdiction as in other cases.

Sec. XIII. Writs of error and appeals may be taken from any decision of the court, by the party deeming himself aggrieved, as in other cases; and if the supreme court shall remand the case, such further proceedings shall be had as the nature of the case may require.

Sec. XIV. Each arbitrator shall be allowed, for every day's attendance to the business of his appointment, one dollar, to be paid in the first instance by the party in whose favor the award shall be made, but to be recovered of the other party with the other costs of suit, if the award or final decision shall entitle the prevailing party to recover costs. Witnesses shall receive the same fees for attendance at arbitrations, as shall be allowed them in the circuit courts. Sheriffs, constables, clerks and justices of the peace, shall be entitled to the same fees for services performed in relation to any arbitration, as shall be allowed by law for the like services in their respective courts.

Sec. XV. Arbitrators may be compelled by order of the court in which any cause submitted to them shall be pending, to proceed to a hearing thereof, and to make report without unnecessary delay.

Sec. XVI. When any cause pending in any court shall be referred, as herein provided, an entry of such reference shall be made on the record, and day shall be given to the parties, from time to time, until the arbitrators report, or they be thereof discharged, on filing such report.

PRIOR LAWS. An act regulating arbitrations; approved Feb. 25, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 71. Repealed Jan. 6, 1827.

An act regulating arbitrations and references; in force July 1, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 79.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act regulating arbitrations and references;" approved Jan. 6, 1827; in force March 1, 1833. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 81.

DECISIONS. Under the act of Feb. 25, 1819, the circuit court had no power to enter judgment upon an award, but only to confirm the same; and the party who refused to perform the award, might be punished for a contempt. Chandler v. Guy, Breese, 55.

Under the act of Jan. 6, 1827, the parties stipulated that the award should be made a rule of court, and when entered, should have the force and effect of a judgment. Held—That the act providing that the submission might be made a rule of court, no judgment could be entered on the award, on motion, the parties being left to their rights and remedies at common law. Cromwell v. March, Breese, 230.

That it does not appear on the face of an award that the arbitrators were sworn, or on what day the award was made, is no ground for reversing a judgment entered on an award. All such objections should be taken in the court below. Duncan v. Fletcher, Breese, 252.

A circuit court has jurisdiction to enter judgment on an award only in cases where the submission is under and in pursuance of the statute, notwithstanding the parties, by their submission, have stipulated that such judgment may be entered. Low et al. v. Nolte, 15 Ill. 368.

SECTION I. If any creditor, his agent or attorney, shall file an affidavit with any justice of the peace in this State, setting forth that any person is indebted to such creditor, in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, and that such debtor has departed, or is about to depart from this State, with the intention of having his effects removed from this State; or is about removing his property from this State, to the injury of such creditor; or that such debtor conceals himself, or stands in defiance of an officer, so that process cannot be served upon him; or that such debtor is not a resident of this State, it shall be lawful for the justice to grant a writ of attachment against the personal estate, goods, chattels, rights, moneys and effects of the debtor, directed to any constable of his county, and returnable within thirty days from the date thereof.

SEC. II. The writ of attachment required in the preceding section, shall be substantially in the following form:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } SCT.
 — COUNTY, }

The People of the State of Illinois, to any Constable of said County, Greeting:

Whereas, A. B., (or agent or attorney of A. B., as the case may be,) hath complained on oath (or affirmation) before C. D., a justice of the peace in and for said county, that E. F. is justly indebted to the said A. B. in the amount of — dollars, and oath (or affirmation) having been also made that the said E. F. so absconds or conceals himself, or stands in defiance of a peace officer, authorized to arrest him or her with civil process, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served on him (or her, as the case may be,) and the said A. B. having given bond and security according to the directions of the act in such cases made and provided:

We, therefore, command you that you attach so much of the personal estate of the said E. F. to be found in your county as shall be of value sufficient to satisfy the said debt and costs, according to the complaint, and such personal estate so attached, in your hands to secure, or so to provide that the same may be liable to further proceedings thereon, according to law, before the undersigned justice of the peace. And in case personal property of value sufficient cannot be found, that you summon all persons whom the plaintiff or his agent shall direct, to appear before said justice, on the — day of — next, then and there to answer what may be objected against him or them, when and where you shall make known how you have executed this writ; and have you then and there this writ.

Given under my hand and seal, this — day of —, 18

C. D., Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

Sec. XII. Application to set aside, modify or amend such award, as provided in the two preceding sections, must be made before the entry of final judgment on such award: Provided, Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to deprive courts of chancery of their jurisdiction as in other cases.

Sec. XIII. Writs of error and appeals may be taken from any decision of the court, by the party deeming himself aggrieved, as in other cases; and if the supreme court shall remand the case, such further proceedings shall be had as the nature of the case may require.

B. having given bond and security according to the directions of the act in such cases made and provided:

We, therefore, command you that you attach so much of the personal estate of the said E. F. to be found in your county as shall be of value sufficient to satisfy the said debt and costs, according to the complaint, and such personal estate so attached, in your hands to secure, or so to provide that the same may be liable to further proceedings thereon, according to law, before the undersigned justice of the peace. And in case personal property of value sufficient cannot be found, that you summon all persons whom the plaintiff or his agent shall direct, to appear before said justice, on the — day of — next, then and there to answer what may be objected against him or them, when and where you shall make known how you have executed this writ; and have you then and there this writ.

Given under my hand and seal, this — day of —, 18

C. D., Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

SEC. III. Upon the issuing of any such writ of attachment, the justice shall take from the creditor, his agent or attorney, a bond to the defendant with good security, to be approved by said justice, in a penalty of at least double the amount of the plaintiff's claim, conditioned that said creditor will pay to the defendant, and to all others interested in such attachment, or the proceedings to grow out of it, all damages and costs which may be sustained by reason of the wrongful suing out of said attachment.

SEC. IV. The condition of the bond required in the preceding section, shall be substantially as follows :

The condition of the above obligation is such that, whereas the above bounden ——— hath, on the day of the date hereof, prayed an attachment at the suit of ——— against the personal estate of the above named ———, for the sum of ———, and the same being about to be sued out, returnable on the ——— day of ——— before (said Justice.) Now if the said ——— shall prosecute his suit with effect, or, in case of failure therein, shall well and truly pay and satisfy the said ——— all such costs in such suit, and such damages as the said ——— may sustain by reason of wrongfully suing out the said attachment, then the above obligation to be void, else to remain in full force and virtue.

Witness our hands and seals, this ——— day of ———, 18 .

SEC. V. The constable to whom any attachment may be delivered, shall without delay execute the same, by levying on the personal property of the defendant, of value sufficient to satisfy the debt or damages claimed to be due, and all costs attending the collection of the same ; he shall also read the same to the defendant, if the defendant can be found in the county, and make return thereof, stating how he has executed the same. If the defendant, or any other person for him, shall be in the act of removing such personal property, the officer may pursue and take the same in any county of this State, and convey the same to the county from which such attachment issued.

SEC. VI. No attachment shall be abated or dismissed for want of form, if the essential matters required in this chapter be substantially set forth ; and justices of the peace shall allow any amendment to be made, of any affidavit, writ, return or bond, or allow a new affidavit or bond to be filed, which may be necessary to obviate objections to the same ; and in cases of appeals to the circuit courts, the courts shall allow amendments as aforesaid. And in case a plea in abatement, traversing the facts set forth in the affidavit, shall be filed, and if, on a trial to be had thereon, the issue be found for the defendant, the attachment shall be quashed.

SEC. VII. Upon the return of any attachment issued by a justice of the peace, if it shall appear that the defendant has been personally served with the same, or if such defendant shall appear without this service, the justice shall proceed to hear and determine the cause, as in cases of proceeding by summons. But if it does not appear that the defendant has been served, and no appearance be entered by the defendant as aforesaid, the justice shall continue the case ten days, and shall immediately prepare a notice to be posted up at three public places in the neighborhood of the justice, directed to the defendant, and stating the fact that an attachment had been issued, and at whose instance, the amount claimed to be due, and the time and place of trial ; and also stating that unless the said defendant shall appear at the time and place fixed for trial, judgment will be entered by default, and the property attached ordered to be sold to satisfy the same ; which notice shall be delivered to the constable, who shall post three copies of the same at three public places in the neighborhood of the justice, at least eight days before the day set for trial ; and on or before that day he shall return the notice delivered to him by the justice, with an indorsement thereon, stating the time when and the place where he posted copies as herein required.

SEC. VIII. When notices shall be given of any proceedings by attachment, as required by the seventh section of this chapter, the justice shall, on the day set for trial of the cause, proceed to hear and determine the same, as though process had been personally served upon the defendant, and if judgment be given against the defendant, shall order a sale of the property attached, or so much thereof as will satisfy the judgment and all costs of suit. But if the constable shall have failed to post the notices as herein required, the justice shall again continue the cause, and require notice to be posted as aforesaid, previous to any trial of the cause.

SEC. IX. When any constable shall be unable to find personal property of any defendant sufficient to satisfy any attachments issued under the provisions of this chapter, he is hereby required to notify any and all persons within his county, whom the creditor shall designate as having any property, effects or choses in action in his possession or power belonging to the defendant, or who are in any wise indebted to such defendant, to appear before such justice on the return day of the attachment, then and there to answer upon oath what amount he or she is indebted to the defendant in the attachment, or what property, effects or choses in action he or she had in his or her possession or power at the time of serving the attachment. The person or persons so summoned, shall be considered as garnishees, and the constable shall state in his return, the names of all persons so summoned, and the date of service on each.

SEC. X. When an attachment shall be returned executed upon any person as garnishee, the justice shall make an entry upon the record of his proceedings in the cause, stating the name of each person summoned, and continue the case as to such garnishee, and shall proceed with the cause as against the defendant in the attachment, as though the attachment had been levied on personal property.

SEC. XI. When judgment is entered by a justice of the peace against a defendant in attachment, and any person or persons have been summoned as garnishee in the case, it shall be the duty of the justice to issue a summons against each person so summoned, requiring him or her to appear before the justice at a time and place to be fixed in the summons, not less than five nor more than fifteen days from the date thereof, and show cause, if any he or she has, why a judgment shall not be entered against him or her for the amount of the judgment and costs against the defendant in attachment, which summons shall be served and returned by some constable of the county ; and on the return day thereof, if any person so summoned shall fail to appear, the justice shall enter judgment against the person so failing to appear, for the amount of the judgment obtained against the defendant in attachment, and execution shall be issued thereon as in other cases.

SEC. XII. If any garnishee shall appear at the time and place required by the constable as aforesaid, and shall upon oath deny all indebtedness to the defendant in the attachment, and deny having any property or effects or choses in action in his possession or power belonging to such defendant, the justice shall forthwith discharge him, unless the plaintiff in the attachment shall satisfy the justice by other testimony that the garnishee was indebted to the defendant in the attachment, or had property, effects, or choses in action in his possession or power at the time he was garnisheed; in which case the justice shall give judgment in the premises according to the right and justice of the cause, and issue execution as in other cases.

SEC. XIII. Judgments obtained under the provisions of this chapter, where the defendant has been personally served with process, or shall have appeared to the action, shall have the same force and effect as judgments obtained upon a summons; but the property attached shall be sold before any execution is issued upon such judgment, and if such property shall not sell for a sum sufficient to pay the judgment and costs, execution may be issued to collect the balance.

SEC. XIV. Judgments obtained under the provisions of this chapter, when the defendant has not been personally served with process, and no appearance being entered, shall only authorize a sale of the property levied upon, and proceedings against garnishees to collect the amount thereof. Defendants in attachments issued under the provisions of this chapter, where property may be levied upon, or the person in whose possession the property may be found, may retain possession of such property upon executing a bond to the plaintiff in the attachment with good security, in a penalty of double the amount claimed by the attachment, conditioned that the property shall be delivered to any constable of the county whenever demanded, to be sold in satisfaction of any judgment which may be obtained in the attachment suit, or in case the property is not delivered, that the obligors will pay and satisfy the said judgment and costs; and when a bond shall be executed, the constable shall return the same with the attachment, and upon a breach of any condition thereof, the plaintiff shall have a right to prosecute suit thereon, and to recover the amount due upon his judgment and costs.

SEC. XV. In all cases arising under the provisions of this chapter, when two or more attachments shall be levied on the same property, or be proved on the same garnishee, and judgment shall be entered on the same day, the proceeds of the property attached, or the money obtained from garnishees, shall be divided among the several plaintiffs in attachment, according to the amount of their judgments respectively: Provided, That when the property sought to be attached shall have been removed from the county in which the attachment issued, and shall be overtaken and returned to such county, the claim of such attaching creditor shall have priority over attachments subsequently issued.

SEC. XVI. Persons summoned as garnishees, may set up the same defense in trials under this chapter, as they might against the defendant in the attachment, and may, in like manner, make any set-off against the defendant, whether the same be due or not.

SEC. XVII. Whenever judgment shall have been rendered against any garnishee, and it shall appear that the debt from him to the defendant in the attachment is not yet due, execution shall not issue against him until twenty days after the same shall become due: Provided, The plaintiff may swear out execution, as in other cases, after said debt becomes due.

SEC. XVIII. Any garnishee having effects of the defendant in his hands, may, by delivering the same, or any part thereof, to the constable, and taking his receipt therefor, be discharged from his liability respecting such effects so delivered.

SEC. XIX. When two or more persons not residing in this State, are jointly indebted, either as joint obligors, partners or otherwise, the writ or writs of attachment may be issued against the separate and joint estate of such debtors, or any of them, either by their proper names, or by or in the name or style of the partnership, or by whatever other name or names such joint debtors shall be generally reputed, known or distinguished in this State, or against the heirs, executors or administrators of them or either of them; and the goods, chattels, rights, credits and effects of such debtors, or either or any of them, shall be liable to be seized and taken for the satisfaction of any just debt or other legal demand, and may be sold to satisfy the same.

SEC. XX. The right of property may be tried, and appeals taken in all cases arising under this chapter, in the same manner as when property is taken on execution or judgment rendered in ordinary cases.

SEC. XXI. The affidavit required in the first section of this chapter may be sworn to in the manner prescribed in section thirty-two of chapter nine of the Revised Statutes.

SEC. XXII. This chapter shall be construed in all courts in the most liberal manner for the detection of fraud.

SEC. XXIII. The provisions of chapter one of the Revised Statutes shall apply as well to suits in attachment, as to other cases.

(2.) SEC. II. The writ of attachment required in the preceding section shall be substantially in the following form:

Witness, _____, clerk of the said court, this _____ day of _____, in the year of our Lord, &c., which attachment shall be signed by the clerk, and the seal of the court affixed thereto.

(3.) SEC. III. Such officers shall, without delay, execute such writ of attachment upon the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, rights, credits, moneys and effects of the debtor, of sufficient value to satisfy the claim sworn to, with costs of suit, as commanded in said writ. If the defendant, or any person for him, shall be in the act of removing any personal property, the officer may pursue and take the same in any county in this State, and return the same to the county from which such attachment issued. He shall also serve said writ upon the defendant therein if he can be found, by reading the same to him, or delivering a copy thereof. The return to such writ shall state the particular manner in which the same was served.

(4.) SEC. IV. Every clerk, before granting an attachment as aforesaid, shall take bond and security from the party for whom the same shall be issued, his or her agent or attorney, payable to the defendant in double the sum sworn to be due, conditioned for satisfying all costs which may be awarded to such defendant, or to any others interested in said proceedings, all damages which shall be recovered against the plaintiff for wrongfully suing out such attachment; which bond, with affidavit or affirmation of the party complaining, his or her agent or attorney, shall be filed in the office of the clerk granting the attachment. Every attachment issued without a bond and affidavit taken and returned as aforesaid, is hereby declared illegal and void, and shall be dismissed.

(5.) SEC. V. The condition of the bond required in the preceding section shall be substantially in the following form:

The condition of this obligation is such, that whereas the above bounden _____ hath, on the day of the date hereof, prayed an attachment out of the circuit court of said county, at the suit of _____, against the estate of the above named _____, for the sum of _____, and the same being about to be sued out of said court, returnable on the _____ day of _____ next, to the term of the court then to be holden: Now if the said _____ shall prosecute his suit with effect, or in case of failure therein, shall well and truly pay and satisfy the said _____ all such costs in said suit, and such damages as shall be awarded against the said _____, his heirs, executors or administrators, in any suit or suits which may hereafter be brought for wrongfully suing out the said attachment, then the above obligation to be void; otherwise to remain in full force and effect.

(6.) SEC. VI. In all cases where two or more persons are jointly indebted, either as partners or otherwise, and an affidavit shall be filed as provided in the first section of this chapter, so as to bring one or more of such joint debtors within its provisions, and amenable to the process of attachment, then the writ of attachment shall issue against the property and effects of such as are so brought within the provisions of this chapter; and the officer shall be also directed in said writ to summon all such joint debtors as may be named in the affidavit filed in the case, to answer to the said action, as in other cases of attachment.

(7.) SEC. VII. It shall be sufficient in all cases of attachment to designate defendants by their reputed names, by surnames, and joint defendants by their separate or partnership names, or by such names, styles or titles as they are usually known; and heirs, executors and administrators of deceased defendants shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter in all cases in which it may be applicable to them.

(8.) SEC. VIII. No writ of attachment hereafter to be issued shall be quashed, nor the property taken thereon restored, nor any garnishee discharged, nor any bond by him given canceled, nor any rule entered against the sheriff discharged, on account of any insufficiency of the original affidavit, writ of attachment or attachment bond, if the plaintiff, or some credible person for him, shall cause a legal and sufficient affidavit or attachment bond to be filed, or the writ to be amended in such time and manner as the courts shall in their discretion direct; and in that event the cause shall proceed as if such proceedings had originally been sufficient: Provided, That in case any plea in abatement traversing the facts in the affidavit shall be filed, and a trial shall be thereon had, if the issue shall be found for the defendant, the attachment shall be quashed.

(9.) SEC. IX. The officer serving the writ shall take and retain the custody and possession of the property attached to answer and abide by the judgment of the court, unless the person in whose possession the same may be found shall enter into bond and security to the officer, to be approved by him, in double the value of the property so attached, with condition that the said estate and property shall be forthcoming to answer the judgment of the court in said suit. The sheriff shall return such bond to the court in which the suit is brought, on the first day of the term to which such attachment is returnable.

(10.) SEC. X. If such bond shall be forfeited, the sheriff may assign such bond to the plaintiff in the attachment by a writing thereon, under his hand, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, and after such assignment, the plaintiff may bring a suit in his own name thereupon. If the plaintiff will not accept such assignment of such bond, and the court shall adjudge such security insufficient, such sheriff shall be subject to the same judgment and recovery, and have the same liberty of defense, as if he had been made defendant in the attachment, unless good and sufficient security shall be given, and bond filed during the term of the court to which such attachment is returnable, at which term the objections to the sufficiency of the security taken shall be made to entitle the party suing out the attachment to proceed against the sheriff; and execution may issue thereupon as in other cases of judgment. And whenever the judgment of the plaintiff, or any part thereof, shall be paid or satisfied by any such sheriff, he shall have the same remedy against the defendant for the amount so paid by him as is now provided by law for bail against their principal, where a judgment is paid or satisfied by them.

(11.) SEC. XI. If the sheriff shall fail to return a bond taken by virtue of the provisions of this chapter, or shall have neglected to take one when he ought to have done so, in any attachment issued under any provisions of this chapter, the plaintiff in the attachment may cause a rule to be entered at any time during the first two days of the term to which the writ is returnable, requiring the said sheriff to return the said bond; in case no bond has been taken, to show cause why such bond was not taken. If the said sheriff shall not return the said bond within one day thereafter, or show legal and sufficient cause why the said bond had not been taken, judgment shall be entered up against him for the amount of the plaintiff's demand, with costs of suit; execution may thereupon issue for the same, whenever judgment shall have been entered against the defendant in the attachment.

(12.) SEC. XII. When the sheriff shall be unable to find property of any defendant, sufficient to satisfy any attachment issued under the provisions of this chapter, he is hereby required to summon all persons within his county, whom the creditor shall designate as having any property, effects or choses in action in their possession or power belonging to the defendant, or who are in any wise indebted to such defendant, to appear before the court to which the writ is returnable on the return day of the attachment, then and there to answer upon oath what amount they are indebted to the defendant in the attachment, or what property, effects or choses in action he or she had in his or her possession or power at the time of serving the attachment. The person or persons so summoned shall be considered as garnishees, and the sheriff shall state in his return the names of all persons so summoned, and the date of service on each.

(13.) SEC. XIII. When any attachment shall be issued out of the circuit court and levied or served on a garnishee, it shall be the duty of the sheriff to return the same, if required by the plaintiff, and on return thereof, the clerk shall give notice for four weeks successively in some newspaper published in this State, most convenient to the place where the court is held, of such attachment, and at whose suit, against whose estate, for what sum, and before what court the same is pending, and that unless the defendant shall appear on the return day of such writ, judgment will be entered, and the estate attached will be sold: Provided, That in case of foreign attachment, if sixty days shall not intervene between the first insertion of such notice and the first term of the court, then the cause shall be continued until the next term of the court. Any defendant in attachment may appear and plead without giving bail or entering into any bond.

(14.) SEC. XIV. On the return of any writ of attachment against a defendant, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court in which the suit is pending, to give notice for four weeks successively in some newspaper published in this State, most convenient to the place where the court is held, of such attachment, and at whose suit, against whose estate, for what sum, and before what court the same is pending; and that unless the defendant shall appear, give bail, and plead within the time limited for his or her appearance in such case, judgment will be entered, and the estate so attached will be sold. If the defendant appear, put in sufficient bail, and plead as aforesaid, his estate so attached shall be liberated, and the garnishee or garnishees, if any, discharged.

(15.) SEC. XV. If any attachment as aforesaid shall be returned executed, and the estate attached shall not be replevied, or defense shall not be made as this chapter directs, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment for his whole debt and costs, having established the existence of such debt by legal testimony, and may thereupon take execution for the same according to law, as provided in other cases in debt. All the estate attached and not replevied shall be sold for and towards satisfying the plaintiff's judgment in the same manner as such property is required to be when taken in execution on a writ of feri facias. Where an attachment shall be returned served in the hands of any garnishee, it shall be lawful, upon his or her appearance and examination in the manner as is by this chapter directed, to enter up judgment and award execution against every such garnishee, judgment having been first entered against the original debtor for all sum or sums of money due from him or them to the defendant in the attachment, or in his, her or their custody or possession for the use of such original debtor, or so much thereof as shall be of value sufficient to satisfy the debt and costs of the complaint. All goods and effects whatsoever in the hands of any garnishee or garnishees belonging to such defendant, shall also be liable to satisfy such judgment.

(16.) SEC. XVI. Where any garnishee shall be summoned by the sheriff or other officer in the manner aforesaid, and shall fail to appear and discover on oath or affirmation, as by this chapter is directed, it shall be lawful for the court, after solemnly calling the garnishee, and such court is hereby authorized and required to enter a conditional judgment against such garnishee, and thereupon a scire facias shall issue against such garnishee, returnable to the next term of the court, to show cause if any he have, why final judgment should not be entered against him upon such scire facias being duly executed and returned. If such garnishee shall fail to appear accordingly, and discover on oath or affirmation in the manner aforesaid, the court shall confirm such judgment and award execution for the plaintiff's whole judgment and costs; and if upon the examination of any garnishee, it shall appear to the court that there is any of the defendant's estate in the hands of any person or persons who have not been summoned, such court shall, upon motion of the plaintiff, grant a judicial attachment to be levied upon the property in the hands of such person or persons having any of the estate of the defendant in his or their possession or custody, who shall appear and answer, and be liable as other garnishees. When any garnishee shall deliver to the sheriff all the goods, chattels and effects whatsoever, found or confessed to be in his or her possession belonging to the defendant, or any part thereof, the same shall be received in discharge of so much of the judgment as the same shall be appraised to by the jury aforesaid, who shall inquire and return the value thereof, according to the evidence which may be submitted to them relative thereto.

(17.) SEC. XVII. Whenever judgment shall be rendered against any garnishee, and it shall appear that the debt from him to the defendant in the attachment is not yet due, execution shall not issue against him until twenty days after the same shall become due; nor shall judgment be rendered against a garnishee for a debt founded on a negotiable instrument, unless the same shall be due at the time of rendering the judgment.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. If any such writ of attachment shall be served as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for any such plaintiff at any time during the return term of the said court, to prepare, exhibit and file all and singular such allegations and interrogatories in writing, upon which he or she shall be desirous to obtain and compel the answer of any and every garnishee, touching the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys, credits and effects of the said defendants, and the value thereof, in his, her or their possession, custody or charge, or from him, her or them due and owing to the said defendant at the time of the service of the said writ, or at any time after, or which shall or may thereafter become due; and it shall be the duty of each and every such garnishee to exhibit and file, under his oath or affirmation, on or before the third day of the next succeeding term, full, direct and true answers to all and singular the allegations and interrogatories by the said plaintiff supported, exhibited and filed in the manner herein before directed and described.

(19.) SEC. XIX. Whenever the plaintiff in any attachment shall allege that any garnishee summoned in such attachment, hath not discovered the true amount of debts due from him to the defendant, or what goods or chattels, belonging to the defendant, are in his or her possession, the court shall direct, without the formality of pleading, a jury to be empaneled immediately, (unless good cause be shown by either party for a continuance,) to inquire what is the true amount due from such garnishee to the defendant, and what goods and chattels are in his possession belonging to the defendant. Upon such examination, witnesses may be examined by the respective parties as in ordinary cases. If the finding of the jury shall be against such garnishee, the court shall grant judgment in the same manner as if the facts found by the jury had been confessed by him or her on his or her examination, and costs of inquest; and if the jury find in favor of the garnishee, he shall recover his costs against the plaintiff.

(20.) SEC. XX. Where any witness resides out of the State, or out of the county in which any attachment may be pending, and in which the testimony of such witness may be required, it shall be lawful for either party or garnishee in such attachment, on filing interrogatories with the clerk of the court from which such attachment has issued, and giving ten days' notice of the time and place of taking such testimony, by serving a copy of such notice on the opposite party, or if such party shall be absent from or reside out of the county, then by affixing a notice in writing thereof on the door of the court house of such county, at least ten days before the day set for the taking thereof, to obtain a commission from the clerk of the court to take the testimony of such witness or witnesses on such interrogatories, and such examination may be read upon the trial, on motion of either of the parties or garnishee.

(21.) SEC. XXI. In all cases of attachment, any person other than the defendant claiming the property attached, may interplead without giving bail, but the property attached shall not thereby be replevied; and the court shall immediately (unless good cause be shown by either party for a continuance,) direct a jury to be empaneled to inquire into the right of property; in all cases where the jury find for a claimant, such claimant shall be entitled to his costs; and where the jury find for the plaintiff in the attachment, such plaintiff shall recover his costs against such claimant.

(22.) SEC. XXII. If judgment by default shall be entered on any attachment against the estate of the defendant, in any court of this State, no execution shall issue thereon except against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, on which the attachment may have been served, or against a garnishee or garnishees who shall have money or other property in his or their hands belonging to the defendant. If the defendant shall appear, put in bail, and plead to the suit, the judgment rendered therein shall have the same force and effect as if a capias ad respondendum had been served on the person of the defendant.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. When any goods and chattels shall be levied on by virtue of any attachment, and the sheriff or other proper officer in whose custody such goods and chattels are, shall be of opinion that the same are of a perishable nature, and in danger of immediate waste and decay, such sheriff or other officer as aforesaid shall summon three respectable freeholders of his county, who shall examine the goods and chattels so levied on; and if the said freeholders shall, on oath or affirmation, certify that, in their opinion, they are of a perishable nature, and in danger of immediate waste and decay, and if the person or persons to whom such goods and chattels belong, his, her or their agent or attorney, shall not, within twenty days after serving such attachment, replevy the same, then such goods and chattels shall be sold at public vendue by the sheriff or other proper officer, he having first advertised such sale at the court house and two other public places in his county, at least ten days before the sale; the money arising from such sale shall be liable to the judgment obtained upon such attachment, and deposited in the hands of the clerk of the court to which the process shall be returnable, there to abide the event of such suit.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. When any sheriff or other officer shall serve an attachment on slaves, or indentured or registered colored servants, or horses, cattle or live stock, and the same shall not be immediately replevied or restored to the debtor, it shall and may be lawful for such officer, and he is hereby required to provide sufficient sustenance for the support of such slaves indentured, or registered colored servants and live stock, until the same shall be sold or otherwise legally disposed of, or discharged from such attachment. He shall receive therefor a reasonable compensation, to be ascertained and determined by the court out of which the attachment issued, and the same shall be charged in the fee bill of such officer, and shall be collectable as part of the costs in the attachment.

(25.) SEC. XXV. Any defendant against whom an attachment may be sued out under the provisions of this chapter, or garnishee, may avail himself in his defense of any set-off properly pleadable by the laws of this State, notwithstanding such set-off may not be due at the time of suing out such attachment, or at the trial thereof; any claim due or not due may be set off by the garnishee, whether it exist against the plaintiff or defendant in the attachment.

(26.) SEC. XXVI. In all cases where more than one attachment shall be issued against the same person or persons, and returned to the same term of the court to which they are returnable, or when a judgment in a civil action shall also be rendered at the same term against the defendant, who is the same person and defendant in the attachment or attachments, the court shall direct the clerk to make an estimate of the several amounts each attaching or judgment creditor will be entitled to out of the property of the defendant attached, either in the hands of any garnishee or otherwise, after the sale and receipt of the proceeds thereof by the sheriff, calculating such amount in proportion to the amount of their several judgments, with costs, as the same will respectively bear to the amount of the sum received, so that each attaching and judgment creditor will receive his just part thereof in the proportion to his respective demand; the clerk shall thereupon certify the several amounts thereof to the sheriff, who shall pay over to the respective parties the several sums so certified, and indorse such payments on their respective executions: Provided, That when the property sought to be attached shall have been removed from the county in which the attachment issued, and shall be overtaken and returned to such county, the claim of such attaching creditor or creditors shall have priority over other attachments.

(27.) SEC. XXVII. On proof being made before any judge or justice of the peace, or clerk of the circuit court within this State, that a debtor is actually absconding or concealed, or stands in defiance of an officer duly authorized to arrest him on civil process as aforesaid, or has departed this State with the intention of having his effects and personal estate removed out of the State, or intends to depart with such intention, it shall be lawful for the clerk to issue, and sheriff or other officer to serve, an attachment against such debtor, on a Sunday as on any other day, as is directed in this chapter.

(28.) SEC. XXVIII. The plaintiff or defendant in any attachment, the garnishee and the sheriff, or either of them, who may feel aggrieved by the judgment of the court, may prosecute writs of error, and take appeals as by law is provided in other cases; and trials of the right of property may be had in the same manner as when property is taken in execution.

(29.) SEC. XXIX. Any defendant in attachment desiring the return of property attached, may, at his option, instead of the bond required in the ninth section of this chapter, give like bond and security, in a sum sufficient to cover the debt and damages sworn to in behalf of the plaintiff, with all interest, damages and costs of suit, conditioned that the defendant will pay the plaintiff the amount of the judgment and costs which may be rendered against him in that suit, on a final trial, within ninety days after such judgment shall be rendered. In term time, a recognizance, in substance as aforesaid, may be taken in open court, and entered of record, in which case the court shall approve of the security and the recognizance made to the plaintiff. In either case the attachment shall be dissolved, and the property taken restored, and all previous proceedings, either against the sheriff or against the garnishees, set aside, and the cause shall proceed as if the defendant had been seasonably served with a writ of summons.

(30.) SEC. XXX. Plaintiffs in any action of debt, covenant or trespass, or on the case upon promises, having commenced their action or actions by summons, may, at any term pending such suit, and before judgment therein, on filing in the office of the clerk where such action is pending, a sufficient affidavit and bond, sue out an attachment against the lands and tenements, goods and chattels, rights, moneys, credits and effects of the defendant, which attachment shall be entitled in the suit pending, and be in aid thereof, and such proceedings shall be thereupon had as are required or permitted in original attachments, in all things as near as may be.

(31.) SEC. XXXI. When any attachment has issued out of the circuit court in any county, it shall be lawful for the plaintiff, at any time before judgment, to cause an attachment to be issued to any other county of this State where the defendant may have lands, goods, chattels, rights, credits or effects, which writ of attachment, the sheriff to whom it shall be directed shall levy on the lands, goods, chattels, rights, credits and effects of the defendant in such county, and make return thereof as in other cases.

(32.) SEC. XXXII. The affidavit required in the first section of this chapter, may be sworn to before any officer authorized by the laws of this State to administer oaths, or by any officer of any State, territory or district of the United States; the fact that the person administering such oath is duly authorized, to be proved in the same manner as in the acknowledgment and authentication of deeds.

(33.) SEC. XXXIII. When two or more persons, not residing in this State, are jointly indebted, either as joint obligors, partners or otherwise, then the writ or writs of attachment shall and may be issued against the separate estate of such debtors, or any of them, or against the heirs, executors or administrators of them or either of them; and the lands and tenements, goods and chattels, rights, credits and effects of such debtors, or either of them, shall be liable to be seized and taken for the satisfaction of any just debt or other legal demand, and may be sold to satisfy the same.

(34.) SEC. XXXIV. This chapter shall be construed in all courts in the most liberal manner for the detection of fraud.

(35.) SEC. XXXV. The provisions of chapter one of the Revised Statutes shall be applicable as well to proceedings in attachment as to other cases.

An Act to amend Chapter IX. of the Revised Statutes, entitled "Attachments in Circuit Courts."
[Approved Feb. 17, 1851. Laws, 1851, p. 169.]

(36.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That upon the return of attachments issued in aid of actions pending, unless it shall appear that the defendant or defendants have been served with process in the original cause, notice of the pendency of the suit, and of the issue and levy of the attachment, shall be published as is required in cases of original attachment; and such publication shall be sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to judgment, and the right to proceed thereon against the property and estate attached, and against garnishees, in the same manner, to the same extent, and with like effects, as if the suit had been commenced by attachment.

(37.) SEC. II. In actions now pending in court, plaintiffs may give the notice and proceed therein under the provisions of this act.

(38.) SEC. III. This act shall take effect on the first day of March next.

PRIOR LAWS. An act allowing foreign attachments; approved Feb. 22, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 33. Repealed Jan. 24, 1827.

An act prescribing the mode of proceeding against absconding debtors; approved Feb. 24, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 66. Repealed Jan. 24, 1827.

An act concerning attachments; in force June 1, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1827, p. 66. Repealed Feb. 12, 1833.

An act concerning attachments. In force June 1, 1833. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 82.

An act to enable purchasers of real estate to ascertain whether the same is free from incumbrances, and to prevent secret liens of attachments and executions; in force Feb. 26, 1841. Laws, 1841, p. 181.

An act in relation to the supreme court; in force March 3, 1843. Laws, 1843, p. 135.

DECISIONS. Under the act of 1827, the affidavit for an attachment is sufficient if it states that the defendant is indebted in a certain sum, by his certain instrument of writing signed by him. Phelps v. Young, Breese, 255.

A judgment of non-suit in attachment is in effect that the writ be quashed. A plea in abatement will lie in attachment cases. Bryans v. Buckmaster, Sup. to Breese, 22.

On the trial of the right of property to goods attached, the attachment is evidence to show the plaintiff's right to take the property. Sheldon v. Reille et al., 1 S. 519.

An attachment bond may be amended by adding the seals of the obligors. But where the seals of both principal and surety are omitted, an application to amend by attaching the seal of one only will be denied: such amendment will not perfect the bond. Hunter v. Ludd, 1 S. 531.

An attachment bond which does not describe the court from which the attachment is issued, nor to which it is returnable, nor the term of such court, is fatally defective. Lawrence v. Yeatman et al., 2 S. 17.

The word "term" in Sec. 30 of the act of 12th February, 1833, is a misprint—it is "time" in the original law. Beecher et al. v. James et al., 2 S. 463.

An attachment in aid of a summons is process: a motion to quash it, should be made before general appearance and plea. Idem.

It is error to refuse a motion to amend an attachment bond by adding seals. Lea v. Vail, 2 S. 44.

Objections to attachment bonds must be taken in the circuit court, so that the plaintiff may avail himself of the provisions of the statute authorizing amendments. If this is not done, the objection is waived. Miere v. Brush, 3 S. 23.

A defendant in attachment cannot assign for error a decision of the circuit court erroneously made against a party interpleading, but who was no party to the proceeding in the supreme court. Idem.

The proper form in entering judgment in attachment cases, is to enter judgment for the debt, &c., and award a special execution to be levied on the property attached. Idem.

A creditor who pursues a debtor who is absconding into another country, and there levies upon his property and brings it back to the county where the defendant resided, is entitled to a preference over creditors who issue and levy attachments after the property is so brought back. Pearson et al. v. Robb et al., 3 S. 143.

An appearance and plea in an attachment suit, is equivalent to personal service. Palmer v. Logan, 3 S. 60.

Under the attachment act of 1833, the affidavit for an attachment could not be made before a justice of the peace, but must be made before the clerk of the circuit court. But in such cases it is error in the circuit court to refuse leave to amend the affidavit. Campbell v. Whetstone, 3 S. 361.

Where an attachment suit is brought on a joint claim against two partners, and the attachment is levied on the property of one, and he dies, the whole suit abates. A scire facias will not lie against the representatives of the deceased party; nor can a joint action be maintained against such representatives and the survivor; nor against the survivor alone when his property is not attached, nor process served on him. Balance v. Samuel, 3 S. 380.

Money collected by a sheriff on execution, cannot be attached in his hands, nor seized in execution. Reddick v. Smith, 3 S. 452.

An attachment may be issued in aid of a scire facias, to make a party to a judgment. Rider et al. v. Glover, 3 S. 547.

When a plaintiff in attachment dies, his executors or administrators may sue out a scire facias and become a party to the suit in place of the testator or intestate. Singleton v. Wofford, 3 S. 578.

An attachment is not dissolved by appearance and plea only. To effect this, the defendant must give bond as required by the statute. Martin v. Dryden, 1 G. 188; Conn v. Caldwell, 1 G. 531.

To give the court jurisdiction in cases of attachment, there must be either a levy on the property of the defendant, or service of a garnishee process on some person indebted to or having effects of the defendant in his hands. Idem.

An attachment is a lien from the date of the levy, even against a prior purchaser claiming under an unrecorded deed, without notice. Idem.

Where judgment in attachment is rendered without personal service, or appearance of defendant, the property attached only can be sold; but where there is an appearance or personal service, the judgment is general. Conn v. Caldwell, 1 G. 535.

A steamboat is attached; the plaintiff and the owner of the boat agree that she may proceed on her voyage, and that she shall be returned at a certain time; the attachment lien, as between the parties, is not thereby divested. Idem.

An attachment in aid of a summons is part of the original suit, and is of no avail to the plaintiff unless the summons is served. Moon v. Hamilton, 2 G. 430.

Where a judgment is rendered in one county on an attachment levied on land in another county, and execution is issued to the sheriff of the latter county, who sells the property attached, and pays over the money to the plaintiff, without notice of other attachments returnable to the same term of the same court,—the sheriff is not liable to be called upon to make a pro rata distribution of the proceeds of the sale between the attaching creditors; and an order of the circuit court directing him to do so, is erroneous. Chandler v. Mullanphy, 2 G. 464.

By the levy of an attachment the plaintiff acquires a lien upon the property attached, for the satisfaction of his particular debt, which may become perfect when the debt is merged in a judgment.

Where personal property is attached, the possession is transferred to the sheriff; but if security is given, as required by the statute, the property is released, and the cause proceeds like any other suit commenced by summons. The People v. Cameron, 2 G. 470.

A judgment in attachment without personal service, is not evidence of a debt. Manchester v. McKee, 4 G. 511.

An attachment will not be sustained upon the ground alone that the debtor is about to remove his property from the State. It must appear that such removal will injure the creditor. White v. Wilson, 5 G. 21.

The sheriff may sue in his own name, for the use of the plaintiff, on a forthcoming attachment bond. Young v. Campbell, 5 G. 80.

The form of a judgment in attachment suits, is the same as in others; but when there is not personal service, a special execution issues against the property attached. In case of personal service, or bond given under the statute for the payment of the debt, the execution is general; the attached property being bound for the judgment, unless such bond is given. Young v. Campbell, 5 G. 80.

The rule for the computation of time under the attachment law relating to notice, is to exclude the day of publication and include the first day of term. Varian v. Edmondson, 5 G. 270.

The published notice, with the printer's certificate, is a part of the record, and takes the place of an officer's return of service. Idem.

An attaching creditor is protected in the same manner as a purchaser. Barnell v. Robinson, 5 G. 282.

Under Section 13, Chapter IX. of the Revised Statutes, an attachment in aid of a suit at law may issue at any time. The word "term" means time. Dutcher v. Crowell, 5 G. 225.

Under Section 25, Chapter LVII. Revised Statutes, 1845, the lien of an attachment takes effect only from the date of the recording of the certificate of levy; the sheriff is not presumed to have performed this duty. Galy et al. v. Pitman, 11 Ill. 21.

To entitle a party in a civil suit to a pro rata distribution with attaching creditors, he must obtain his judgment at the term to which the attachments are returnable. Rucker v. Fuller, 11 Ill. 223.

If such civil suits should be continued, they lose all claim to any share of the property attached. Idem.

An action of account may be commenced by attachment. Humphreys v. Matthews, 11 Ill. 473.

The word "property" in the 26th Section of the attachment act, embraces money, debts and choses in action of every kind; all which, including debts due from garnishees, is to be apporportioned among the several attaching and judgment creditors. Stahl v. Webster, 11 Ill. 473.

A bond conditioned that if the plaintiff "failed to substantiate his claim, he shall surrender up and have forthcoming the property attached," is a statutory bond, and assignable. Purcell v. Steel et al., 11 Ill. 473.

Persons claiming to be the owners of property attached, and giving a forthcoming bond, cannot, in a suit on the bond, set up title in themselves. To do this, they must interplead. Idem.

The oath on which an attachment is predicated, may be taken before any person authorized to administer an oath. If taken within the county where the court is held, no proof of the official character of the person administering it, is required. If taken out of the county, proof of such official character is necessary. If made out of the State, it may be before any person authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds; and the same proof is required of their official character, as is requisite in the case of the acknowledgment of deeds. Rowley v. Berran, 11 Ill. 199.

Where the defendant in attachment is not in court, the plaintiff cannot have judgment for a sum exceeding the amount claimed in his affidavit. Idem.

If the proceedings in an original attachment do not show jurisdiction in the court, a garnishee may avail himself of such want of jurisdiction. Pierce v. Cartelon et al., 11 Ill. 363.

Moneys in the hands of an officer, after the execution is satisfied, may be reached by garnishee process. Idem.

The answer of a garnishee, until disproved, is taken as true. Idem.

An affidavit that a defendant is "about to remove his property beyond the limits of the State, to the injury of the plaintiff," is not traversed by a plea that defendant "was not removing from the State of Illinois, nor was he removing his property from said State of Illinois to the injury of said plaintiff." Walker v. Welch, 13 Ill. 675.

An equitable interest in a debt cannot be attached in the hands of a garnishee. May v. Baker, 15 Ill. 89.

An attachment cannot be levied upon an equitable interest in real estate. Lowry et al. v. Wright et al., 15 Ill. 95.

All objections to attachment bonds must be made in the circuit court. Morris v. Trustees of Schools, 15 Ill. 266.

Writs of attachment may issue to different counties at the same time. Idem.

It is the duty of the sheriff in attachment cases, to serve the writ on the defendant if he can be found; if not, to return that fact. Idem.

(1.) SECTION I. Boats and vessels of all descriptions, built, repaired or equipped, or running upon any of the navigable waters within the jurisdiction of this State, shall be liable for all debts contracted by the owner or owners, masters, supercargoes or consignees thereof, on account of all work done, supplies or materials furnished by mechanics, tradesmen and others, for, on account of or towards the building, repairing, fitting, furnishing or equipping such boats and vessels, their engines, machinery, sails, rigging, tackle, apparel and furniture; and such debts shall have the preference of all other debts due from the owners or proprietors, except the wages of mariners, boatmen and others, employed in the service of such boats and vessels, which shall first be paid.

(2.) SEC. II. Any person having a demand, contracted as before mentioned, against any such boat or vessel, may have an attachment to be issued out of any court, or by any justice of the peace having jurisdiction thereof, in any county in this State in which such boat or vessel may be found, either against the owner or owners, by their proper names, or by the name and style of their co-partnership, if known, otherwise against such boat or vessel by her name or description only, authorizing and directing the seizure and detention of the same, with her engine, machinery, sails, rigging, tackle, apparel and furniture, by the sheriff or constable, upon affidavit being made of the justice of such demand, and bond given by the plaintiff, as in other cases of attachment: Provided, That in all cases where such proceedings are instituted against such boat or vessel by her name or description only, the bond to be given by the plaintiff shall be made payable to the people of the State of Illinois, but for the use and benefit of the owner or owners of such boat or vessel, who may institute a suit thereon if damages be occasioned by the issuing of such attachment, and have recovery thereon in the same manner as if said bond had been given to such person or persons by their proper names, or in the name and style of their co-partnership.

(5.) SEC. V. If the owner or owners, master, supercargo or consignee of any such boat or vessel seized by attachment as aforesaid, shall, at any time before final judgment, give bond to the plaintiff, with security to be approved by the clerk of the circuit court, or by the judge in term time, (or justice of the peace, as the case may be,) in double the amount of the demand sued for, and a sufficiency to discharge all costs which may accrue thereon, conditioned to pay and satisfy such judgment as the court (or justice of the peace) may render against such boat or vessel or defendant party, together with the costs of suit, then such boat or vessel shall be forthwith discharged from such attachment, seizure and detention; but shall nevertheless be liable to be taken and sold on any execution to be issued on such judgment, or upon the judgment which may be rendered at any time on the bond required to be given by the defendant party as aforesaid.

(8.) SEC. II. This act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

PRIOR LAWS. An act authorizing the seizure of boats and other vessels by attachment in certain cases; in force June 1, 1833. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 95.

DECISIONS. Under the act of Feb. 13, 1833, no person can appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace rendered against a boat or vessel, unless he has made himself a party to the proceeding before the justice. Quare—whether an appeal lies at all in such case. Schooner Constitution v. Woodworth, 1 S. 511.

An affidavit for an attachment against a boat or vessel must show that the indebtedness accrued while the boat was being built, equipped, repaired or running upon the navigable waters of the State. Frink v. King, 3 S. 144.

Where a boat is attached, and one owner comes in and makes defense, it is improper to permit other owners to interpose other pleas. One is competent to make full defense. Idem.

Under our statute, the master of a steamboat or other vessel has a lien for wages, as well as any other person employed on the same. Chauncey v. Jackson, 4 G. 435.

A sale of a vessel under a judgment in attachment, does not divest liens of a superior degree, nor antecedent liens of the same degree. Germain v. Steam Tug Indiana, 11 Ill. 536.

The claims of seamen are to be paid first. Germain v. Steam Tug Indiana, 11 Ill. 536.
A lien once acquired continues in force three months. Until this period expires, the creditor is not chargeable with laches. Idem.

(1.) SECTION I. No person shall be permitted to practice as an attorney or counselor at law, or to commence, conduct or defend any action, suit or plaint, in which he is not a party concerned, in any court of record within this State, either by using or subscribing his own name or the name of any other person, without having previously obtained a license for that purpose from some two of the justices of the supreme court, which license shall constitute the person receiving the same an attorney and counselor at law, and shall authorize him to appear in all the courts of record within this State, and there to practice as an attorney and counselor at law, according to the laws and customs thereof, for and during his good behavior in said practice, and to demand and receive all such fees as are or hereafter may be established for any services which he shall or may render as an attorney and counselor at law in this State.

(2.) SEC. II. No person shall be entitled to receive a license as aforesaid, until he shall have obtained a certificate from the court of some county, of his good moral character.

(3.) SEC. III. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court to make and keep a roll or record, stating, at the head or commencement thereof, that the persons whose names are therein written, have been regularly licensed and admitted to practice as attorneys and counselors at law within this State, and that they have duly taken the oath to support the constitution of the United States and of this State, and also the oath of office as prescribed by law, which shall be certified and indorsed on the said license.

(4.) SEC. IV. And no person whose name is not subscribed to or written on the said roll, with the day and year when the same was subscribed thereto or written thereon, shall be suffered or admitted to practice as an attorney or counselor at law within this State, under the penalty hereinafter mentioned, any thing in this chapter to the contrary notwithstanding; and the justices of the supreme court, in open court, shall have power, at their discretion, to strike the name of any attorney or counselor at law from the roll for mal-conduct in his office.

(5.) SEC. V. In all cases when an attorney of any court in this State, or solicitor in chancery, shall have received, or may hereafter receive, in his said office of attorney or solicitor, in the course of collection or settlement of any claim left with him for collection or settlement, any money or other property belonging to any client, and shall, upon demand made, and a tender of his reasonable fees and expenses, refuse or neglect to pay over or deliver the same to the said client, or to any person duly authorized to receive the same, it shall be lawful for any person interested to apply to the supreme court of this State for a rule upon the said attorney or solicitor, to show cause, at a time to be fixed by the said court, why the name of the said attorney or solicitor should not be stricken from the roll; a copy of which rule shall be duly served upon said attorney or solicitor at least two days previous to the day upon which said rule shall be made returnable; and if, upon the return of said rule, it shall be made to appear to the said court that such attorney or solicitor has improperly refused or neglected to pay over or deliver said money or property so demanded as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the said court to direct that the name of the said attorney or solicitor be stricken from the roll of attorneys in said court.

(6.) SEC. VI. Every attorney, before his name is stricken off the roll, shall receive a written notice from the clerk of the supreme court, stating distinctly the grounds of complaint, or the charges exhibited against him, and he shall, after such notice, be heard in his defense, and allowed reasonable time to collect and prepare testimony for his justification. And every attorney whose name shall at any time be stricken from the roll by order of the court in manner aforesaid, shall be considered as though his name had never been written thereon, until such time as the said justices, in open court, shall authorize him to sign or subscribe the same.

(7.) SEC. VII. All attorneys and counselors at law, judges, clerks and sheriffs, and all other officers of the several courts within this State, shall be liable to be arrested and held to bail, and shall be subject to the same legal process, and may in all respects be prosecuted and proceeded against in the same courts, and in the same manner as other persons are, any law, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, nevertheless, said judges, counselors or attorneys, clerks, sheriffs and other officers of said courts, shall be privileged from arrest while attending courts, and whilst going to and returning from court.

(8.) SEC. VIII. No person who holds a commission as a justice of the supreme court, or as judge of any circuit court, or county commissioner, shall be permitted to practice as an attorney or counselor at law in the court in which he presides as justice of the supreme or circuit court, or county commissioner; nor shall any coroner, sheriff, deputy sheriff, jailer or constable, be permitted to practice as aforesaid in the county in which he is commissioned or appointed, nor shall any clerk of the supreme court, circuit court, or court of the county, be permitted to practice as an attorney or counselor at law in the court of which he is clerk, and no person shall be permitted or suffered to enter his name on the roll or record, to be kept as aforesaid, by the clerk of the supreme court, or do any official act appertaining to the office of an attorney or counselor at law, until he hath taken an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of this State, and the person administering such oath, shall certify the same on the license, which certificate shall be a sufficient voucher to the clerk of the supreme court, to enter or insert, or permit to be entered or inserted, on the roll of attorneys and counselors at law, the name of the person of whom such certificate is made.

(9.) SEC. IX. The following oath of office shall be administered to every attorney and counselor at law, before they subscribe the respective rolls, to wit: "I swear (or affirm) that I will in all things faithfully execute the duties of an attorney and counselor at law, according to the best of my understanding and abilities."

(10.) SEC. X. Any person producing a license or other satisfactory voucher, proving that he hath been regularly admitted an attorney at law in any court of record within the United States, that he is of good moral character, may be licensed and permitted to practice as a counselor and attorney at law in any court in this State without examination.

(11.) SEC. XI. If any person not licensed as aforesaid, shall receive any money or any species of property, as a fee or compensation for services rendered or to be rendered by him as an attorney or counselor at law within this State, all money so received by him shall be considered as money received to the use of the person paying the same, and may be recovered back, with costs of suit, by an action for money had and received; and all property delivered or conveyed for the purpose aforesaid, or the value thereof, may be recovered back, with costs of suit, by the person conveying or delivering the same, by action of detinue, or trover and conversion, and the person receiving such money or property, shall forfeit three-fold the amount or value thereof, to be recovered, with costs of suit, before any magistrate, if within a magistrate's jurisdiction, but if not, in any court of record within the State, by action of debt, qui tam, the one-half to the use of the person who shall sue for and recover the same, and the other half to the use of the county in which such suit shall be brought; and if any person shall sign or cause to be signed the name of an attorney, or either of the justices of the supreme court, to any certificate or license provided for in this section, with an intent to deceive, such person shall be deemed guilty of forgery, and shall be prosecuted and punished accordingly.

(12.) SEC. XII. Plaintiffs shall have the liberty of prosecuting, and defendants shall have the privilege of defending, in their proper persons; and nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to affect any person or persons heretofore admitted to the degree of an attorney or counselor at law, by the laws of this State, or of the Illinois territory, so as to subject them to further examination, or make it necessary for them to renew their licenses.

(13.) SEC. XIII. Hereafter, when any counselor or attorney at law, residing in any of the adjacent States or territories, may desire to practice law in this State, such counselor or attorney shall be allowed to practice in the several courts of law and equity in this State, upon the same terms and in the same manner that counselors and attorneys at law residing in this State now are, or hereafter may be, admitted to practice law in such adjacent States or territories.

13. Bail not to be proceeded against by scire facias

[Approved March 3, 1845. Rev. Stat. 1845, p. 90.]

SECTION I. No person shall be permitted to be special bail in any action, unless he be a householder and resident within this State, and of sufficient property, if the writ or process is sued out of the supreme court, or if it issue out of any circuit court, unless he be a householder of sufficient property, and resident in the county in which the court is held; and no counselor or attorney at law, sheriff, under sheriff, bailiff, or other person concerned in the execution of process, shall be permitted to be special bail in any action.

SEC. II. In all actions to be commenced in any court of record in this State, and founded upon any specialty, bill or note in writing, or on the judgment of any court, foreign or domestic, and in all actions of covenant and account, and actions on verbal contracts or assumpsits in law, in which the plaintiff or other credible person can ascertain the sum due or damages sustained, and that the same will be in danger of being lost, or that the benefit of whatever judgment may be obtained will be in danger unless the defendant or defendants be held to bail, and shall make affidavit thereof before the clerk of the court from which process issues, or a justice of the peace of this State, or, if the plaintiff reside out of this State, before any judge of a court of record, or notary public, or officer of the State or kingdom in which he resides, or may be duly authorized to administer an oath; and such affidavit shall be delivered to such clerk, who shall issue a capias and indorse thereon an order or direction to the sheriff or officer to whom such process shall be directed, to hold the defendant or defendants to bail in the sum so specified in such affidavit; and it shall be the duty of the sheriff or officer serving such process, to take bail accordingly. In actions sounding merely in damages, where the same cannot be ascertained as aforesaid, the affidavit shall also set forth the nature and cause of the action, with the substantial or chief facts in relation thereto, and if, upon examination thereof, the clerk shall be satisfied that sufficient cause is shown to require bail, he shall issue a capias in like manner, and make an order thereon, specifying in what amount the defendant or defendants shall be required to give bail; the officer serving the process shall, in like manner, take bail. The bail taken, as herein directed, may be discharged, or the amount thereof reduced by the court to which the writ is returned, on application during the term to which it is returned, upon satisfactory proof.

SEC. III. Where any writ shall have been issued from any court of record in this State, whereon bail is required, the sheriff or other officer to whom the same may be directed, shall take a bail bond to himself, with sufficient security, in a penalty of double the sum for which bail is required. And for the purpose of avoiding errors in the taking thereof, the condition shall be substantially in the following form:

"The condition of this obligation is such, that whereas A. B. has lately sued out of the circuit court of the county of _____, a certain writ of capias ad respondendum, in a certain plea of _____ against C. D., returnable to the next term of the said court, to be holden at _____, on the _____ day of _____ next: Now, if the said C. D. shall be and appear at the said court, to be holden at _____, on the said _____ day of _____ next, and in case the said E. F. shall not be received as bail in the said action, shall put in good and sufficient bail, which shall be received by the plaintiff, or shall be adjudged sufficient by the court, or the said E. F. being accepted as bail, shall pay and satisfy the costs and condemnation money, which may be rendered against the said C. D. in the plea aforesaid, or surrender the body of the said C. D. in execution, in case the said C. D. shall not pay and satisfy the said costs and condemnation money, or surrender himself in execution, when, by law, such surrender is required, then this obligation to be void; otherwise to remain in full force and effect."

Which bond, so taken, shall be returned with the writ, on or before the first day of the term of the court to which the writ is returnable. In case the sheriff or other officer executing such process, and to whom it shall be directed, shall neglect to take such bond, or the bail be held insufficient, on exception taken and entered of record during the term to which such writ shall be made returnable, the sheriff or other officer having reasonable notice of taking such exception, shall, in either case, be deemed and stand as special bail in the action; and the plaintiff may proceed to judgment against such sheriff or other officer, as in other cases against special bail.

SEC. IV. All bail taken according to the directions of this chapter, shall be deemed and taken as special bail, and may be proceeded against by an action of debt, in the name of the plaintiff in the original action, as in the case of a recognizance of bail, except where the bail shall be adjudged insufficient by the court; then the bond shall in that case stand as a security to the sheriff, who may, upon a forfeiture of the condition to appear and perfect bail, proceed thereon in an action of debt or covenant, to recover the amount of whatever damages he may have sustained by reason of the non-performance of such condition; and shall also have the same right to arrest and detain the principal in custody, in case the bail shall be adjudged insufficient by the court, and the principal shall not perfect bail within the time required by law, as the bail might have had; if he shall elect to arrest and commit the principal to prison, then his remedy on the bond shall cease, and the bond be void. The sufficiency of the bail shall be excepted to during the term to which the writ is returnable, otherwise the same shall be considered as accepted by the plaintiff. Objections to the sufficiency of bail shall be decided by the court in which the exception is taken, without delay, on such evidence as may be produced, and as it may deem satisfactory; the burden of proof shall lie on the party affirming the sufficiency, allowing the bail to be examined on oath or affirmation, touching his sufficiency.

SEC. V. It shall be lawful for the defendant in any action in any court of record, when bail shall have been given as aforesaid, to surrender himself, or for his bail to surrender him at any time before the return day of the process, which may have been sued out against him as bail, to the court in which the suit may be pending, during the sitting thereof, or, in vacation, to the sheriff of the county in which process was served. In case the surrender shall be made during the sitting of the court, an entry shall be made on the records of the court, stating the surrender and commitment of the defendant to the custody of the sheriff; if the surrender be made in vacation, the bail or principal shall obtain a certified copy of the bail bond from the sheriff or clerk of the court, in whosoever possession the same may be, and shall deliver himself, or be delivered by his bail, to such sheriff, who shall thereupon indorse on such copy of the bail bond, an acknowledgment of the surrender of the body of the defendant to his custody, and thereupon the said copy of the bond, with such acknowledgment, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the court in which the action is pending. Upon giving notice of the surrender, whether made in term time or vacation, to the plaintiff or his attorney, and paying the costs of the action against the bail, if any have accrued, the bail shall be discharged from all liability; the defendant shall be committed to the jail of the county, there to remain until discharged by due course of law. If the surrender be after judgment, and the plaintiff shall not charge the defendant in execution within fifteen days after notice thereof, he shall be discharged out of custody: the plaintiff may, notwithstanding such discharge, have execution against the real and personal estate of the defendant.

SEC. VI. Any defendant surrendered into custody or committed by his bail, in manner aforesaid, may at any time before final judgment shall have been rendered in the action, discharge himself from custody by giving other good and sufficient special bail; the sheriff, or other officer authorized to take bail, shall take new bail to the same effect as is herein before provided.

SEC. VII. In all cases of bail under this chapter, it shall and may be lawful for the bail to arrest and secure the body of the principal, until a surrender can be made to the sheriff of the county where the suit may be pending, or to the court to which the process was returnable.

SEC. VIII. Hereafter, no suit shall be commenced upon any bail bond or recognizance of bail, in any civil action, until a writ of capias ad satisfaciendum, shall have issued against the defendant in the original action, directed to the sheriff of the county in which such defendant was arrested, and such sheriff shall have returned that the said defendant was not found in his county; if any action shall hereafter be commenced upon such bond or recognizance, and it shall not appear upon the trial thereof that a writ of capias ad satisfaciendum was issued and returned in the manner herein before mentioned, a verdict shall be found for the defendant. It shall be also necessary to charge the bail, that such writ of capias ad satisfaciendum should be issued and delivered at least ten days before the return day thereof, to the sheriff of the county, or officer to whom it may be directed; such sheriff or other officer shall endeavor to serve such writ upon the defendant, any directions which he may receive from the plaintiff or his attorney to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. IX. In all cases where judgment shall hereafter be entered up in any court of record in this State, against any person or persons as bail for another, and the amount of such judgment or any part thereof has been paid or discharged by such bail, his, her or their executors, administrators or heirs, it shall and may be lawful for such bail, his, her or their heirs, executors or administrators, to obtain judgment by motion against the person or persons for whom he, she or they were bound for the full amount of what shall have been paid by the said bail, his, her or their heirs, executors or administrators, in such court where judgment shall have been entered up against such bail, before judgment shall be entered up against the principal, ten days' previous notice of such motion shall have been given to him, if a resident of this State, and if a non-resident, then notice of such motion shall have been published, for four weeks successively, in some newspaper printed in this State.

SEC. X. In all actions against bail, it shall be lawful for the bail to plead in bar of such actions, the death of the principal before the return day of the process against the bail; if, on the trial of any such issue, the death of the principal be found to have happened before such return day, judgment shall be given in favor of the defendant; he shall, notwithstanding, be liable to judgment and execution for the costs of suit, unless such death shall be found to have taken place before the commencement of the action.

SEC. XI. If any defendant having given special bail in any action, shall afterwards be legally arrested and delivered over to the executive authority of the United States, or of any State or territory thereof, upon a charge of having committed a crime out of the jurisdiction of this State, and shall be thereupon carried beyond the limits thereof, such bail shall be discharged from all liability incurred as bail, if the defendant has not returned to this State discharged from such arrest, before he shall be liable to be charged as bail for such defendant.

SEC. XII. When any defendant in any civil action, shall have been discharged as an insolvent debtor, agreeably to the laws of this State respecting insolvent debtors, and a certificate from the authority lawfully granting the same shall be produced to the court, the bail of such defendant shall in all cases be entitled to have an exoneretur entered upon the records of the court, which shall thereupon operate as a discharge from his bond or recognizance, in the same manner as if he had surrendered his principal in court, or to the sheriff as herein before directed: Provided, That judgment shall not have been recovered against him as the bail of such defendant.

SEC. XIII. Hereafter, proceedings by scire facias against bail, in civil cases, shall not be allowed in any court of record in this State.

PRIOR LAWS. An act regulating the practice in the supreme and circuit courts of this State, and for other purposes; approved March 22, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 139.
An act regulating the practice at law and in chancery; approved Jan. 25, 1821. Laws, 1821, p. 8.
An act concerning special bail; in force June 1, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 107.

DECISIONS. Under the practice act of March 22, 1819, bail bonds should be given to the sheriff, and suit on them brought in his name. The sheriff cannot assign them to the plaintiff in the action. Hunter v. Gillham, Breese, 51.

A motion to discharge bail and let the capias stand as a summons, is addressed to the discretion of the court, and its decision cannot be assigned for error. Bancroft v. Eastman, 2 G. 259.

B. held L. to bail on a capias. The bail was discharged, but judgment given for the plaintiff. Held, that the motion to discharge bail is in the discretion of the court, and that its decision cannot be assigned for error. Bruner v. Ingraham, 1 S. 556.

Defendant gave bail when arrested upon a ca. ad resp. issued on an insufficient affidavit. On his motion to dismiss the suit for that cause, the motion to dismiss was refused, but the bail bond was canceled. Wann, Jr., v. McGoon, 2 S. 74.

The penalty of a bail bond is not the cause of action, nor the true amount to be recovered. The breach of the condition is the gist of the action, and the damages caused by the breach the true amount to be recovered. Murphy v. Summerville, 2 G. 360.

Under Section 5, Chapter XIV, Revised Statutes, the surrender of the principal after the return day of process against the bail, does not exonerate the bail. Gear v. Clark, 3 G. 64.

A motion to discharge bail is addressed to the discretion of the court, and its decision cannot be assigned for error. Adams v. Bartlett, 5 G. 169. See also Morrison et al. v. Silberbaugh, 13 Ill. 551, and Walker v. Welch et al., 14 Ill. 364.

When a default is taken against a defendant in an action on a bail bond, the clerk does not assess the debt. The assessment should be of the damages occasioned by breach of the condition of the bond, which damages are the amount recovered in the suit in which the bond is given. O'Conner et al. v. Mullen, 11 Ill. 116.

- age; if child die, bond to be void; when money paid to guardian.
6. If issue be found for defendant, mother of child to pay the costs.
7. If parents intermarry, child to be deemed legitimate, and bond void.
8. Prosecution barred after two years, except in case of absence from the State.
9. All warrants issued by justices of the peace to be directed to and executed by sheriffs, &c.; to whom returnable.
10. When act to take effect.

(1.) SECTION I. When any unmarried woman, who shall be pregnant or delivered of a child which by law would be deemed a bastard, shall make complaint to any one or more of the justices of the peace of the county where she may be so pregnant or delivered, and shall accuse, under oath or affirmation, any person with being the father of such child, it shall be the duty of such justice or justices to issue a warrant, directed to the sheriff or any constable of such county, against the person so accused, and cause him to be brought forthwith before him or them. Upon his appearance, it shall be the duty of said justice or justices, to examine the said woman, upon oath or affirmation, in the presence of the man alleged to be the father of the child, touching the charge against him. If the said justice or justices shall be of opinion that sufficient cause appears, it shall be his or their duty to bind the person so accused, in bond, with sufficient and good security, to appear at the next circuit court to be holden for said county, to answer to such charge; to which court said warrant and bond shall be returned. On neglect or refusal to give such bond and security, the justice or justices shall cause such person to be committed to the jail of the county, there to be held to answer such complaint.

(2.) SEC. II. The circuit court of such county, at their said next term, shall have full cognizance and jurisdiction of the said charge of bastardy, and shall cause an issue to be made up, whether the person charged as aforesaid, is the real father of the child or not, which issue shall be tried by a jury. Such inquiry shall not be ex parte, when the person charged shall appear and deny the charge; but he shall have a right to appear and defend himself by counsel, and controvert, by all legal evidence, the truth of such charge.

(3.) SEC. III. If at the time of such court, the woman be not delivered, or be unable to attend, the court shall order a recognizance to be taken of the person charged as aforesaid, in such an amount and with such sureties as the court may deem just, for the appearance of such person at the next court, after the birth of her child; and should such mother not be able to attend at the next term after the birth of her child, the recognizance shall be continued until she is able.

(4.) SEC. IV. On the trial of every issue of bastardy, the mother shall be admitted as a competent witness, and her credibility shall be left to the jury. She shall not be admitted as a witness, in case she has been duly convicted of any crime which would by law disqualify her from being a witness in another case.

(5.) SEC. V. In case the issue be found against the defendant, or reputed father, or whenever he shall, in open court, have confessed the truth of the accusation against him, he shall be condemned by the judgment of the said court, to pay such sum of money, not exceeding fifty dollars, yearly, for seven years, as in the discretion of the said court may seem just and necessary for the support, maintenance and education of such child; and shall, moreover, be adjudged to pay all the costs of the prosecution, for which execution shall issue as in other cases of costs. The said defendant, or reputed father, shall give bond and security for the due and faithful payment of such sum of money as shall be ordered to be paid by the said court, to be paid by him for the period aforesaid, which shall be made payable quarterly to the judge of the court of probate, and his successor in office, for the county in which the prosecution aforesaid was commenced; and the same, when received, shall be laid out and appropriated, from time to time, by the said judge, under his order and direction, for the purposes aforesaid. In case the defendant or reputed father shall refuse or neglect to give such security as may be ordered by the court, he shall be committed to the jail of the county, there to remain until he shall comply with such order, or until otherwise discharged by due course of law: Provided, always, That the said reputed father, after giving bond with approved security, to the court of probate in said county, conditioned for the suitable maintenance of any such child for the term aforesaid, shall be permitted to take charge and have the control of his said child at any time after said child shall arrive at the age of three years; and from the time of the said father taking charge of such child, or should the mother refuse to surrender the said child, when so demanded by the said father, then and from thenceforth the said father shall be released and discharged from the payment of all such sum or sums of money as may thereafter become due against the said father, for the support, maintenance and education of any such child. If the said child should never be born alive, or being born alive, should die at any time, and the fact shall be suggested upon the record of the said court, then the bond aforesaid shall from thenceforth be void. But when a guardian shall be appointed for such bastard, the money arising from such bond shall be paid over to such guardian.

(6.) SEC. VI. If, upon the trial of the issue aforesaid, the jury shall find that the child is not the child of the defendant, or pretended father, then the judgment of the court shall be that he be discharged. The woman making the complaint shall pay the costs of the prosecution, and judgment shall be entered therefor, and execution may thereupon issue.

(7.) SEC. VII. If the mother of any bastard child, and the reputed father, shall at any time after its birth, intermarry, the said child shall, in all respects, be deemed and held legitimate, and the bond aforesaid be void.

(8.) SEC. VIII. No prosecution under this chapter shall be brought after two years from the birth of the bastard child: Provided, The time any person accused shall be absent from the State shall not be computed.

An Act to amend Chapter XVI. of the Revised Statutes of this State.

(9.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That hereafter, when any justice of the peace shall be required to issue a warrant, as is now required by chapter sixteen of the revised laws of this State, the same shall be directed to, and executed by, all sheriffs, coroners and constables, in the State of Illinois, returnable before the magistrate by whom said process was issued, or, in case of his absence, before any magistrate of the county from which said process issued.

(10.) SEC. II. This act shall be in force from and after its passage.

PRIOR LAWS. An act for the maintenance and support of illegitimate children; approved March 25, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 261. Repealed July 1, 1827.

An act to provide for the maintenance of illegitimate children; in force July 1, 1827. Rev. Code, 1827, p. 244. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 334.

DECISIONS. Under the fifth section of the "Act to provide for the maintenance of illegitimate children," in force July 1, 1827, the father, after giving bond as required by that section, may demand and have possession and control of his child. So long as the mother refuses to surrender it, he is not liable on his bond, and if she surrenders it, he is not required to give further bond, but must maintain it, as if born in wedlock. The father was not entitled, at common law, to the custody of the child, but under the statute is entitled, after giving bond. Wright v. Bennett et al., 2 G. 587.

In law, bastardy is only a misdemeanor, which may be compromised or compounded by the offending parties. And a bond given by the father, to the mother of a bastard, upon the consideration that she should dismiss a complaint for bastardy then pending against him, is founded upon a valid consideration. Coleman v. Frum, 3 S. 378.

(1.) SECTION I. The several circuit courts of this State, in all causes of which they may have jurisdiction as courts of chancery, shall have power to proceed therein according to the mode hereinafter prescribed; and where no provision is made by this chapter, according to the general usage and practice of courts of equity, or agreeably to such rules as may be established by the said courts in that behalf.

(2.) SEC. II. The mode of commencing suits in equity, shall be by filing a bill, setting forth the nature of the complaint, with the clerk of the circuit court of the county, within whose jurisdiction the defendants, or the major part of them, if inhabitants of this State, reside; or if the suit may affect real estate, in the county where the same or greater part thereof shall be situated: if the defendants are all non-residents, then with the clerk of the circuit court of any county. Bills for injunctions to stay proceedings at law, shall be filed in the office of the circuit court of the county in which the record of the proceedings had, shall be.

(3.) SEC. III. In suits for the payment or recovery of money, set-offs shall be allowed in the same manner, and with the like effect, as in actions at law.

(4.) SEC. IV. Suits in chancery may be commenced and prosecuted by infants, either by guardian or next friend.

(5.) SEC. V. Upon the filing of every bill as aforesaid, the clerk of the court aforesaid shall thereupon issue a summons directed to the sheriff of the county in which the defendant resides, if the defendant be a resident of this State, requiring him to appear and answer the bill on the return day of the summons; and where there are several defendants residing in different counties, a separate summons shall be issued to each county, including all the defendants residing therein.

(6.) SEC. VI. Every summons shall be tested in the name of the clerk of the court out of which it may issue; shall bear the seal of the court and the signature of its clerk; shall be dated of the day it issues, and be made returnable to the next term of the court after the date thereof, unless the suit be brought within ten days immediately preceding any term, in which case the summons shall be returnable to the next term thereafter.

(7.) SEC. VII. Service of summons shall be made by delivering a copy thereof to the defendant, or leaving such copy at his usual place of abode, with some white person of the family, of the age of ten years or upwards, and informing such person of the contents thereof, which service shall be at least ten days before the return day of such summons.

(8.) SEC. VIII. Whenever any complainant shall file in the office of the clerk of the court in which his suit is pending, an affidavit showing that any defendant resides or hath gone out of this State, or on due inquiry cannot be found, or is concealed within this State, so that process cannot be served upon him, the clerk shall cause publication to be made in some newspaper printed in his county, and if there be no newspaper published in his county, then in a newspaper published in this State, containing notice of the pendency of such suit, the names of the parties thereto, the title of the court, and the time and place of the return of summons in the case; such publication to be made for four successive weeks, the first of which shall be at least sixty days before the return day of such summons. But this proceeding shall not dispense with the usual exertion on the part of the sheriff, to serve the summons.

(9.) SEC. IX. If sixty days shall not intervene between filing such affidavit and the return day of the summons, and the summons shall not be served, the cause shall be continued to the next term. If sixty days shall intervene, as aforesaid, or if service of process shall be made, and the defendant shall not appear on the return day of the summons, the bill may be taken for confessed.

(10.) SEC. X. If, for want of due publication or service, the cause shall be continued, then the same proceedings shall be had at the succeeding term of the court, as may have been had at the term to which said summons shall be returnable.

(11.) SEC. XI. If, in any suit in chancery, the process shall not be returned executed on the return day thereof, the clerk, if required, shall issue an alias, pluries, or other process, without an order of the court therefor.

(12.) SEC. XII. The complainant may cause a copy of the bill or petition, together with a notice of the commencement of the suit, to be delivered to any defendant residing or being without this State, not less than thirty days previous to the commencement of the term at which such defendant is required to appear; which service, when proved to the satisfaction of the court by the oath or deposition of any person competent to be a witness in the cause, shall be as effectual as if such service had been made in the usual form within the limits of this State.

(13.) SEC. XIII. When any bill is taken for confessed, the court may make such decree thereon as may be just, and may enforce such decree either by sequestration of real and personal estate, by attachment against the person, by causing possession of real and personal estate to be delivered to the party entitled thereto, or by ordering the demand of the complainant to be paid out of the effects or estate sequestered, or which are included in such decree; and by the exercise of such other powers as pertain to courts of chancery, and which may be necessary for the attainment of justice.

(14.) SEC. XIV. A decree for money shall be a lien on the lands and tenements of the party against whom it is entered, to the same extent and under the same limitations as a judgment at law.

(15.) SEC. XV. When any final decree shall be entered against any defendant who shall not have been summoned or notified to appear as required by this chapter, and such person, his heirs, devisees, executor, administrator or other legal representatives, as the case may require, shall, within one year after notice in writing given him or them of such decree, or within three years after such decree, if no such notice shall have been given as aforesaid, appear in open court and petition to be heard, touching the matter of such decree, and shall pay such costs as the court shall deem reasonable in that behalf, the person so petitioning may appear and answer the complainant's bill, and thereupon such proceedings shall be had as if the defendants had appeared in due season, and no decree had been made. The decree shall, after three years from the making thereof, if not set aside in manner aforesaid, be deemed and adjudged confirmed against such non-resident defendant, and all persons claiming under him by virtue of any act done subsequent to the commencement of such suit; and at the end of the said three years, the court may make such further order in the premises as shall be required, and shall be just.

(16.) SEC. XVI. If the defendant shall be brought into court by virtue of any process, being in contempt for refusing to appear, and shall continue to refuse or neglect to enter his appearance, or appoint a solicitor of the court to do it for him, according to the provisions of this chapter or the rules of said court, then, and in that case, the court may appoint a solicitor to enter an appearance of such defendant, and such further proceedings may be had in the said cause, as if the party had actually appeared.

(17.) SEC. XVII. The judges of the circuit courts in their respective circuits, may establish rules of proceeding in chancery, and make all needful orders and regulations consistent with the practice of courts of chancery, in cases not provided for by law.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. Every defendant who shall be summoned according to the provisions of this chapter, shall file his exceptions, plea, demurrer or answer to the bill, at the time to which the process or summons shall be returnable; if he fail to do so, the bill may be taken for confessed; but for good cause shown, the court may extend the time for excepting or pleading, and the court may thereupon enter an interlocutory decree, which may be made absolute at the next term, and carried into effect as other final decrees. If the defendant shall appear at the next term and offer to file his answer to the bill, the court may permit him to do so, upon his showing sufficient cause, and paying the costs of the preceding term; in such case the decree shall be vacated, and the cause may be proceeded in as in other cases.

(19.) SEC. XIX. Where a bill is taken for confessed, the court, before a final decree is made, if deemed requisite, may order the complainant to produce documents and witnesses to prove the allegations of his bill, or may examine him on oath or affirmation, touching the facts therein alleged; such decree shall be made in either case as the court shall consider equitable and proper.

(20.) SEC. XX. Every answer shall be verified by an oath or affirmation, taken before and certified by a judge or justice of the peace in this State, or the clerk of the court in which the action is pending, or before a judge or justice of the peace or other person authorized to administer an oath in the State, territory, kingdom or empire in which the defendant may be or reside; the official character of such officer, if out of this State, being attested by the seal of some court of record within such State, territory, kingdom or empire.

(21.) SEC. XXI. When a bill shall be filed in the court of chancery, other than for discovery only, the complainant may waive the necessity of the answer being made on the oath of the defendant; and in such cases, the answer may be made without oath, and shall have no other or greater force as evidence than the bill.

(22.) SEC. XXII. When an answer shall be adjudged insufficient, the defendant shall file a further answer within such time as the court shall direct, and on failure thereof, the bill shall be taken as confessed; if such further answer shall be likewise adjudged insufficient, the defendant shall file a supplemental answer, and pay all costs attendant thereon; if that shall be adjudged insufficient, the defendant may be proceeded against for a contempt, and the like proceedings be had thereon to enforce the order of the court, as in other cases of contempt.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. Every defendant shall answer fully all the allegations and interrogatories of the complainant, except such as are not required to be answered, by reason of exceptions, plea or demurrer thereto allowed.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. Any defendant may, after filing his answer, exhibit and file his cross bill containing interrogatories to the complainant, and call upon him to file his answer thereto, in such time as may be prescribed by the rules of the court.

(25.) SEC. XXV. The complainant shall in such case be held to except, plead, demur or answer to such cross bill in the same manner that a defendant is required to except, plead, demur or answer to an original bill, and his answer shall be evidence in the same manner as the defendant's answer to the bill.

(26.) SEC. XXVI. If the complainant shall fail to answer such interrogatories, his bill or petition shall be dismissed with costs, or the new matter set out in the defendant's cross bill shall be taken as confessed, and a decree entered accordingly.

(27.) SEC. XXVII. Where it is necessary for the defendant to bring a new party before the court, he shall state it in his answer, and insert interrogatories for him in his answer; and a subpoena shall be issued, and other proceedings had, as in the case of other defendants.

(28.) SEC. XXVIII. No complainant shall be allowed to dismiss his bill after a cross bill has been filed, without the consent of the defendant.

(29.) SEC. XXIX. The complainant shall not be compelled to file his answer to any cross bill, until the defendant shall have filed a sufficient answer to the complainant's bill.

(30.) SEC. XXX. All exceptions to answers to interrogatories exhibited by the defendant as aforesaid, shall be filed within such time as the court may direct, and be argued at such time as the court may appoint. If the complainant's exceptions be overruled, he shall pay costs to the defendant; and if the defendant's answer be adjudged insufficient, he shall pay costs to the complainant.

(31.) SEC. XXXI. Replications shall be general, with the like advantage to all parties as if special; and shall be filed in four days after the answer, if in term time; or if such answer be filed in vacation, the plaintiff or his attorney shall have notice thereof.

(32.) SEC. XXXII. After replication is filed, the cause shall be deemed at issue, and stand for hearing at the next term, or in default of filing such replication, the cause may be set for hearing upon the bill and answer; in which case the answer shall be taken as true, and no evidence shall be received unless it be matter of record to which the answer refers.

(33.) SEC. XXXIII. When the complainant shall require a discovery respecting the matters charged in the bill, the disclosure shall not be deemed conclusive; but if a replication be filed, it may be disproved or contradicted like any other testimony, according to the practice of courts of equity.

(34.) SEC. XXXIV. The said circuit courts, when sitting as courts of equity, may extend the time for answering, replying, pleading, demurring, or joining in demurrer; and may permit the parties to amend their bills, petitions, pleas, answers and replications, on such terms as the court may deem proper, so that neither party be surprised nor delayed thereby.

(35.) SEC. XXXV. The said circuit courts may, in their discretion, direct an issue or issues to be tried by a jury, whenever it shall be judged necessary in any cause in equity, pending in any of the said courts. In all other causes in equity, the mode of trial shall be the same as has been heretofore practised in courts of chancery.

(36.) SEC. XXXVI. Whenever an execution shall have been issued against the property of a defendant, on a judgment at law or in equity, and shall have been returned unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the party suing out such execution may file a bill in chancery against such defendant, and any other person, to compel the discovery of any property or thing in action belonging to the defendant; and if any property, money or thing in action due to him, or held in trust for him, and to prevent the transfer of any such property, money or thing in action, or the payment or delivery thereof to the defendant, except when such trust has been created by, or the fund so held in trust has proceeded from, some person other than the defendant himself.

(37.) SEC. XXXVII. The court shall have power to compel such discovery, and to prevent such transfer, payment or delivery, and to decree satisfaction of the sum remaining due on such judgments, out of any personal property, money or things in action belonging to the defendant, or held in trust for him, with the exception above stated, which shall be discovered by the proceedings in chancery, whether the same were originally liable to be taken in execution at law or not: Provided, That no answer made to any bill filed under this and the preceding section, shall be read in evidence against the defendant on the trial of any indictment for the fraud charged in the bill.

(38.) SEC. XXXVIII. If in any suit or action now pending, or which shall hereafter be brought in any court of chancery, there are or shall be two or more complainants or defendants, and one or more of them die, (if the cause of such action or suit survive to the surviving complainant or complainants, or against the surviving defendant or defendants,) such suit or action shall not thereby be abated; but such death being suggested and shown to the satisfaction of the court, such suit or action shall proceed at the suit of the surviving complainant or complainants, and against the surviving defendant or defendants.

(39.) SEC. XXXIX. When there shall be two or more complainants or defendants in any suit or action in chancery as aforesaid, and any of them die, and the cause of action do not survive, but other persons shall become parties in interest, in right, or by the death of such deceased party, such suit or action shall, by reason of such death, be abated only with respect to such deceased party. The surviving complainant or complainants may proceed against the surviving defendant or defendants, without reviving the suit against the representatives of the deceased party, or any other who may become interested by the death of such party; but in such case, such representatives or other persons becoming interested by the death of such party, shall not be bound by any order or decree in such cause to which they are not made parties; and they may be made parties in the manner provided in chapter one of the Revised Statutes.

(40.) SEC. XL. In all cases where all the complainants or defendants, in any suit now pending or hereafter to be brought in any court of chancery, shall die before final decree, such suit or action shall not thereby be abated, but may be revived in the name of the legal representatives of the deceased, or other person becoming interested in the cause of action by the death of such party.

(41.) SEC. XLI. In all suits in chancery, and suits to obtain title to lands, in any of the courts of this State, if there be persons interested in the same whose names are unknown, it shall be lawful to make such persons parties to such suits or proceedings, by the name and description of persons unknown, or unknown heirs or devisees of any deceased person, who may have been interested in the subject matter of the suit previous to his or her death; but in all such cases an affidavit shall be filed by the party desiring to make any unknown person a party, stating that the names of such persons are unknown, and process shall be issued against all parties by the name and description given as aforesaid, and notices given by publication, as is required in section eight of this chapter, shall be sufficient to authorize the court to hear and determine the suit, as though all parties had been sued by their proper names.

(42.) SEC. XLII. All decrees, orders, judgments and proceedings made or had with respect to such unknown persons, shall have the same effect, and be as binding and conclusive upon them, as though such suit or proceeding had been instituted against them by their proper names.

(43.) SEC. XLIII. Whenever a decree shall be made in any suit in equity, directing the execution of any deed or other writing, and the party against whom the same shall have been entered shall not comply therewith within the time required, it shall be lawful for the court to appoint a commissioner to execute the same. The execution thereof by such commissioner shall be as valid in law to pass, release or extinguish the right, title and interest of the party on whose behalf it is executed, as if it had been executed by such party in proper person, in conformity with such decree; and such deed or other writing, if it relate to land, shall, within six months after its execution by such commissioner, be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county wherein the lands may lie.

(44.) SEC. XLIV. In all cases where a sale of property is decreed, the court may direct the same to be made for cash, or on such credit and on such terms as it may deem best and most equitable to the interests of the several parties.

(45.) SEC. XLV. All decrees given in causes in equity in this State, shall be a lien on all real estate respecting which such decrees shall be made; and whenever, by any decree, any party to a suit in equity shall be required to perform any act other than the payment of money, or to refrain from performing any act, the court may, in such decree, order that the same shall be a lien upon the real or personal estate, or both, of such party until such decree shall be fully complied with; and such lien shall have the same force and effect, and be subject to the same limitations and restrictions, as judgments at law.

(46.) SEC. XLVI. When there shall be no master in chancery or commissioner to execute a decree, the same may be carried into effect by execution, or other final process, according to the nature of the case, directed to the sheriff or other officer of the proper county; which, when issued, shall be executed and returned by the sheriff or other officer to whom it may be directed, and shall have the same operation and force as similar writs issued upon a judgment at law. The sheriff or other officer to whom the same is directed, shall be subject to the like penalties and recoveries for misconduct or neglect in the execution or return thereof, as in cases at law; or the court may, if necessary, direct an attachment to be issued against the party disobeying such decree, and fine or imprison him, or both, in the discretion of the court, and may also direct a sequestration for disobedience of any decree.

(47.) SEC. XLVII. In any cause in equity it shall be lawful for the court in which the cause is pending, to appoint a guardian ad litem to any infant or insane defendant in such cause, whether such infant or insane defendant shall have been served with process or not, and to compel the person so appointed to act. By such appointment, such person shall not be rendered liable to pay costs of suit; and he shall moreover be allowed a reasonable sum for his charges as such guardian, to be paid by the party at whose motion he was appointed, to be taxed in the bill of costs.

(48.) SEC. XLVIII. The several circuit courts of this State shall have power to appoint, in each county, a master in chancery, who shall hold his office during the term of four years.

(49.) SEC. XLIX. Every master in chancery before entering on the duties of his appointment, shall give bond, with security to be approved by the court, and take and subscribe an oath of office, which bond and oath shall be filed with the clerk of the court making the appointment.

(50.) SEC. L. Masters in chancery, in their respective counties, shall have power to take depositions, both in law and equity, to administer oaths, to compel the attendance of witnesses, and in the absence from the county of the circuit judge presiding in such county, to order the issuing of writs of habeas corpus, ne exeat and injunction, and perform all other duties which, according to the laws of this State and the practice of courts of chancery, appertain to the office.

(51.) SEC. LI. Whenever it shall happen that there shall be no master in chancery in any county, or when such master shall be of counsel, of kin to either party interested, or otherwise disqualified or unable to act in any suit or matter, the court may appoint a special master, to perform the duties of the office in all things concerning such suit or matter.

(52.) SEC. LII. Masters in chancery shall receive for their services such compensation as shall be allowed by law, to be taxed as other costs.

(53.) SEC. LIII. Nothing in the preceding sections contained shall be construed to extend to those articles in possession of the defendant, which are exempt from execution by law.

(56.) SEC. III. So much of the first section of the law entitled "An act to fix the tenure of certain officers," approved Feb. 21st, one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, as conflicts with the provisions of this law, shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

DECISIONS. Under the 17th Section of the act of March 22, 1819, a court of equity, after dissolving the injunction and dismissing the bill filed to stay a judgment at law, cannot render a decree, in the same cause, against the plaintiff and his security in the injunction bond, for the amount of the judgment and costs in the suit at law, with interest and damages, and the costs of the suit in equity. Hubbard v. Hobson, Breese, 147.

By the 5th Section of the act of Feb. 5, 1833, it is not necessary, in a suit in chancery, that there should be an order of publication before notice can be given by advertisement to parties not served with process. Ayres et al. v. Lusk et al., 1 S. 536.

Where, in a suit in chancery, affidavit was made and filed in the clerk's office, that part of the defendants were non-residents, and notice of the pendency of the suit was published by the clerk four weeks successively in a public newspaper printed in this State: Held, that the defendants were duly notified under the statute of Feb. 5, 1833. Idem.

Under the statutes of Illinois, the court has power to dissolve an injunction on the filing of an answer which denies the equity of the bill. Before a bill can be dismissed, an issue must be made, as prescribed by the 14th Section of the act regulating proceedings in chancery. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 123. A cause may be heard upon bill and answer, if complainants do not reply within four days after an answer filed in term time. Beams et al. v. Denham et al., 2 S. 58.

Under the 4th Section of the act of Feb. 13, 1833, the return of a sheriff on a summons in chancery, that he had "left true copies thereof at the residence of the defendants, in the hands of white persons over fourteen years of age, after having explained to them the contents thereof," is insufficient in not stating that such persons were of the family of the defendants. Townsend et al. v. Griggs, 2 S. 365.

Where, under the 9th Section of the act of Feb. 13, 1833, a decree is rendered pro confesso, but the evidence upon which it is rendered is not contained in the record, a general objection that the decree was erroneous cannot be sustained. Dunn v. Keegin, 3 S. 292.

The 12th Section of the chancery act (Feb. 13, 1833,) supersedes the necessity of filing a cross bill, when the whole object is to compel a discovery from the complainants; where the defendants seek relief against the complainant, the practice is unaltered. Balance v. Underhill et al., 3 S. 453.

By the 14th Section of the chancery act of Feb. 13, 1833, when no replication is filed to an answer which denies the equity of a bill, the answer is taken as true, without proof. Payne et al. v. Frazier et al., 4 S. 55.

Under the 8th and 9th Sections of the act of Feb. 13, 1833, it is not error for a circuit court to take a bill in chancery pro confesso, and render a final decree in the case at the return term of the summons. If injustice be done by entering the decree at the return term, the 8th Section provides an ample remedy. Grubb v. Crane, 4 S. 153.

The 7th Section of the same act requires the court to establish rules respecting taking bills for confessed, and when the record shows a bill so taken, without containing the rule, or showing the proceedings under it, the supreme court will presume the rule was complied with, and that the proceedings were regular. Idem.

The 2d Section of Chap. XXI. of the Rev. Stat. of 1845, has not changed the original jurisdiction of courts of Chancery over the persons of individuals. Enos et al. v. Hunter, 4 G. 211.

Under the provisions of the 19th Section of Chap. XXI. of Rev. Stat. of 1845, when a bill is taken pro confesso, it is in the discretion of the court whether any and what proof shall be required in support of the bill. Manchester et al. v. McKee's Executor, 4 G. 511.

The party against whom the bill is taken for confessed cannot assign for error the insufficiency of the proof adduced in support of the bill. Idem.

Summons in chancery must, by the requirement of the statute, be served by copy. Sounce et al. v. Whitney et al., 12 Ill. 150.

When, under the 47th Section of the chancery act of 1845, the complainant proceeds against infants, not served with process, the court should compel the guardian ad litem to answer and defend, and a decree pro confesso against the infant, without such answer and defense, will not be sustained. Idem.

Under the 7th Section of the chancery act of 1845, if the reasonable and natural construction of the sheriff's return to the writ, be, that service was properly made, it is sufficient. Farnsworth et al. v. Strasser et al., 12 Ill. 482.

Under the provisions of the Revised Statutes, Chapter XXI., Sections 24 to 30, inclusive, no process is necessary to bring in the parties to the original bill, to answer the cross bill. The original and cross bills are considered as constituting one case. Fleece v. Russell et al., 13 Ill. 31.

The 36th and 37th Sections of Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes of 1845, expressly authorize a plaintiff in execution, to file a bill of discovery against his execution debtor, to subject his property to the payment of the judgment, when the execution has been returned "unsatisfied in whole or in part." Alexander et al. v. Tams et al., 13 Ill. 221.

Section 2, Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, being a restriction upon the general powers conferred on circuit courts by other statute provisions, can have no application to cases not strictly embraced by it. Ralston v. Hughes, 13 Ill. 469.

Under the 15th Section, Chap. XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, costs are in the discretion of the court, except in certain specified cases. McArtee v. Engart, 13 Ill. 242.

The 34th Section of Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, invests the circuit courts with discretion to allow amendments in chancery suits, at any stage of the case. Jefferson County v. Ferguson et al., 13 Ill. 33.

Under the 8th Section, Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, the due publication of notice alone is not sufficient; there must also be a return of non est inventus. Jacobus v. Smith, 14 Ill. 359.

The mode of proving the due publication of notice is not prescribed by Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, and it is competent to prove it by other evidence than the printer's certificate. Pile v. McBratney et al., 15 Ill. 314.

Notice given under the 8th and 41st Sections, Chapter XXI., Revised Statutes, 1845, to unknown persons, if according to the statute, gives jurisdiction to the court over such persons as effectually as if the proceedings were against them by their proper names. Idem.

Livery of seizin shall in no case be necessary for the conveyance of real property; but every deed, mortgage or other conveyance in writing, signed and sealed by the party making the same, the maker or makers being of full age, sound mind, discreet, at large, and not in duress, shall be sufficient, without livery of seizin, for the giving, granting, selling, mortgaging, leasing or otherwise conveying or transferring any lands, tenements or hereditaments in this State; so as to all intents and purposes, absolutely and fully to vest in every donee, grantee, bargainee, mortgagee, lessee or purchaser, all such estate or estates as shall be specified in any such deed, mortgage, lease or other conveyance. Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to divest or defeat the older or better estate or right of any person or persons, not party to any such deed, mortgage, lease or other conveyance.

(2.) SEC. II. Every estate, feoffment, gift, grant, deed, mortgage, lease, release or confirmation of lands, tenements, rents, services or hereditaments made or had, or hereafter to be made or had, by any person or persons, being of full age, sound mind, discreet, at large, and not in duress, to any person or persons, and all recoveries, judgments and executions, had or made, or to be had or made, shall be good and effectual to him, her or them, to whom it is or shall be so made, had or given, and to all others; to his, her or their use, against the judgment debtor, seller, feoffor, donor, grantor, mortgagor, lessor, releasor or confirmor, and against his, her or their heir or heirs claiming the same, only as heir or heirs, and every of them; and against all others having or claiming any title or interest in the same, only to the use of the same judgment debtor, seller, feoffor, donor, grantor, mortgagor, lessor, releasor or confirmor, or his, her or their said heirs, at the time of the judgment, execution, bargain, sale, mortgage, covenant, lease, release, gift or grant made.

dence or trust in remainder or reversion, shall from thenceforth stand and be seized, deemed and adjudged in lawful seizin, estate and possession of and in the same messuages, lands, tenements, rents, services, reversions, remainders and hereditaments, with their appurtenances, to all intents, constructions and purposes in law, of and in such like estates as they had or shall have in use, confidence or trust, of or in the same; and that the estate, right, title and possession, that was or shall be in such person or persons, that were or hereafter shall be seized of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to the use, confidence or trust of any such person or persons, or of any body politic, be from henceforth clearly deemed and adjudged to be in him, her or them that have or hereafter shall have such use, confidence or trust, after such quality, manner, form and condition as they had before, in or to the use, confidence or trust that was or shall be in them.

(4.) SEC. IV. Any person claiming right or title to lands, tenements or hereditaments, although he, she or they may be out of possession, and notwithstanding there may be an adverse possession thereof, may sell, convey and transfer his or her interest in and to the same, in as full and complete a manner as if he or she were in the actual possession of the lands and premises intended to be conveyed; and the grantee or grantees shall have the same right of action for the recovery thereof, and shall in all respects derive the same benefit and advantage therefrom, as if the grantor or grantors had been in the actual possession at the time of executing the conveyance.

(5.) SEC. V. No estate in joint tenancy, in any lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be held or claimed under any grant, devise or conveyance whatsoever, heretofore or hereafter made, other than to executors and trustees, unless the premises therein mentioned shall expressly be thereby declared to pass, not in tenancy in common, but in joint tenancy; and every such estate, other than to executors or trustees, (unless otherwise expressly declared as aforesaid,) shall be deemed to be in tenancy in common.

(6.) SEC. VI. In cases where, by the common law, any person or persons might hereafter become seized, in fee tail, of any lands, tenements or hereditaments, by virtue of any devise, gift, grant or other conveyance, hereafter to be made, or by any other means whatsoever, such person or persons, instead of being or becoming seized thereof in fee tail, shall be deemed and adjudged to be, and become seized thereof, for his or her natural life only, and the remainder shall pass in fee simple absolute, to the person or persons to whom the estate tail would first pass, on the death of the first grantee, devisee or donee in tail, according to the course of the common law, by virtue of such devise, gift, grant or conveyance.

(7.) SEC. VII. If any person shall sell and convey to another, by deed or conveyance purporting to convey an estate in fee simple absolute, any tract of land or real estate lying and being in this State, not then being possessed of the legal estate or interest therein at the time of the sale and conveyance, and after such sale and conveyance, the vendor shall become possessed of and confirmed in the legal estate to the land or real estate so sold and conveyed, it shall be taken and held to be in trust and for the use of the grantee or vendee; and the conveyance aforesaid shall be held and taken, and shall be as valid, as if the grantor or vendor had the legal estate or interest at the time of said sale or conveyance.

(8.) SEC. VIII. Every person in the actual possession of lands or tenements under claim and color of title, made in good faith, and who shall for seven successive years continue in such possession, and shall also, during said time, pay all taxes legally assessed on such lands or tenements, shall be held and adjudged to be the legal owner of said lands or tenements, to the extent and according to the purport of his or her paper title. All persons holding under such possession by purchase, devise or descent, before said seven years shall have expired, and who shall continue such possession and continue to pay the taxes as aforesaid, so as to complete the possession and payment of taxes for the term aforesaid, shall be entitled to the benefit of this section.

(9.) SEC. IX. Whenever a person having color of title, made in good faith, to vacant and unoccupied land, shall pay all taxes legally assessed thereon for seven successive years, he or she shall be deemed and adjudged to be the legal owner of said vacant and unoccupied land, to the extent and according to the purport of his or her paper title. All persons holding under such tax-payer by purchase, devise or descent, before said seven years shall have expired, and who shall continue to pay the taxes as aforesaid, so as to complete the payment of taxes for the term aforesaid, shall be entitled to the benefit of this section: Provided, however, If any person having a better paper title to said vacant and unoccupied land, shall, during the said term of seven years, pay the taxes assessed on said land for any one or more years of the said term of seven years, then and in that case such tax-payer, his heirs and assigns, shall not be entitled to the benefit of this section.

(10.) SEC. X. The two preceding sections shall not extend to lands or tenements owned by the United States or this State, nor to school and seminary lands, nor to lands held for the use of religious societies, nor to lands held for any public purpose. Nor shall they extend to lands or tenements when there shall be an adverse title to such lands or tenements, and the holder of such adverse title is under the age of twenty-one years, insane, imprisoned, feme covert, out of the limits of the United States, and in the employment of the United States or of this State: Provided, Such person shall commence an action, to recover such lands or tenements so possessed as aforesaid, within three years after the several disabilities herein enumerated shall cease to exist, and shall prosecute such action to judgment, or in case of vacant and unoccupied land, shall, within the time last aforesaid, pay to the person or persons who have paid the same, all the taxes, with interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum, that have been paid on said vacant and unimproved land.

(11.) SEC. XI. In all deeds whereby any estate of inheritance, in fee simple, shall hereafter be limited to the grantee and his heirs or other legal representatives, the words "grant," "bargain," "sell," shall be adjudged an express covenant to the grantee, his heirs and other legal representatives, to wit: That the grantor was seized of an indefeasible estate in fee simple, free from incumbrances done or suffered from the grantor, except the rents and services that may be reserved, as also for quiet enjoyment against the grantor, his heirs and assigns, unless limited by express words contained in such deed; and the grantee, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns may in any action assign breaches, as if such covenants were expressly inserted: Provided, always, That this law shall not extend to leases at rack rent, or leases not exceeding one-and-twenty years, where the actual possession goes with the lease.

(12.) SEC. XII. Every deed conveying real estate, which by anything therein contained shall appear to have been intended only as a security in the nature of a mortgage, though it be an absolute conveyance in terms, shall be considered as a mortgage.

(13.) SEC. XIII. Every estate in lands which shall be granted, conveyed or devised to one, although other words heretofore necessary to transfer an estate of inheritance be not added, shall be deemed a fee simple estate of inheritance, if a less estate be not limited by express words, or do not appear to have been granted, conveyed or devised by construction or operation of law.

(14.) SEC. XIV. When an estate hath been or shall be by any conveyance limited in remainder to the son or daughter, or to the use of the son or daughter of any person to be begotten, such son or daughter, born after the decease of his or her father, shall take the estate in the same manner as if he or she had been born in the lifetime of the father, although no estate shall have been conveyed to support the contingent remainder after his death.

(15.) SEC. XV. A married woman may relinquish her right of dower in any of the real estate of her husband, by joining him in a deed of conveyance and acknowledging the same in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

(16.) SEC. XVI. That it shall be the duty of the proper clerk, on the presentation of a certified copy of every such deed, mortgage or other instrument, at the request of the person who desires to use the same as evidence, and upon tender of his reasonable fees, to annex the certificate required by the preceding section to such deed, mortgage or other instrument, whenever the records and files of his office show the official character of such justice of the peace.

(68.) SEC. V. And be it further enacted, That a certified copy of any deed, mortgage or other instrument affecting any real estate situate within this State, which has been acknowledged without this State in conformity with the laws of the State where such deed, mortgage or other instrument was acknowledged, and which has been recorded in the proper county in this State, shall be evidence in all courts and places: Provided, The party offering such certified copy in evidence will exhibit with the same a certificate of conformity as provided for in sixteenth (XVI.) section of chapter twenty-four (XXIV.) of the Revised Statutes, notwithstanding said certificate of conformity has never been recorded.

(69.) SEC. VI. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

An Act to give validity to Grants and Conveyances by the Board of Trustees of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

[Approved June 23, 1852. Laws, 1852, p. 260.]

(70.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That all deeds, title papers, agreements and contracts affecting the title to real estate in this State, heretofore executed or which may hereafter be executed by the board of trustees of the Illinois and Michigan canal, under the seal of said board, shall be admitted to record, without proof or acknowledgment of the execution thereof, and the same having the seal of said board thereto attached, shall be admitted in evidence in all courts without further proof; and the transcript of the record thereof, duly certified, shall be admitted in evidence without further proof, in the same manner as deeds duly acknowledged and recorded are.

An Act to give validity to Conveyances.

[Approved June 22, 1852. Laws, 1852, p. 186.]

(71.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly. That the acts of David Rowland, Esq., a commissioner to take acknowledgment of deeds, &c., in the city of Washington, for this State, done and performed between the ninth day of August, A. D. 1851, and the twelfth day of May, A. D. 1852, be held valid and legalized so far as relates to the acknowledgment of deeds taken before and certified by him, as such commissioner, during the above time.

An Act to amend Chapter XXIV, of the Revised Statutes, entitled "Conveyances."

estate of the husband or the estate of the wife, or the right of dower in any lands situate in this State, and acknowledged by them before any officer authorized by the laws of this State to take acknowledgments, shall be deemed, held or adjudged invalid or defective or insufficient in law, by reason of any informality or omission in setting forth the particulars of the acknowledgment before such officer as aforesaid in the certificate thereof: Provided, however, That it appears in substance, from such certificate, that the parties executing said deed, mortgage or other instrument of writing, executed the same, freely and voluntarily; and that in case of married women executing the same, it appear, in substance, that they knew the contents of said deeds, mortgages or other instruments of writing, and that they were examined by the officer aforesaid, separate and apart from their husbands.

(73.) SEC. II. Nothing in the above section shall be so construed as to deprive the parties executing or having executed such deeds, mortgages or other instruments of writing, of any legal equitable remedies now or hereafter existing, for avoiding or annulling such deeds, mortgages or other instruments of writing, on account of fraud, circumvention, duress, non-age, or any other legal personal disqualification.

(74.) SEC. III. This act to be in force from and after its passage.

DECISIONS. Under the law of 1819, the certificate of a magistrate, as follows:—"State of Illinois, Morgan County, March 1825. This day personally appeared Thomas Arnet and his wife, Cayeah, before me, James Deaton, one of the acting justices of the peace for said county, and acknowledged the due execution of the within to be their free act and deed for the within purposes therein named,"—is a sufficient certificate of an acknowledgment by the husband (only) to pass his title to the land described in the deed. The wife's right of dower does not pass by such a deed. Ayas v. McConnell, 2 S. 307; McConnell v. Reed, 2 S. 372.

As between the parties, a deed is valid without being acknowledged or recorded. Semple v. Miles, 2 S. 316.

Under the act of Feb. 19, 1819, to authorize a deed, acknowledged before a justice of the peace out of the county where the land lies, to be read in evidence, the certificate of the clerk of the county where the deed is made, of the official character of the magistrate, must be appended. Idem, 316.

The object of the legislature in prescribing the forms for the acknowledgment of deeds was to prevent one person from personating another. A substantial compliance with the requisitions of the statute is sufficient. McConnell v. Reed, 2 S. 334; Wiley et al. v. Bean et al., 1 G. 302; Hughes et al. v. Lane, 11 Ill. 121.

A deed of land made by three persons, who are described in the body of the deed as county commissioners, and signed and sealed by them individually, acknowledged before the clerk of the county commissioners' court, and certified by him under the seal of the court, is sufficient to pass title to land patented to county commissioners, by their names. Bestor et al. v. Powell, 2 G. 119.

Bogardus made a conveyance to Underhill; the deed contained the following clause: "do hereby grant, sell and convey unto said Underhill all my right and interest in and to" (the land, describing it) "to have and to hold the same, unto the said Underhill, his heirs and assigns forever." At the time of the conveyance, Bogardus had no title, but subsequently acquired it. The after acquired title enures to the benefit of Underhill. Frisby et al. v. Ballance et al., 2 G. 145. Contra, Frink v. Darst, 14 Ill. 304.

The following acknowledgment of a deed, under the act of Jan. 31, 1827, was held sufficient:

"STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
Morgan County, } ss. Personally came Thomas Arnett, (who to me is personally known to be the same person that executed this deed, and the identical Thomas Arnett of said county,) before me, the undersigned, an acting justice of the peace within and for the said county, and acknowledged the foregoing deed to be his voluntary act and deed, for the uses and purposes in said deed mentioned." McConnell v. Reed, 2 S. 373.

A deed imperfectly acknowledged may be proved by a subscribing witness. Idem.

Under the recording laws of 1827 and 1829, the first of which requires the deed to be recorded within twelve, and the latter within six, months, to make the same effective as against bona fide purchasers, it is sufficient if it be shown that the subsequent purchaser had notice of the first deed, whether the same is recorded or not. If he had such notice, he is not a bona fide purchaser. Robinson v. Rouan, 2 S. 500.

A deed properly acknowledged may be read in evidence without further proof of its execution. McConnell v. Johnson, 2 S. 523.

Under the territorial laws of Sept. 17, 1807, it was unnecessary that the officer taking the acknowledgment of a deed should certify that the party executing the same was personally known to him. Russell v. Whiteside, 4 S. 11.

A mere quit-claim deed of a party's interest in land, conveys only the interest of such party at the time of the conveyance, and will not affect the title of a prior purchaser claiming under an unrecorded deed. McConnell v. Reed, 4 S. 117.

Possession of land is notice to a purchaser, of the possessor's title. Idem.

As between the grantor and grantee the title passes upon the execution and delivery of the deed; but as between the grantee and third persons purchasing without notice, it takes effect only from the time of recording. Doyle et al. v. Teas et al., 4 S. 252.

"STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
Peoria County, } ss. Personally appeared before the undersigned, an acting justice of the peace, the above-named mortgagor, who is personally known to me to be the identical person who executed said mortgage, and who acknowledged the same as his free act and deed, for the purposes therein expressed. A. M. HUNT, J. P. [SEAL.]" is a sufficient acknowledgment under the act of Jan. 31, 1827; being a substantial compliance with the provisions of the statute. Livingston v. Kettle, 1 G. 116.

A deed acknowledged before a commissioner residing without this State, may be read in evidence, without any proof of the official character of such commissioner. Vance v. Schuyler, 1 G. 160; Thompson v. Schuyler, 2 G. 271; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402.

His certificate need not be under seal, nor dated. Idem.
 An acknowledgment commencing "Lincoln ss. Wiscasset," with no further statement as to locality, is insufficient. Vance v. Schuyler, 1 G. 160.

The registry laws do not apply to patents or to auditor's deeds. Either may be read in evidence without being recorded or without proof of their execution. Graves et al. v. Bruen et al., 1 G. 167; Thompson v. Schuyler, 2 G. 271; Rhinehart v. Schuyler, 2 G. 473.

Where the execution of a deed by a subscribing witness is sought to be proved, the certificate must show that the witness was known to the officer to be the person who, as such witness, subscribed the deed. The mere statement that the witness was known to the officer is insufficient. The statement of the person testifying as to the execution of the deed, is not proof of his identity by a credible witness as required by the statute. Job et al. v. Tebbetts, 4 G. 143.

The certificate of the officer in such case need not state that the person who proves the identity of the subscribing witness is competent and credible; this will be presumed. Idem.

In taking proof of the hand-writing of grantors to a deed, it will be sufficient for the witness to state that he had frequently seen and well knew their signatures, in business transactions. Idem.

When the deed is sought to be proved by any other than the subscribing witness, the statute requires the preliminary proof that the grantor and subscribing witness are dead or cannot be had. Idem. Dubitatur. See Job v. Tebbetts, 5 G. 376.

In a certificate of proof of the execution of a deed by proof of the hand-writing of a subscribing witness, the statement that he was well acquainted with the subscribing witness, is equivalent to a statement that he personally knew him. Delawny v. Burnett, 4 G. 454.

The certificate need not state that the witness is competent and credible. Idem.

A certificate of acknowledgment of a deed by a feme covert, to convey her own lands, is essential to the validity of a deed. Marriner v. Saunders, 5 G. 113.

If a subscribing witness to a deed resided without the jurisdiction of the court, he need not be produced. Idem.

In taking proof of the execution of a deed by a subscribing witness, the officer states, "this day personally appeared Samuel L. McGill, a subscribing witness to the within deed, (who was to me made known by the oath of Isaac Prickett, a credible witness,) and who, being by me duly sworn, etc.:" Held, that it sufficiently appeared from the certificate that McGill was a subscribing witness to the deed. Reece v. Allen, 5 G. 236.

A certificate of proof of the execution of a deed, by proving the hand-writing of the grantor and the subscribing witness, where such grantor and witness are dead, or without the jurisdiction of the court, is sufficient to entitle the deed to be recorded, and to be read in evidence without evidence alunde, of the death or absence of such grantor or witness. Job v. Tebbetts, 5 G. 376.

"STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
Madison County, } ss. On this 18th day of June, A. D. 1836, personally appeared before the undersigned, a justice of the peace in and for the county aforesaid, James S. Law and Margaret B. Law, his wife, known to me to be the identical persons described in, and who executed the within deed, and acknowledged that they severally signed, sealed and delivered the same, as their free acts and deeds, for the uses and purposes therein mentioned; and the said Margaret B. Lane, being by me made acquainted with the contents of the within deed, and being by me examined separate and apart from her husband, acknowledged that she executed the same freely and voluntarily, without any compulsion of her husband, and that she relinquishes her dower in the lands and tenements hereby conveyed. All which I hereby certify under my hand and seal, the day and year last above written. WILLIAM MARTIN, J. P. [SEAL.]"

Held, that the foregoing acknowledgment was sufficient to convey the real estate of the wife in one tract of land, and her right of dower in another, both tracts being included in the deed. Hughes et al. v. Lane, 11 Ill. 123.

The words, "and does not wish to retract," are no part of the acknowledgment, but are intended for the benefit of the feme covert, that she may, if she desires, retract, when the contents of the deed are explained to her. Idem.

Under the recording law of 1819, a notary public, residing out of the State, had no authority to take the acknowledgment of a deed conveying land within this State. Choteau v. Jones et al., 11 Ill. 300.

Two deeds for the same land to different purchasers were recorded prior to the passage of the act of Dec. 30, 1822. Neither was acknowledged so as to entitle them to be recorded. The title passed to the first grantee. Noakes v. Martin, 15 Ill. 118.

A recorded deed takes precedence of a prior levy by attachment, unrecorded. Gaty v. Pitman, 11 Ill. 20.

Under the act of Jan. 22, 1829, a notary public had no power to take and certify the acknowledgment of a deed, except under his official seal. Mason v. Brock, 12 Ill. 273.

To defeat the title of a subsequent purchaser, claiming under a deed first recorded, notice of the prior unrecorded deed should be clear and positive. Rodgers et al. v. Wiley, 14 Ill. 65.

"STATE OF MISSOURI, }
County of St. Louis, } ss. This day personally appeared before me, the undersigned, clerk of the circuit court within and for the county of St. Louis, Rufus Easton, who acknowledged the foregoing deed or instrument of writing to be his act and deed, hand and seal, for the purposes therein contained. Given under my hand and seal of office at St. Louis, this 5th day of November, 1821.

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, CLERK,
 By E. BAKER, Deputy Clerk."

[SEAL.]
 Held, that the certificate was sufficient. Hope v. Sawyer, 14 Ill. 254.

A purchaser from an heir, under the recording laws, is a subsequent purchaser, within the meaning of the act. Kennedy v. Northrup et al., 15 Ill. 149; Rupert et al. v. Mark, 15 Ill. 540.

A deed acknowledged out of this territory, under the provisions of the act of Sept. 17, 1807, must have a certificate attached, with an official seal, showing the official character of the officer before whom the acknowledgment was taken. Buckmaster et al. v. Job, 15 Ill. 323.

There is no presumption that the laws of a territory authorize a justice of the peace to take the acknowledgment of deeds; this is a matter of fact to be proved. Idem.

The certificate of the governor of a territory, not under seal, furnishes no evidence of the official character of a justice of the peace. Idem.

Notice of the existence of an unrecorded deed is as effectual against a subsequent purchaser as though the deed was actually recorded. Rupert et al. v. Mark, 15 Ill. 541.

Possession of land is notice to a subsequent purchaser of the possessor's title. So, whatever is sufficient to put a purchaser on inquiry. Idem. See also Williams v. Brown, 14 Ill. 200.

A feme covert cannot, except by express statute, convey her title to real estate. Lane v. Souard, 15 Ill. 123.

From the time the Revised Statutes of 1845 took effect, till the passage of the act of Feb. 22, 1847, there was no law authorizing a feme covert, residing out of this State, to convey her land lying in this State. Idem.

(1.) SECTION I. Whenever the white male residents of lawful age of any town in this State, having not less than one hundred and fifty inhabitants, shall wish to become incorporated for the better regulation of their internal police, it shall be lawful for the said residents who may have resided six months therein, or who shall be the owner of any freehold property therein, to assemble themselves together in public meeting at the court house or other place in said town, and when so assembled, they may proceed to choose a president and clerk of the meeting from among their number, both of whom shall be sworn or affirmed, by any person authorized to administer oaths, faithfully to discharge the trust in them as president and clerk of said meeting: Provided, however, That at least ten days' notice of the time and place of holding such meeting shall have been previously given by advertising in some newspaper of the town, or by setting up written notices in at least three of the most public places in such town.

(2.) SEC. II. The residents, as aforesaid, of any town having assembled as directed in the first section of this division, may proceed to decide by vote, viva voce, whether they will be incorporated or not, and the president or clerk, after their votes are given in, shall certify under their hands, the number of votes in favor of being incorporated and the number against being incorporated; and if it shall appear that two-thirds of the voters present are in favor of being incorporated, the president and clerk shall deliver a certificate of the state of the polls to the board of trustees, to be elected as hereinafter provided.

(3.) SEC. III. Whenever the qualified voters of any town shall have decided in the manner herein provided, that they wish to be incorporated, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the meeting at which they may so decide, to give at least five days' previous public notice to the said voters to assemble at the court house or some other public place in such town, on a day to be named in such notice, to elect by viva voce vote, five residents and freeholders of such town, for trustees of the same, who shall hold their office for one year, and until other trustees are chosen and qualified; at which first election the president and clerk of the first meeting shall preside, or in case of the absence of either of them, some suitable person shall be appointed by the electors present to fill such vacancy or vacancies. And at every succeeding election for president and trustees, the preceding board of trustees shall direct the manner in which the same shall be conducted.

(4.) SEC. IV. The board of trustees of any town elected agreeably to the provisions of this division, shall choose a president out of their own body; and the president and trustees aforesaid, and their successors in office, shall thenceforth be considered in law and equity a body corporate and politic, by the name and style of "the president and trustees of the town of ———;” and by such name and style shall be forever able and capable in law and equity to sue and be sued, to plead and be impleaded, to answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, in all manner of suits, actions, complaints, pleas, causes, matters and demands of whatever kind or nature they may be, in as full and effectual a manner as any person or persons, bodies corporate or politic, can or may do; and may have a common seal, and may alter the same at pleasure. The said president and trustees shall require their clerk to keep a fair journal and record of all their proceedings, and record all by-laws and ordinances which they may make, in a book to be provided for that purpose.

(5.) SEC. V. The president and trustees, or a majority of them, of any town incorporated as herein directed, shall have power to make, ordain and establish and execute such ordinances in writing, not inconsistent with the laws or the constitution of this State, as they shall deem necessary to prevent and remove nuisances, to restrain and prohibit gambling or other disorderly conduct, and to prevent the running of and indecent exhibitions of horses within the bounds of such town; to provide for licensing public shows; to regulate and establish markets; to sink and keep in repair public wells; to keep open and in repair the streets and alleys of such town, by making pavements or sidewalks as to them may seem needful: Provided, always, That the lot in front of which any sidewalk is made, shall be taxed to pay at least one-half of the expenses of making such sidewalk. The said president and trustees shall also have power to provide such means as they may deem necessary to protect such town from injuries by fires. And for the purpose of carrying the aforesaid power into effect, the said president and trustees shall have power to define the boundaries of such town: Provided, That the same shall not exceed one mile square; and to levy and collect annually a tax on all the real estate in such town, not exceeding fifty cents on every hundred dollars of assessment valuation thereof.

(6.) SEC. VI. It shall be the duty of the said president and trustees to cause all the streets and alleys of such town, and all the public roads passing from and through such town, for one mile from the centre thereof, to be kept in good repair: and to this end they are authorized to require every male resident of such town, over the age of twenty-one years, to labor in said streets, alleys and roads, at least three days in each and every year; and if such labor shall be insufficient, to appropriate so much of the tax levied on real estate as may be necessary to keep the said streets, alleys and roads in repair, and also to appoint and prescribe the duty of all such officers, for such town, as they may deem necessary to carry into effect the foregoing powers. The collectors of the corporation tax, and the treasurer, shall severally give bond, made payable to the president and trustees, and their successors in office, with good and sufficient securities, in such sum as may, by said president and trustees, be deemed advisable; and a clause shall be inserted, that if at any time additional security be required, the same shall be given; the conditions of which bonds shall be, that the officer shall faithfully perform the duties of his office; and said officers shall remain in office one year, (unless sooner removed,) and until others shall be appointed, and shall have given bonds.

(7.) SEC. VII. The said president and trustees elected under this division, shall continue in office for one year, and until their successors shall be elected and qualified. All fines collected in pursuance of this division, shall, by the officer collecting the same, be paid over to the treasury of the corporation; and for an omission to do so, such officer may be proceeded against by the president and trustees, in an action of debt for the same.

(9.) SEC. IX. And the land intended to be for streets, alleys, ways, commons or other public uses, in any town or city, or addition thereto, shall be held in the corporate name thereof, in trust to and for the uses and purposes set forth and expressed or intended.

(22.) SEC. XXII. If the county in which said town or addition is situated shall not be organized, then and in that case, the plat or map shall be recorded in the recorder's office of that county to which the county in which said town is situated shall at the time be attached for judicial purposes.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. Where any town, addition or subdivision of out-lots has been heretofore laid out and lots sold in this State, either by county agents, commissioners or other persons, and a plat or map of the same has not been acknowledged and recorded as required by law, it shall be the duty, and it is hereby required, of the present county commissioners, or a majority of them in such county, or other person or persons, proprietors who have laid out the same, or his, her or their legal representatives, to have the same fairly, fully and clearly made out, certified, acknowledged and recorded in the proper county, in the form and manner required by this division, noting and particularly describing the donations of land or otherwise to individuals, societies, bodies politic, or for common or public uses: Provided, That if the lots shall have been differently numbered and sales made, and they cannot well be changed, they shall be returned as originally stated; but in all other respects the plat or map shall conform to the provisions of this division; and if any county commissioner or commissioners, or other person or persons, whose duty it is to comply with the requisitions in this section named, shall neglect or refuse so to do, he or they shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars for each and every month he or they shall delay a compliance.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. If any county commissioners, or other person or persons, shall hereafter lay out any town or addition to any town or city, and neglect to plant the corner stones therein, or cause the same to be surveyed and planted in any other manner than that which is prescribed in this division, every person so offending shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars.

be satisfied that the provisions of this division have been violated and a forfeiture incurred, to bring suit and prosecute for the same.

(28.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That in all cases where persons have heretofore, or may hereafter, lay out towns, or additions to towns, or subdivisions of town lots, and the plats or maps thereof shall have been recorded, they, their heirs, assigns or grantees, may, at any time before making sale of any single lot or lots, by executing a writing, and causing the same to be recorded in the office in which the plat or map was recorded, declare such map or plat to be vacated; and the execution and recording of such writing shall operate to destroy the force and effect of the recording of the plat or map so vacated, and to divest all public rights in the streets, alleys, commons, and public grounds, laid down or described in such plat or map; and in cases where any single lot or lots have been sold, the plat or map may be vacated, as herein provided, by all the owners of lots joining in the execution of the writing aforesaid: Provided, that no such writing shall be recorded until the execution thereof shall have been acknowledged or proved, as is or may be required in respect to deeds.

(30.) SEC. III. Any part of a plat or map of a town, addition or subdivision, may be vacated under the provisions and subject to the conditions herein contained.

An Act for the Relief of the Inhabitants of Incorporated Towns.

[Approved March 1, 1847. Laws, 1847, p. 167.]

WHEREAS the county commissioners' courts of many of the counties in this State, acting under the provisions of the road law, have assessed a road tax upon the taxable property within their respective counties, without excluding from the operation of said tax, property situated in and owned by inhabitants of incorporated towns; AND WHEREAS most of the acts incorporating the inhabitants of towns, require such inhabitants to keep all the public roads passing from and through their said towns in repair, for the distance of one mile from the centre thereof, and in consequence thereof said towns are not included in any county road district, but the inhabitants thereof pay for keeping the roads in repair, under the operation of the by-laws of the corporation, and it being manifestly unjust to require the inhabitants of towns so situated to pay double taxes for road purposes; therefore—incorporated towns, the inhabitants of which are required to keep the roads passing through and from their said towns in repair, said tax shall be and the same is hereby released.

(32.) SEC. II. Hereafter, in assessing the road tax by county commissioners' courts, property situated within the limits of incorporated towns, the inhabitants of which are required to keep the roads in repair, as mentioned in the first section of this act, shall be excluded from the operation of the order assessing said tax.

(34.) SEC. II. The corporate authorities of any city or town in this State may have power to declare what shall be a nuisance, and to prevent and remove the same as much as one-half mile beyond the limits of the corporation, with full power to impose a fine for a violation of any ordinance to that effect.

(35.) SEC. III. Whenever it may be necessary to pave or grade any street or front lots, or to fill up or alter any lot that may be declared to be a nuisance, said corporate authorities may have power, upon the failure of the owner of any lot to pave, grade or fill up said lot, or to pay the taxes or fines that may be assessed on the owner or owners thereof, to require that said lot, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be sold for the payment of the tax or fine and cost, in the manner authorized for the collection of other taxes; and all assessments so made shall constitute a lien on said lot.

(36.) SEC. IV. The corporate authorities of all towns and cities incorporated under chapter twenty-five, entitled "Corporations," of the revised code, or under any special act, shall have power to pass all the ordinances and by-laws, and possess all the powers authorized under the laws and amendatory acts incorporating either of the cities of Springfield or Quincy: Provided, That towns containing a population of less than fifteen hundred white inhabitants, shall have no other officers or allow any other compensation than is allowed under chapter twenty-five of the revised code, unless expressly authorized by law.

(37.) SEC. V. The inhabitants in any town containing a population of not less than fifteen hundred inhabitants, may be incorporated by the name and style of the "city of _____," when a majority of the legal voters thereof shall vote in favor of being incorporated as a city, at an election to be held at the court house, notice being given by being published for two weeks in succession in any newspaper published in said town, by the president and trustees of said town, or by giving such notice as may be prescribed under an ordinance passed by the president and trustees of said town.

All the articles and provisions in either of the acts incorporating Quincy or Springfield, prescribing the duties of the president and trustees, ordering an election of city officers, prescribing the powers of the city, of the city council, executive officers, elections, legislative powers of the city council, of the mayor, proceedings in special cases, and miscellaneous provisions, shall be the rule by which the corporate authorities of any city incorporated under the provisions of this act shall be governed: Provided, No city incorporated under this act shall be exempt from the payment of county tax, nor be required to support the paupers.

(39.) SEC. VII. The boundaries of any city incorporated under this act may include one mile square, and any tract of land adjoining, laid off into town lots and duly recorded as required by law, and any tract of land adjoining said city, with the consent of the owner thereof, within the limits of one-half mile from the boundary of said city.

(40.) SEC. VIII. The inhabitants of any town or city, in the corporate name, may purchase, receive and hold real estate beyond the limits as [of] their corporate limits for the purpose of burying grounds.

The collector shall receive the same compensation for collecting the taxes for any town or city, as is allowed for the collection of the State and county revenue, to be paid out of the funds of the corporation; and he shall be liable on his bond for the faithful performance of the duties required under this act.

(42.) SEC. X. This act to take effect from and after its passage.

(127.) SEC. II. Whenever any person, or association of persons, formed for the purpose of banking under the provisions of this act, shall lawfully transfer to and deposit with the auditor any portion of the public stock issued, or to be issued, by the United States, or any State stocks on which full interest is annually paid, or the stocks of this State—the latter stocks to be valued at a rate twenty per centum less in value than the market price of such stocks, to be estimated and governed by the average rate at which such stocks have been sold in the city of New York, within the previous six months preceding the time when such stocks may be left on deposit with the auditor; and in no case shall the auditor issue bills for banking purposes, on bonds of this or any other State, on which less than six per cent. is not regularly paid, unless there shall be deposited with him at least two dollars in bonds, exclusive of the interest, for every dollar in bills so issued. Such person, or association of persons, shall be entitled to receive from the auditor an equal amount of such circulating notes, of different denominations, registered and countersigned as aforesaid; and it shall not be lawful for the auditor to take such stock at a rate above its par value: Provided, That stock shall in no instance be received by the auditor at a rate above the market value at the time of the deposit by said banker or association.

(128.) SEC. III. A descriptive list of the circulating notes so registered and signed, shall be delivered to the treasurer, who shall copy the same in the book hereinafter required to be kept by him, for recording descriptive lists of securities deposited with him for safe keeping.

(129.) SEC. IV. (130.) SEC. V. Three descriptive lists of the securities transferred to the auditor as aforesaid, shall be made and signed by the auditor and persons making the transfer, one in a well-bound book, to be kept by the auditor for that purpose, one in a like book to be kept by the treasurer, and one in a book to be kept by the association; and said securities shall then be delivered to the treasurer for safe keeping, who shall receipt to the auditor for the same, and shall be responsible for any loss or destruction thereof, growing out of or resulting from negligence, or the want of reasonable precaution and care. The whole or any part of said securities may be re-delivered to the auditor, for the purposes of being sold under the provisions of this act, or being used or disposed of under any order or decree of court, or of being returned to the owner, in conformity with the provisions of this act: the auditor, in either case, giving a receipt upon the book kept by the treasurer aforesaid, specifying therein the purpose for which such re-delivery was made; which receipt shall discharge the treasurer from all further responsibility.

(131.) SEC. VI. First. The name assumed to distinguish such association, and to be used in its dealings.

Third. The amount of capital stock, and the number of shares into which the same shall be divided.

Fourth. The names and residence of the shareholders, and the number of shares held by each of them respectively.

Fifth. The period at which such association shall commence and terminate: which certificate shall be acknowledged and recorded in the office of the recorder of the county where any office of such association shall be established, and a copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the secretary of State and the auditor of State; and upon the recording of which certificate the person or association of persons aforesaid shall become a body politic and corporate, by the name assumed as aforesaid, for and during the time fixed in the certificate, and by such name shall have power to make contracts: to grant and receive; to sue and be sued; to plead and be impleaded in all courts and places wherein legal or judicial proceedings may be had: to have and use a common seal, and alter the same at pleasure; to have, hold, use and enjoy property, real, personal and mixed, with the rents, issues and profits thereof; and to exercise all other powers conferred by this act; and all grants or conveyances of real estate shall be under the seal of the corporation, signed by the president, and countersigned by the cashier.

(133.) SEC. VIII. A copy of the certificate required by the preceding section of this act, duly certified by the recorder of the county and secretary of State, or by either of those officers, may be used as evidence in all courts and places against any such association, or any other person for or against whom any such evidence may be necessary, on any civil or criminal trial.

(134.) SEC. IX. Such associations shall have power to carry on the business of banking, by discounting bills, notes, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling gold and silver bullion, foreign coins and bills of exchange; by loaning money on real and personal securities, and by exercising such incidental powers as may be necessary to carry on such business; may choose one of their number as president, and appoint a cashier and such other officers and agents as their business may require.

(135.) SEC. X. The shares of said association shall be deemed personal property, subject to taxation, and shall be transferable on the books of the association, in such manner as may be agreed on in the articles of association; and every person becoming a shareholder by such transfer, shall, in proportion to his shares, succeed to all the rights and liabilities of shareholders by whom the transfer was made. No change shall be made in the articles of association, or of the shareholders or members thereof, by which the right, remedies or securities of its existing creditors shall be impaired. Such association shall not be dissolved by the death or insanity of any of the shareholders therein, when there is more than one shareholder in such association. Taxes shall be levied on and paid by the corporation, and not upon the individual stockholders; the value of the property to be ascertained annually by the bank commissioners herein provided for; and the rate of taxation shall be the same as that required to be levied on other taxable property by the revenue laws of the State.

(136.) SEC. XI. Contracts made by any such association, and all notes and bills by them issued and put in circulation as money, shall be signed by the president and cashier thereof; and all suits, actions and proceedings, brought or prosecuted by or in behalf of such association, may be brought or prosecuted in the name of the corporation; and no such suit, action or proceeding shall abate by reason of the death, resignation or removal from office of any president, but may be continued and prosecuted according to such rules as the court of law and equity may direct.

(137.) SEC. XII. Any persons having demands against any such association, may maintain actions against the corporation; which suits or actions shall not abate by reason of the death, resignation or removal from office of any president, but may be continued and prosecuted to judgment against the corporation; and all judgments and decrees obtained against such corporation, for any debt or liability of such association, shall be enforced against the property of the same, except such judgments or decrees as may be obtained against shareholders as herein provided.

(138.) SEC. XIII. The auditor may give to any person or association of persons, so transferring stocks in pursuance of the provisions of this act, power of attorney to receive interest or dividends thereon, and apply the same to their own use; but such powers may be revoked, upon such person or association failing to redeem the circulating notes so issued, or whenever, in the opinion of the auditor, the principal of such stock shall become insufficient security; and the auditor may, upon the application of the owner or owners of such stock, re-transfer to such owner or owners, upon receiving and canceling an equal amount of such circulating notes, delivered to him by each person or association, in such manner that the circulating notes shall always be secured in full by the pledge of stocks; which circulating notes, after descriptive lists thereof have been made and recorded by the auditor and treasurer, shall, in presence of these officers, be consumed by burning.

(139.) SEC. XIV. In case such person or association of persons shall fail or refuse to pay any bill or note on demand, in the manner specified in the eighteenth section of this act, the auditor, after ten days' notice given in two newspapers printed in the city of New York, therein mentioned, may proceed to sell, at public auction, in the city of New York, the public stock so pledged, or such portion as may be necessary, and out of the proceeds of such sale shall cancel and pay the said bill or note, default in paying which shall have been made as aforesaid; but nothing in this act contained shall be considered as implying any pledge on the part of the State for the payment of said bills or notes, beyond the proper application of the securities pledged to the auditor for their redemption.

(140.) SEC. XV. The public stock to be deposited with the auditor by any such person or association, shall be, first, for the redemption of bills or notes of such person or association, put in circulation as money, until the same is paid; second, for the payment of all other liabilities, and the excess for the use of stockholders.

(141.) SEC. XVI. The plate, dies and materials to be provided by the auditor for the printing and marking of the notes provided for hereby, shall remain in his custody and under his direction; and the expense incurred in executing the provisions of this act, shall be audited and settled by the auditor, and paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and for the purpose of reimbursing the same, the said auditor is authorized and required to charge against and receive from such person or association applying for such circulating notes, such rate per cent. thereon as may be sufficient for that purpose.

(142.) SEC. XVII. It shall not be lawful for the auditor, or other officer, to countersign bills or notes for any person or association, to any amount, in the aggregate exceeding the public stock deposited with the auditor by such person or association, as provided in the second section of this act; and any auditor or other officer who shall violate the provisions of this section, shall, upon conviction, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not less than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than five years in the penitentiary.

(143.) SEC. XVIII. Every association under the provisions of this act, shall be liable to pay the holder of every bill or note put in circulation as money, the payment of which shall have been demanded and refused, damages for the non-payment thereof, in lieu of interest, at the rate of twelve and one-half per cent. per annum, from the time of such refusal until the payment of such evidence of debt and the damage thereon. The president and cashier of every association formed pursuant to the provisions of this act, shall keep a true and correct list of the names of all the shareholders of such association, and shall file a copy of such list in the office of the clerk of the county where any office of such association may be located, and also in the office of the auditor, on the first Monday in January, in every year.

(144.) SEC. XIX. It shall not be lawful for any association under this act, to make any of its bills or notes put in circulation as money, payable at any other place than at the office where the business of the association is carried on and conducted.

(145.) SEC. XX. No banking association or individual banker shall issue or put in circulation any bills or notes of such association or banker, unless the same shall be made payable on demand. And every such association or bankers shall always keep on hand a sufficient amount of specie to redeem all such bills or notes as may be presented at the place of payment.

(146.) SEC. XXI. It shall be the duty of the auditor to receive mutilated notes issued by him and re-deliver, in lieu thereof, other circulating notes, to the same amount. And two descriptive lists of such mutilated notes so received, and of notes re-delivered, shall be made; one to be retained by the auditor, the other by the treasurer, and copied in each office on the book kept for the purpose of recording descriptive lists of securities; and all such mutilated notes shall, at the time they are received, be consumed by burning, in the presence of said officers.

(147.) SEC. XXII. All grants, conveyances, assignments, transfers, sales, or other disposition of property, rights, credits or effects by any such corporation, for the purpose or with intent to secure the payment of one liability in preference to another or others, or in any manner to secure any priority or preference to any one or more creditors, or which shall be intended to have such operation or effect, shall be void in respect to all other persons and creditors whose rights or remedies may be affected thereby.

(148.) SEC. XXIII. It shall be lawful for such association to purchase, hold and convey real estate for the following purposes:

1st. Such as shall be necessary for its immediate accommodation, banking-houses, and buildings connected therewith in the transaction of its business.

2nd. Such as shall be mortgaged to it in good faith, by way of security for loans made by and money due to such association.

3rd. Such as shall be conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.

4th. Such as it shall purchase at sales under judgments, decrees or mortgages held by such association, and at sales under judgments and decrees in favor of others, where it is done with a sole view of securing and saving debts due or to become due to such corporation.

(149.) SEC. XXIV. The said association shall not purchase, hold or convey real estate in any other case or for any other purpose whatever; and all conveyances of such real estate shall be made to the corporation, and which the president and cashier, or either, may sell, assign, grant or convey, under the direction of the association, free from any claim thereon in favor of or against the shareholders, or any person claiming under them.

(150.) SEC. XXV. Upon the application of the auditor, the shareholders of any such association, whose debts or shares shall amount to three thousand dollars, and stating facts, verified by affidavit, the judge of the circuit court of the county in which the business of the association may be conducted, may order an examination to be made by any competent person or persons, to be by him appointed, of the affairs of such association, for the purpose of ascertaining the safety of its investments and the prudence of its management; and the result of such examination, together with the opinion of the judge thereon, shall be published in such manner as he shall direct, and who shall make such order in respect to the expenses of such examination and publication as he may deem proper.

(151.) SEC. XXVI. In case the maker or makers of any such circulating notes, countersigned and registered as aforesaid, shall, at any time hereafter, on lawful demand, during the usual hours of business, between the hours of ten and three o'clock, at the place where such note or notes is or are payable, fail or refuse to redeem them, in the lawful money of the United States, the holder of such note or notes making such demand, may cause the same to be protested for non-payment, by a notary public, in the usual manner, and the auditor, on receiving and filing in his office such protest, shall forthwith give notice, in writing, to the association or banker, the maker or makers of such notes, to pay the same, and if he or they shall omit to do so, the auditor shall immediately thereupon, (unless such association or banker shall satisfy him by affidavits filed in his office that they or he had a good defense, as against the person presenting the same, to a recovery thereof,) give notice in at least one paper printed (if any paper is so printed or published) at the place of business of such person or persons, bank or association, so refusing payment of any notes, (and in one newspaper published at the seat of government of the State of Illinois,) that all the circulation issued by such person or association will be redeemed out of the trust funds belonging to the maker or makers of such protested note, to the payment, pro rata, of all such circulating notes, whether protested or not, and to adopt such measures for the payment of such notes as will, in his opinion, most effectually prevent loss to the holders thereof. And so soon as any such note shall be protested as aforesaid, a copy of such protest shall be delivered to the president, cashier or principal clerk, at the office or place of business of the association. The powers and duties of any such association or banker over or with the same, shall cease and determine, and all the officers connected with the same shall be prohibited from exercising any control whatever over the same, unless by the decision or decree of the court in which proceedings may be had for the appointment of receivers and winding up the affairs of the association, it shall be determined that such association was not bound to pay the note or bill protested as aforesaid, the protest thereof to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, That the legal existence of the corporation shall continue for purposes or proceedings in courts for and against the same, and of avoiding the loss of property of any kind, for want of a person in being to hold the same, but for no other purpose whatever. And it shall be the duty of the auditor to apply to any judge of the circuit court of this State, whose duty it shall be to appoint (a disinterested person or persons) a receiver or receivers, to take the assets and property of every such banker or association into his or their possession, and collect debts due, and apply all such assets and property as may come into his or their possession, under the direction of the circuit court of the county in which the corporation was located—first, to the redemption or payment of circulating notes; second, to the payment of all other indebtedness; and third, to the payment of stockholders on account of stocks invested. Receivers appointed under the provisions of this act shall give bond and security as may be required by the judge or court appointing them.

(152.) SEC. XXVII. That the distribution and application of all the means, assets and property of any such banker or association, as shall come into the hands of any such receiver or receivers, or as shall be in the hands of the auditor, shall first be applied in payment and satisfaction of all notes issued as and for a circulating medium, by any such banker or association.

(153.) SEC. XXVIII. The amount of stock owned and held by any individual banker, or by any stockholder in any such association, shall be held and controlled by the receiver or receivers as aforesaid, for the payment of any note put in circulation; the said liability to continue for the space of six months after the assignment by him of any such stock; and any stockholder, who is really the party in interest, shall be liable as aforesaid, although such stock may be held and recovered in the name of some other party or individual.

(154.) SEC. XXIX. The names of all stockholders in any such association shall be written at length, and in legible characters, and shall be continually exposed, during banking hours, for public inspection; and every transfer of stock, with the date of assignment, shall be exhibited in like manner.

(155.) SEC. XXX. That each and all the provisions of this act shall apply to and control, in all respects, any banker who shall conduct business under the provisions of this law, whether the word banker is or is not used in any such provision.

(156.) SEC. XXXI. At the next session of the general assembly after this act takes effect, and every fourth year thereafter, the governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint three citizens of the State as bank commissioners, whose duties shall be to make annual examination in respect to the affairs and business of associations incorporated under the provisions of this act, and in respect to the condition and management thereof, and also to inspect the securities filed with the auditor and treasurer, so as to be able to determine whether or not any change has been made in said securities, as well as in respect to the sufficiency of such securities to meet the liabilities of the corporation, and to report thereon to the auditor and to each corporation. Such commissioners shall have power to examine all books, papers and documents appertaining to the business of the corporation, and to swear or affirm all officers, agents and others connected with the corporation, in respect to any matter or thing about which they have the right to inquire, and their reports shall be published at the seat of government, and such other papers as they may direct.

(157.) SEC. XXXII. If the said bank commissioners shall ascertain, upon any examination which they may make, that any change has been made in the securities deposited with the treasurer, or that any part thereof has been lost, destroyed or improperly withdrawn, or in any way or manner misused or misapplied, or that securities have from any cause become lessened in value or insufficient as security for the redemption of bills or circulation, they shall notify the president and cashier of such association or corporation liable to be affected by any such state of facts, of the discovery thereof, and require the transfer and deposit of other securities, of like kind and value with those originally transferred, to supply the place of those changed, lost, destroyed or improperly withdrawn, or which shall have become insufficient security as aforesaid, in a reasonable time, to be fixed by said commissioners; or that said association or corporation surrender to the auditor, to be burned, a sufficient amount of bills to reduce the liability of such association to such sum as that the securities in possession of the treasurer, will be sufficient for the redemption of all bills or notes not so surrendered; and in case of any failure to comply with any such requisition, the commissioners shall report the facts to the auditor, as well as to all the other associations incorporated under the provisions of this act; and the auditor shall thereupon proceed to put such defaulting association or corporation into liquidation, as provided for in cases of failure to redeem or pay notes or bills on demand.

(158.) SEC. XXXIII. Any two of said bank commissioners shall constitute a quorum to transact business.

(159.) SEC. XXXIV. Every banking association or individual banker who shall hereafter carry on banking business under the provisions of this act, shall make out and transmit to the auditor of State a full statement of its affairs, as they existed on the first Monday of January, April, July and October of each year, verified by the oath of its president and cashier; which statement shall be deposited in the office of said auditor, by the twentieth day of each of said months in each year; which statement shall be published, quarterly, in the nearest newspaper; and such statement shall contain—

1st. The amount of capital stock of the association or individual banker, paid in and invested according to law.

2nd. The value of the real estate, specifying what portion is occupied by the association or individual banker for the transaction of business.

3rd. The debts owing to the association or individual banker, and the date and amount of each bill or note discounted, and when the same was made payable.

4th. The amount of debts owing by the association or individual banker, and the amount deposited in other banks.

5th. The amount of notes or bills, then in circulation, of said association or banker; of loans and discounts, and specie on hand; what amount of notes of other banks is held by such banker or association.

6th. The amount of suspended debt held by such association or banker.

(160.) SEC. XXXV. Every association or individual banker that shall neglect or refuse to make out and transmit the statement required in the preceding section of this act, shall be restrained from the further prosecution of the banking business, and shall forthwith go into liquidation.

(161.) SEC. XXXVI. Whenever any individual banker or association, desirous of relinquishing the banking business, shall have redeemed at least ninety per cent. of their circulating notes, and shall produce a certificate of a deposit to his credit, in such bank as the auditor may approve, to an equal amount with the notes of such banker or association, it shall be lawful for the auditor to receive the same, and to give up all the securities theretofore deposited by such banker or association, for the redemption of the notes issued.

(162.) SEC. XXXVII. Such association or individual, after having complied with the provisions of the preceding section of this act, may give notice, for three years, in a paper published at the seat of government, and also in at least one paper published in the county where the said association or bank shall have been located, that all circulating notes issued by such association or banker must be presented at the auditor's office, within three years from the date of such notice, or that the funds deposited for the redemption of the notes will be given up to the bank or association; and on receiving satisfactory proof of the giving such notice for the time aforesaid, the auditor shall surrender, to the order of said association or banker, any securities which he may hold for the payment of any unredeemed notes of the said association or banker; such notice to be published at least three weeks in each six months of each year.

(163.) SEC. XXXVIII. That any such association or banker, doing business under the provisions of this act, shall not be authorized to take or receive exceeding seven per centum per annum as interest on any real or personal security; which interest may, in all cases, be received in advance; and in the computation of time, thirty days shall be a month, and twelve months a year.

Notes, bills, and all other evidences of indebtedness to corporations or associations organized according to the provisions of this act, falling due or maturing on the Sabbath, or on the Fourth of July, or on Christmas, or New Year's day, shall be deemed as due or as having matured on the day previous.

The stockholders in every corporation or association organized under the provisions of this act, shall be individually responsible to the amounts of their respective share or shares of stock for all of its indebtedness and liabilities of every kind, to the full intent provided for in the constitution of this State.

When the property, rights, credits, assets and effects of any corporation or association, put into liquidation under the provisions of this act, shall have been exhausted in the redemption of notes and payment of liabilities, and there shall remain unpaid any indebtedness or liability of any kind, any person having right or cause of action upon or on account of any such remaining indebtedness or liability, shall have remedy, in any court of record having jurisdiction, against the stockholders for the amount due upon such indebtedness or liability; and to enforce this remedy, any such person may institute and maintain any appropriate action or suit in equity against the corporation or association, and upon the trial of such action or the hearing of such suit, if judgment or decree is attained against the corporation or association, the court shall direct an issue or issues to be made in the cause, for the purpose of ascertaining and deciding upon the liability and extent thereof of each stockholder under and according to the provisions herein, and of the constitution; and upon the decision of such issue or issues, the court shall enter judgment or decree against each stockholder for the amount and to the extent of his, her or their liability so ascertained; upon which judgment executions may issue against the stockholders in succession, until the amount of the judgment against the corporation shall be paid or collected, or the liabilities of the stockholders extinguished; and payments or collections made upon judgments against stockholders, shall operate to extinguish the liability of such stockholders to the extent or amount of such payments or collection.

Judgments or decrees entered against stockholders, under the provisions of this act, shall stand and remain as security for the payment of any judgment or decree which may thereafter be obtained against the corporation under the provisions hereof; and when any such subsequent judgment or decree shall be obtained, the court shall order execution or executions to issue against stockholders liable to pay the same, until the amount shall be paid or collected, or the liabilities of stockholders shall be extinguished.

Whenever two or more judgments or decrees are obtained at the same term of the court in favor of different parties against any corporation, under the provision of the three foregoing sections, the aggregate amount of which shall exceed the amount for which the stockholders are liable, the court shall direct the amount collected to be divided between the said parties pro rata, or in proportion to the several amounts, and the same apportionment shall be made of money collected on any such judgments when the whole amount thereof cannot be collected.

Whenever any stockholders shall have paid the amount that he, she or they is or are liable, the court shall, on motion and proof of the facts of each payment, order satisfaction of the judgment, as against or in respect to such stockholder, to be entered of record.

(164.) SEC. XXXIX. At the general election to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, at all the usual places of holding elections in this State, for the election of senators and representatives to the general assembly, the question whether or not this act shall go into effect, or in any manner be in force, shall be submitted to the people, and if the same is approved by a majority of all the votes cast at said election for and against the same, it shall go into effect and be in force from and after the date of said election; otherwise it shall not go into effect or in any manner be in force.

(165.) SEC. XL. Every person voting at said election shall have the right to use a ticket or ballot, with the words written or printed thereon, "For the general banking law," or "Against the general banking law;" which words shall indicate the vote of the elector for or against the approval of this act; and upon canvassing and counting the votes, each clerk of the election shall carefully mark down the votes given upon said questions, in separate columns prepared for that purpose, headed "For the general banking law," "Against the general banking law," and the judges or board of election shall, in the certificate required to be given of the result of said election, include the number of votes given for and against the general banking law as aforesaid.

(166.) SEC. XLI. In making the abstracts of votes given at said election, as required by the election law, the clerks shall make separate abstracts of the votes given under the provisions of this act, which shall be on one sheet, a copy of which shall, without delay, be transmitted by mail or other safe conveyance to the office of the secretary of State, indorsed thereon by the clerk, "Abstract of votes for and against banking," or in words clearly indicating the contents of the paper; and the abstract so transmitted shall be opened and the votes canvassed in the time and manner, and by the officers provided for in relation to the election for representatives to congress; and if it should appear that a majority of the votes cast upon said question are for the general banking law as aforesaid, or if it shall appear that the majority of votes cast are against said law, the officers canvassing the votes, shall, under their hands, make a certificate of the facts, stating the number of votes given for and against said law, and file the same in the office of secretary of State, to be by him recorded and filed with the enrolled act to which it refers; and the said certificate or a copy thereof, certified by the secretary of State or keeper of enrolled laws, under the seal of office, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated; and upon the making and filing thereof, the secretary of State shall cause the same to be published, three weeks in succession, in two newspapers, published at the seat of government.

(167.) SEC. XLII. No corporation or association organized under the provisions of this act, shall exist longer than twenty-five years.

D. 1851, returned to the house of representatives, in which it originated, with his objections thereto in writing, and on the same day, being re-considered, passed the house of representatives and the senate, by a majority of all the members elected thereto respectively, and thereby became a law, the objections of the governor to the contrary notwithstanding.

An Act supplemental to and explanatory of an Act entitled "An Act to establish a General System of Banking," and to prevent the issuing and circulating of Illegal Currency.

(168.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the act to which this is supplementary shall be so construed that no person or persons shall become incorporated under the said act, until he, she or they shall first have deposited with the auditor United States or State stocks, as required by said act, so that the capital stock of the said incorporation shall amount, in such United States stocks or State stocks, at the rate and value fixed by said act, to the sum of fifty thousand dollars; and at no period during the existence of said bank shall the capital stock of the same, in stocks deposited as aforesaid, be less than the sum of fifty thousand dollars.

(169.) SEC. II. No bank, banking association, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or other person, shall emit, issue, utter, pay out, pass or receive in payment, or on deposit, any bill of credit, bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, order, draft, certificate of deposit, written instrument, or instrument partly written and partly printed, to be used as a general circulating medium, as or in lieu of money or other currency, or intended by the makers thereof to be so used, other than the bills or notes of banks of this State, countersigned in the auditor's office, according to the provisions of the act to establish a general system of banking, or the notes or bills, (of a denomination not less than five dollars,) of specie-paying banks, created by an express authority of law, in either of the United States, territories, the District of Columbia, or Canada. Every bank, banking association, corporation, broker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or other person, who shall violate the provisions of this section, shall forfeit and pay to any person or persons who may sue for the same, the sum of fifty dollars for each and every bill of credit, bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, order, draft, certificate of deposit or other instrument, so issued, uttered, paid out, passed or received, contrary to the provisions of this section, to be recovered in an action of debt before any justice, magistrate or court having jurisdiction, to the amount claimed in any such suit.

(170.) SEC. III. In addition to the penalties provided for in the foregoing section, every broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, and every officer, agent or employee, of any bank, banking association, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, who shall offend against the provisions of this act, shall, for every bill, bond, note, order, certificate of deposit, or other instrument or piece of paper emitted, issued, uttered, paid out, passed or received, contrary to the provisions of this act, be liable to be indicted, and, on conviction, shall be imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year. It shall not be necessary in any indictment, suit or prosecution, under the provisions of this act, to specify or particularize any particular bill, note, bond, order, certificate of deposit or other instrument, but it shall be sufficient to allege generally that the defendant or defendants have been guilty of violating the provisions of this act by uttering, emitting, paying out, passing or receiving, as the case may be, any such bill, note, bond, order, certificate of deposit or other instrument, of the character or description which, by this act, are forbidden or prohibited to be issued, passed or received, and proof of such general nature shall be sufficient to sustain such indictment, suit or prosecution.

(171.) SEC. IV. Whenever it shall be represented to any one of the bank commissioners, upon the oath or affirmation of any credible person, setting forth the facts, or whenever, from any information, any one of the said commissioners shall have reason to believe that any bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or any officer, clerk, agent or other employee, of any such bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, shall have been guilty of any violations of the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of such commissioner forthwith to proceed to the said bank, or place of business of such bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, officer, clerk, agent or employee, and then and there to inquire, by the oaths of the said broker, banker, dealer, officer, clerk, agent or employee, or other testimony, whether the said bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, officer, clerk, agent or employee, have been guilty of any violation of this act. The said bank commissioner shall have full power and authority to issue subpoenas and attachments to compel the attendance of witnesses before him, from any part of the State, and shall also have power and authority to administer all oaths and affirmations to parties, witnesses or others, required to be administered or taken by this act; and shall have power to compel such broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or any officer, clerk, agent or other employee, to answer all proper interrogatories propounded to him, her or them, touching any violation of the provisions of this act, and may commit any such person to jail, for refusal so to do, there to remain until such party consents to answer such interrogatory, or is otherwise discharged by due course of law. He shall reduce the said evidence and answers to writing, and report the same to the other bank commissioners, and also to the State's attorney for the judicial circuit in which the said bank, or other corporation, or the place of business of any such broker, banker, dealer, officer, clerk, agent or other employee, may be situated. And if the said commissioner shall be of opinion that any such banker, broker, dealer, officer, agent or employee, has been guilty of any violation of the provisions of this act, he shall make complaint before some judge, justice of the peace, or other proper officer, and the said judge, justice of the peace, or other officer, shall proceed against the person or persons named in said complaint, in all respects, as provided by the eighteenth division of chapter thirty of Revised Statutes, entitled "Criminal Jurisprudence;" and, for the purpose of compelling the attendance of witnesses, may issue subpoenas and attachments to any part of the State: Provided, That no answer made by any broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, officer, clerk, agent or employee, or any other person, upon any examination made by or before any bank commissioner, judge, justice of the peace, or other officer, touching any violation of this act, shall be given in evidence against him, her or them, on the trial of any indictment, suit or prosecution, for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture imposed or provided for by this act, or in any other writ or legal proceeding whatsoever.

(172.) SEC. V. In case the bank commissioners, or a majority of them, shall be satisfied that any bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or such officer, clerk, agent or employee, has been guilty of any violation of the provisions of this act, they shall immediately apply to some judge of a circuit or supreme court for a writ of injunction against such bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, such officer, clerk, agent or employee, forbidding and restraining him or them from violating any of the provisions of this act; and such judge, after reasonable notice given to such bank, corporation, banker, broker, dealer in money, produce or foreign merchandise, or such officer, clerk, agent or employee, shall proceed, without delay, to investigate the questions involved in such application, and shall have power to compel the production of all books, papers, vouchers and documents in the possession of the defendant or defendants, or cause and to require answers, on oath, from such defendant or defendants; which answers shall not be evidence on the trial of any other action or suit in law or equity; and if, upon such examination, he shall be of opinion that any of the provisions of this act have been violated, he shall issue such writ of injunction and enforce the same, in case it shall be disregarded, according to the practice of the courts of chancery; and such further proceedings shall be had upon such application in the circuit court of the county where the office or place of business of such bank, corporation, broker, banker, dealer, officer, clerk, agent or employee, may be situated, as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this act. And if it shall be finally determined by the judge or court that any of the provisions of this act have been violated, it shall, by order of the judge or court, be certified to the auditor, which shall be sufficient authority to him, and he shall proceed to put the said bank into liquidation, in the manner contemplated by this act, and the act to which this is a supplement.

(173.) SEC. VI. The bank commissioners to be appointed under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, faithfully and impartially to perform all the duties enjoined upon and required to be performed by them, under the provisions of this act and the act to which this is a supplement; which said oath or affirmation shall be filed in the office of the secretary of State.

(174.) SEC. VII. Every payment made, in whole or in part, in any bill, note, bond, order, draft, certificate of deposit, or other instrument or paper, the passing, uttering, emitting or use of which is prohibited by this act, shall be utterly null and void, and the persons or corporation to whom any such payment may have been made therein, may sue and recover upon the original contract or cause of action, in the same manner and with like effect as if no such payment had been made.

(175.) SEC. VIII. No action shall be maintained in any court of this State upon any contract, express or implied, the consideration of which, in whole or in part, shall be any bill, note, check, draft, or other instrument or paper, the use, receipt or emission of which is prohibited by this act, but the same shall be adjudged to be utterly null and void.

(176.) SEC. IX. In all prosecutions and suits for the recovery of penalties imposed for any violation of the provisions of this act, the person suing for the same, (notwithstanding he may be liable for, or may have given bond for the costs of such suit, or may be entitled to the said penalties when recovered,) and the defendant or defendants, shall be competent witnesses.

(177.) SEC. X. This act to be in force and take effect from and after the first day of August next.

An Act defining the Duties of the Auditor of Public Accounts relative to Banks going into Liquidation.

(178.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That whenever any person or association of persons, formed for the purpose of banking, under the provisions of "An act to establish a general system of banking," passed Feb. 15, 1851, has heretofore, or shall hereafter, be protested and go into liquidation, any person or corporation may return and deliver over to the auditor the circulating notes of such bank in sums of not less than one thousand dollars, which notes shall be canceled and destroyed in like manner as mutilated notes are required to be canceled and destroyed; and the auditor shall deliver to such person or corporation, or to their agent, an equal amount of the securities deposited by such bank: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall only apply in cases where the securities deposited have depreciated in value below the price at which they were deposited.

(179.) SEC. II. Any person or corporation desiring to exchange notes for securities, as provided for in the foregoing section, may do so at any time before the securities shall have been forwarded by the auditor for sale; and in no case shall the auditor forward any such securities for sale until after the expiration of twenty days from the publication of the notice required to be published by the twenty-sixth section of the general banking law of this State, nor until after the expiration of twenty days from the passage of this act. If, in the opinion of the auditor, the assets of the bank will not be sufficient to pay the whole amount of the notes outstanding, the person or corporation shall pay a pro rata share of the expenses incurred up to the date of making the exchange, in proportion to the amount of securities received by him or them.

(180.) SEC. III. The necessary expenses incurred by the auditor, in making demands of payment of notes protested, publishing notices, making application for the appointment of receivers, court fees, attorney fees, and (181.) SEC. IV. Receivers appointed under the general banking law of this State, shall report to the auditor within twenty days after their appointment, the condition of the bank, as near as practicable, and shall return the circulating notes of the bank which may have been redeemed and on hand at the time he or they shall take charge of the assets, and shall quarterly thereafter return all such circulating notes of the bank as he or they may redeem; all which circulating notes shall be canceled and destroyed in like manner as mutilated notes are required to be canceled and destroyed. In making descriptive lists of mutilated or other circulating notes returned for cancellation, or of notes redeemed by the auditor, it shall not be necessary to set forth the numbers of such notes, but the number of notes and the amount of each denomination shall be set forth.

(182.) SEC. V. This act shall be in force from and after its passage.

[Approved Jan. 10, 1855. Laws, 1855, p. 32.]

(183.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That whenever any banking association which has been or may be formed under the act to which this is an amendment, shall desire to close the business of circulating its bills, it shall be lawful for such association to file a certificate in the office of the auditor, of its desire and intention to withdraw its bills from circulation; and thereupon it shall be lawful for such banking institution to surrender to the auditor its bills, in sums of not less than one thousand dollars; and when such surrender shall be made, it shall be the duty of the auditor to deliver to such banking association a pro rata amount of the securities deposited with him by such association.

(184.) SEC. II. Whenever any banking association shall surrender to the auditor any amount of its bills, and shall pay to the auditor an amount, in specie, equal to all the outstanding bills of such banking association, the auditor shall surrender to such association all the securities deposited with him by such association, and the auditor shall return the specie so paid to him under the same regulations and for the same purposes for which the securities were held.

(185.) SEC. III. Whenever any banking association shall file the certificate contemplated in the first section of this act, with the auditor, said association shall cease to pay out or circulate its bills; and any such banking association which shall, after filing said certificate, and withdrawing its securities, or any portion thereof, under the provisions of this act, pay out or issue any of its bills, shall be subject to the same penalties which are imposed by the act to which this is an amendment, upon persons or associations illegally issuing bills for circulation, as or in lieu of money.

(186.) SEC. IV. After filing the certificate aforesaid, said bank filing the same shall cease to do any banking business whatever, and also to have

The award of any general committee of reference appointed by said corporation, upon any matter of difference submitted to such committee for arbitration in writing, with or without seal, by any member of said corporation, or by any other person whomsoever, shall have the same force and effect as if the same had been submitted to the arbitration of the members of said committee of reference by their individual names, by deed of submission; and such award may be filed and made a rule of court, and judgment entered thereon, and execution issued, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations that other awards may be entered under and by virtue of the provisions of the seventh chapter of the Revised Statutes, entitled "Arbitrations and Awards." An Act to authorize the Formation of Corporations for Manufacturing, Agricultural, Mining or Mechanical Purposes.

(202.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That at any time hereafter, any three or more persons who may desire to form a company for the purpose of carrying on any kind of manufacturing, agricultural, mining or mechanical business, may make, sign and acknowledge, before some officer competent to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and file in the office of the clerk in the county in which the business of the company shall be carried on, and a duplicate thereof in the office of the secretary of State, a certificate in writing, in which shall be stated the corporate name of the said company, and the objects for which said company shall be formed, the amount of capital stock of said company, the term of its existence not to exceed — years, the number of shares of which the said stock shall consist, the number of trustees and their names, who shall manage the concerns of said company for the first year, and the name of the town and county in which the operations of said company are to be carried on.

(203.) SEC. II. When the certificate shall have been filed as aforesaid, the persons who shall have signed and acknowledged the same, and their successors, shall be a body politic and corporate, in fact and in name, by the name stated in such certificate; and by that name have succession, and be capable of suing and being sued in any court of law or equity in this State; and they and their successors may have a common seal, and make and alter the same at pleasure; and they shall, by their corporate name, be capable in law of purchasing, holding and conveying any real or personal estate whatever, which may be necessary to enable the said company to carry on their operations named in such certificate, but shall not mortgage the same, or give any lien thereon.

(204.) SEC. III. The stock, property and concerns of such company shall be managed by not less than three nor more than nine trustees, who shall respectively be stockholders, and a majority of whom shall be citizens of this State, who shall, except for the first year, be annually elected by the stockholders, at such time and place as shall be determined by the by-laws of the company; and public notice of the time and place of holding such election shall be published, not less than thirty days previous thereto, in the newspaper printed nearest to the place where the operations of the said company shall be carried on: and the election shall be made by such of the stockholders as shall attend for that purpose, either in person or by proxy. All elections shall be by ballot, and each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares of stock in said company, and the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be trustees; and when any vacancy shall happen among the trustees, by death, resignation or otherwise, it shall be filled for the remainder of the year in such manner as may be provided for by the by-laws of the said company.

(205.) SEC. IV. In case it shall happen at any time that an election of trustees shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws of said company, when it ought to have been made, the company for that reason shall not be dissolved, but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold an election for trustees, in such manner as shall be provided for by the said by-laws, and all acts of trustees shall be valid and binding as against said company, until their successors shall be elected.

(206.) SEC. V. There shall be a president of the company, who shall be designated from the number of the trustees, and also such subordinate officers as the company by its by-laws may designate, who may be elected or appointed, and required to give such security for the faithful performance of the duties of their office as the company by its by-laws may require.

(207.) SEC. VI. It shall be lawful for the trustees to call in and demand from the stockholders, respectively, all such sums of money by them subscribed, at such times and in such payments or instalments as the trustees [shall] deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting the shares of stock subscribed for, and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholders within sixty days after a personal demand or a notice requiring such payment shall have been published for six successive weeks, in the newspaper nearest to the place where the business of the company shall be carried on as aforesaid.

(208.) SEC. VII. The trustees of such company shall have power to make such prudential by-laws as they shall deem proper for the management and disposition of the stock and business affairs of such company, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this State, and prescribing the duties of officers, artificers and servants that may be employed, for the appointment of all officers, and for carrying on all kinds of business within the objects and purposes of such company.

(209.) SEC. VIII. The stock of such company shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of the company; but no shares shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon shall have been fully paid in, or shall have been declared forfeited for the non-payment of calls thereon; and it shall not be lawful for such company to use any of their funds in the purchase of any stock in any other corporation.

(210.) SEC. IX. The copy of any certificate of incorporation, filed in pursuance of this act, certified by the county clerk or his deputy, to be a true copy, and of the whole of such certificate, shall be received in all courts and places as presumptive legal evidence of the facts therein stated.

(211.) SEC. X. All the stockholders of every company incorporated under this act shall be severally individually liable to the creditors of the company in which they are stockholders, to an amount equal to the amount of stock held by them respectively, for all debts and contracts made by such company, until the whole amount of capital stock fixed and limited by such company shall have been paid in, and a certificate thereof shall have been made and recorded as is prescribed in the following section; and the capital stock, so fixed and limited, shall all be paid in, one-half within one year, and the other half thereof within two years from the incorporation of said company, or such corporation shall be dissolved.

(212.) SEC. XI. The president and a majority of the trustees, within thirty days after the payment of the last instalment of the capital stock so fixed and limited by the company, shall make a certificate stating the amount of the capital so fixed and paid in; which certificate shall be signed and sworn to by the president and a majority of the trustees; and they shall, within the said thirty days, record the same in the office of the county clerk of the county wherein the business of said company is carried on.

(213.) SEC. XII. Every such company shall annually, within twenty days from the first of January, make a report, which shall be published in the newspaper published nearest the place where the business of said company is carried on, which shall state the amount of capital, and of the proportion actually paid, and the amount of its existing debts; which report shall be signed by the president and a majority of the trustees, and shall be verified by the oath of the president or secretary of said company, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county where the business of the company shall be carried on; and if any of said companies shall fail so to do, all the trustees of the company shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all that shall be contracted before such report shall be made.

(214.) SEC. XIII. If the trustees of any such company shall declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, or which would diminish the amount of its capital stock, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all that shall be thereafter contracted, while they shall respectively continue in office: Provided, That if any of the trustees shall object to the declaring of such dividend, or to the payment of the same, and shall, at any time before the time fixed for the payment thereof, file a certificate of their objection in writing with the secretary of the company and with the clerk of the county, they shall be exempt from the said liability.

(215.) SEC. XIV. Nothing but money shall be considered as payment of any part of the capital stock, and no loan of money shall be made by any such company to any stockholder therein; and if any such loan shall be made to a stockholder, the officers who shall make it, or who shall assent thereto, shall be jointly and severally liable to the extent of such loan and interest, for all the debts of the company contracted while they are stockholders or officers thereof.

(216.) SEC. XV. If any certificate or report made, or public notice given, by the officers of any company, in pursuance of the provisions of this act, should be false in any material representation, all the officers who shall have signed the same, knowing it to be false, shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company, contracted while they are stockholders or officers thereof.

(217.) SEC. XVI. No person holding stock in any such company, as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, and no person holding such stock as collateral security, shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company; but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a stockholder accordingly, and the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate, or the ward or person interested in such trust fund would have been, if he had been living and competent to act, and held the stock in his own name.

(218.) SEC. XVII. Every such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, shall represent the stock in his hands at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder, and every person who shall pledge his stock as aforesaid, may, nevertheless, represent the same at all such meetings, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder.

(219.) SEC. XVIII. The stockholders of any company organized under the provisions of this act, shall jointly, severally and individually be liable for all debts that may be due and owing to all their laborers, servants and apprentices, for services performed for such corporation.

(220.) SEC. XIX. Any corporation or company heretofore formed by special act or under the general law, and now existing, for any manufacturing, agricultural, mining or mechanical purposes, or any company which may be formed under this act, may increase or diminish its capital stock by complying with the provisions of this act, to any amount which may be deemed sufficient and proper for the purposes of the corporation, and may also extend its business to any other manufacturing, mining or mechanical business, subject to the provisions and liabilities of this act. But before any corporation shall be entitled to diminish the amount of its capital stock, if the amount of its debts and liabilities shall exceed the amount of the capital to which it is proposed to be reduced, such amount of debts and liabilities shall be satisfied and reduced so as not to exceed such diminished amount of capital: and any existing company heretofore formed may come under and avail itself of the privileges and provisions of this act, by complying with the following provisions, and thereupon such company, its officers and stockholders, shall be subject to all the restrictions, duties and liabilities of this act.

(221.) SEC. XX. Whenever any company shall desire to call a meeting of the stockholders, for the purpose of availing itself of the privileges and provisions of this act, or for increasing or diminishing the amount of its capital stock, or for extending or changing its business, it shall be the duty of the trustees or directors to publish a notice, signed by a majority of them, in the nearest newspaper, (in the county, if there be one published therein,) at least three successive weeks, and to deposit a notice thereof in the post office, addressed to each stockholder at his usual place of residence, at least three weeks previous to the day fixed upon for holding such meeting, specifying the object of the meeting, and the time and place when and where such meeting shall be held: and a vote of at least two-thirds of all the shares of stock shall be necessary to an increase or diminution of the amount of its capital stock, or the extension or change of its business as aforesaid, or to enable a company to avail itself of the provisions of this act.

(222.) SEC. XXI. If at any time and place specified in the notice provided for in the preceding section, stockholders shall appear by proxy or in person, representing not less than two-thirds of all the shares of stock of the corporation, they shall organize and proceed to a vote of those present, in person or by proxy; and if, on canvassing the votes, it shall appear that a sufficient number of votes are in favor of increasing or diminishing the amount of capital, or extending or changing its business as aforesaid, or for availing itself of the privileges and provisions of this act, a certificate of the proceedings, showing a compliance with the provisions of this act, the amount of capital actually paid in the business to which it is extended or changed, the whole amount of debts and liabilities of the company, and the amount to which the capital stock shall be increased or diminished, shall be made out, signed and verified by the affidavit of the chairman, and be countersigned by the secretary; and such certificate shall be acknowledged by the chairman, and filed as required by the first section of this act, and when so filed, the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased or diminished to the amount specified in such certificate, and the business extended or changed as aforesaid, and the company shall be entitled to the privileges and provisions, and be subject to the liabilities of this act.

(223.) SEC. XXII. If the indebtedness of any company organized under this act shall at any time exceed the amount of its capital stock, the trustees of such company assenting thereto shall be personally and individually liable for such excess to the creditors of the company.

(224.) SEC. XXIII. No stockholder shall be personally liable for the payment of any debt contracted by any company formed under this act, which is not paid within one year from the time the debt becomes due, unless a suit for the collection of such debt shall be brought against such company, within one year after the debt became due; and no suit shall be brought against any stockholder who shall cease to be a stockholder in any such company, for any debt contracted by said company, unless the same shall be commenced within two years from the time he shall have ceased to be a stockholder, nor until an execution against the company shall have been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.

(225.) SEC. XXIV. It shall be the duty of the trustees of every corporation formed under this act, to cause a book to be kept by the treasurer or secretary thereof, containing the names of all persons, alphabetically arranged, who are or shall, within six years, have been stockholders of such company, and showing their place of residence, the numbers of shares of stock held by them respectively, the time when they became owners of such shares, and the amount of stock actually paid in; which book shall, during the usual business hours of the day, on every business day, be open for inspection of stockholders and creditors of the company, and their personal representatives, at the office or principal place of business of such company, in the county where its business operations shall be located; and any and every such stockholder, creditor or representative, shall have a right to make extracts from such book; and no transfer of stock shall be valid for any purposes whatsoever except to render the person to whom it shall be transferred liable for the debts of the company, according to the provisions of this act, until it shall have been entered therein, as required by this section, by an entry showing to and from whom transferred. Such book shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, in favor of the plaintiff, in any suit or proceeding against such company, or against any one or more stockholders. Every officer or agent of such company who shall neglect to make any proper entry in such book, or shall refuse or neglect to exhibit the same, or to allow the same to be inspected, and extracts to be taken therefrom, as hereinbefore provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and the company shall forfeit and pay to the party injured a penalty of fifty dollars for any such neglect or refusal, and all damages resulting therefrom; and every company that shall neglect to keep such book open for inspection as aforesaid, shall forfeit to the people the sum of fifty dollars for every day it shall so neglect, to be sued for and recovered in the name of the people, in the circuit court of the county in which the business of such corporation shall be located; and when so recovered, the amount shall be paid into the treasury of such county, for the use thereof.

(226.) SEC. XXV. The legislature may at any time alter, amend or repeal this act, saving and preserving all rights which may become vested under the same, and may amend or repeal any incorporation formed or created under this act, for any violation of the provisions of this act, or any act amendatory of the same; but such amendment or repeal shall not, nor shall the dissolution of any company formed under this act, take away or impair any remedy given against any such corporation, its stockholders or officers, for any liability which shall have been previously incurred.

[Approved March 1, 1847. Laws, 1847, p. 52.]

(241.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, There shall be established, as soon after the passage of this act as shall be practicable, at, or within four miles of, the town of Jacksonville, in the county of Morgan, in this State, an institution to be styled and known as the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane.

(242.) SEC. II. That Joseph Morton, James Dunlap, John J. Hardin, John Henry, Samuel D. Lockwood, William Thomas, Bezeleel Gillett, Nathaniel English, and Owen M. Long, of Morgan county, shall constitute a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the "Trustees of the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane," who shall manage and direct the concerns of the institution, and make all necessary by-laws and regulations for their own governance as may not be inconsistent with the laws and constitution of this State; they shall have power to hold, dispose of, and convey all real and personal property conveyed to them by gift, devise or otherwise, for the use of the institution; they shall serve without compensation, and shall serve as follows, to be determined among them by lot, viz: Three of them shall serve for one year, three for two years, and three for three years, from the passage of this act, and until their successors are appointed and qualified; and at the expiration of the respective terms of office, the vacancies shall be filled by appointments for three years, to be made by the governor of the State. Should any vacancy occur, by death, resignation or otherwise, such vacancy shall be filled by the governor by an appointment for the unexpired term of the trustee whose place is thus vacated. The said trustees shall have charge of the general interests of the institution; they shall appoint the superintendent, assistant physician, and steward, and fix the amount of their salaries. The superintendent shall be a skillful physician, and shall be appointed for a term of two years, during which time his salary shall not be reduced; he shall be subject to removal only for infidelity to the trust reposed in him, or incompetency to the discharge thereof; he shall be a married man, and with his family reside in the institution. The trustees, by and with the advice and consent of the governor, shall make such by-laws for the government of the institution as shall be necessary. They shall appoint a treasurer, who shall give bond to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the people of the State of Illinois, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office; they shall determine his compensation for services, also the salaries of such other officers and assistants as may be necessary to the able and economical administration of the affairs of the institution.

(269.) SEC. III. The trustees of said institution shall proceed to finish and furnish rooms in the building for the reception and care of patients, with all reasonable diligence; and for this purpose they may use the "fund for the insane," provided that such use of the fund shall not interfere with the finishing the building under existing contracts.

(273.) SEC. VII. Whenever any person shall be found to be insane or distracted, before any court or judge, the sheriff of the county shall be furnished with a certificate by the clerk of the court, if the proceeding was had in court, or by the judge, if such proceeding was had in vacation, stating that in a proceeding had before such court or judge, such person, naming him or her, had been found to be insane or distracted, as the fact may have been, and that such insane or distracted person was thereupon ordered to be conveyed to "the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane;" which certificate shall constitute the authority of the sheriff, or any other person to whom the same may be delivered, to convey such insane or distracted person to the said hospital; and also the authority of the trustees to keep and detain him or her therein.

(274.) SEC. VIII. Persons who have heretofore been found or decided to be distracted or insane, may be conveyed to and detained in said hospital, and a certified copy of the order of court, or judge appointing the conservator, shall authorize the reception and detention of all such persons.

the time fixed for the reception thereof, that another or other selections will be made, so that the person or persons not being conveyed as aforesaid, will not be received until the further order of the board.

(276.) SEC. X. Married women and infants, who, in the judgment of the medical superintendent are evidently insane or distracted, may be received and detained in the hospital on the request of the husband, or the woman, or parent, or guardian of the infants, without the evidence of insanity or distraction required in other cases.

(277.) SEC. XI. The expenses of conveying paupers to the hospital shall be paid by the counties in which they reside, and the expense of carrying others shall be paid by conservators, husbands, parents or guardians; and in no case shall any such expense be paid out of the "fund for the insane."

(278.) SEC. XII. No person, laboring under any contagious or infectious disease, shall be admitted into said hospital as a patient.

(279.) SEC. XIII. In conveying patients to the hospital for the insane, the sheriff may employ one assistant for each patient, and the compensation to the sheriff shall be five cents per mile, going and returning, and two dollars per day, computing one day for every thirty-five miles travel, on the usual route of the United States mail, and one-half of said amount to the assistant; which compensation shall be paid by counties, in cases of paupers, and by conservators, husbands, parents and guardians in other cases.

(280.) SEC. XIV. Clothing for paupers shall be furnished or paid for by the counties in which they resided, and the judge of each county court shall furnish all necessary clothing, at the expense of such counties; and a certificate of the judge, of the purchase of clothing or goods to be made up for the use of patients, shall be received in payment of county revenue the same as county orders.

(281.) SEC. XV. Hereafter the penalties of bonds required of conservators shall be fixed with reference to the value of personal property and rents, and when orders are made for the sale of real estate by courts, additional bonds may be required, with conditions to account for the proceeds of such sales according to law.

(282.) SEC. XVI. The medical superintendent shall not be required to serve on juries, work on roads, or to attend any court as a witness in a civil suit, but parties desiring his testimony in any case shall be allowed to take and use his deposition; nor shall he be required to attend as a witness in any criminal case, unless the court before which his testimony may be desired shall, upon being satisfied of the materiality of his testimony, require his attendance.

(283.) SEC. XVII. All persons employed in the hospital, whilst so employed, shall be exempt from serving on juries, working on roads, and in time of peace, from performing military duty.

(284.) SEC. XVIII. The biennial reports of the trustees to the general assembly shall hereafter be printed, under the direction of the board, before the meeting of the general assembly, so that said reports may be placed on the tables of the members during the first week of the session: Provided, That not more than one thousand copies shall be printed for the use of the general assembly, and a like number for the use of the hospital.

(285.) SEC. XIX. If the funds appropriated to defray the expenses of the Hospital for the Insane, for the years one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one and fifty-two, shall prove insufficient, the governor may, upon being satisfied of the necessity thereof, make an order on the auditor, directing him to issue a warrant on the treasury for a loan, not exceeding five thousand dollars, payable in such sums and at such times as the governor may direct; and whatever amount may be so drawn from the treasury, shall be refunded out of the "fund for the insane," when collected.

An Act to amend an Act entitled "An act to establish the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane," in force March 1, 1847.

(286.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be the duty of the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to appoint nine trustees for the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane, designating at the time of such appointment, their respective terms of office, with reference to the following classification, to wit: three of said trustees shall serve for two years, three for four years, and three for six years, from the time of their appointment and until their successors are chosen and qualified; and at the expiration of their respective terms of office, the vacancies shall be filled by appointments for six years, to be made by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The board organized under the provisions of this act shall have all the powers, act under the same responsibilities, and perform the same duties, which are prescribed for the board of trustees in the act of which this is an amendment.

(287.) SEC. II. A treasurer shall be kept in the service of the board, who shall also be the secretary. He shall keep the accounts of the institution, and receive and pay out the funds as required by the by-laws. The accounts shall be so kept as to show the receipts and disbursements under appropriate heads, and the kind, quality and cost of every article purchased for the use of the institution; and no individual shall be secretary or treasurer of more than one of the State institutions, located at Jacksonville, at the same time.

(288.) SEC. III. The trustees shall meet for the transaction of business half-yearly, and at such other times as may be found necessary to a proper discharge of their duties, and the traveling and personal expenses incurred in attending the meetings, by those residing out of the county of Morgan, shall be paid out of the funds of the institution, upon orders of the board.

(289.) SEC. IV. The provision of law authorizing the trustees to fill vacancies in the board, is hereby repealed, and vacancies shall hereafter be filled by the governor, as provided for in the act establishing the institution.

(290.) SEC. V. The accounts of the treasurer shall be settled with the governor at the end of every three months; and at each settlement, all the money previously received shall be fully accounted for, and the vouchers for the same filed with the auditor.

(291.) SEC. VI. Before any person shall be committed to the hospital as a patient, except such as have been heretofore legally decided insane, and married women and infants who may be received by the request of the husband of the woman, or the parent or guardian of the infant, if the medical superintendent shall be satisfied that they are insane, some respectable person living in the county in which the person alleged to be insane, resides, shall file with the judge of the county court, a statement, in writing, substantially as follows:

 _____ County, } ss. I, the undersigned, hereby state that _____, (naming the person,) of the county and State aforesaid, is insane, and that I believe for his (or her) benefit (for the safety of the community) (he (or she) ought to be committed to the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane. The facts in his (or her) case can be proven by _____ (naming at least two persons, one of whom shall be a respectable physician.)

Dated this _____ day of _____, A. D. 18—.

A. B."

The judge of the county court shall thereupon order the clerk of said court to issue subpoenas for the persons named as witnesses, and such other persons as he may think proper, commanding them to appear before him at the time and place specified in the subpoenas, to testify concerning the facts in the case of the person alleged to be insane. He shall also order subpoenas for six suitable persons to serve as jurors in the case, to be present at the same time and place, at least one of whom shall be a physician.

(292.) SEC. VII. If, after hearing the evidence, the jury shall be satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in the statement aforesaid, they shall render to the judge the following verdict substantially; a copy of which, certified by the clerk, shall be forwarded to the superintendent, and shall constitute the authority of the trustees for detaining the patient in the hospital:

 _____ County, } ss. We, the undersigned, jurors in the case of _____, (naming the person,) alleged to be insane, having heard the evidence in the case, are satisfied that said _____ is insane, and is a fit person to be sent to the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane; that he is a resident of the State of Illinois and county of _____; that his age is —; that his disease is of _____ duration; that the cause is supposed to be _____ (or is unknown); that the disease is (or is not) with him hereditary; that he is not (or is) subject to epilepsy; and that he is free from vermin or any infectious disease." (If the person be a pauper, the fact shall also be announced in the verdict.)

(293.) SEC. VIII. If the person be a pauper, it shall be the duty of the judge of the county court to see that he is furnished with the necessary amount of substantial clothing, at the expense of the county, and his successors in office shall be held responsible in their official capacity for keeping him suitably furnished with clothes while a patient in the hospital, and for removing him therefrom, if required by the trustees to do so.

(294.) SEC. IX. If the person be not a pauper, then one or more persons, relatives or friends of the patient, shall, upon his admission into the hospital, become responsible to the trustees for finding the patient in clothes, and removing him when required; and shall execute a bond, conditioned as follows, viz:

"KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we _____ and _____, of the county of _____ and State of Illinois, are held and firmly bound unto the trustees of the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane, in the sum of one hundred dollars, for the payment of which we jointly and severally bind ourselves firmly by these presents.

The condition of this obligation is, that whereas _____, insane person of the county and State aforesaid, has been admitted as a patient into the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane: now, therefore, if we shall find said patient in suitable and sufficient clothing whilst _____ may remain in said institution, and shall promptly pay for such articles of clothing as it may be necessary to procure for said _____ at the hospital, and shall remove _____ from said hospital when required by the trustees to do so, then this obligation to be void; otherwise to remain in full force.

Witness our hands and seals, this _____ day of _____, A. D. 18—.

[SEAL.]
 [SEAL.]"

(295.) SEC. X. Upon receiving the application the superintendent shall advise the clerk whether or not the patient can be received, and if he can be, when. The clerk shall thereupon, in due time [season] for the conveyance of the person to the hospital by the time appointed, issue his warrant to the sheriff, or any other suitable person, commanding him to arrest such insane person and convey him to the hospital; and if the clerk shall be satisfied of the necessity, he may authorize an assistant to be employed. Said warrant shall be substantially as follows:

 _____ County, } ss.

You are hereby commanded forthwith to arrest _____, who has been declared to be insane, and convey him to the Illinois State Hospital for the Insane, (and you are hereby authorized to take to your aid an assistant, if deemed necessary,) and of this warrant make due return to this office after its execution.

Witness my hand and seal of the _____ county court, this _____ day of _____, A. D. 18—.
 S. S. _____, Clerk County Court _____ County."

Upon receiving the patient, the superintendent shall indorse upon said warrant a receipt as follows:

"Illinois State Hospital for the Insane.
 Received this _____ day of _____, A. D. 18—, the patient named in the within warrant.
 _____, Superintendent."

This warrant, with the receipt thereon, shall be returned to the clerk, to be filed by him with the other papers relating to the case: Provided, That in all cases the relatives of the insane person shall have a right to convey him to the hospital in preference to others: And provided also, If he be not found by the jury free from vermin and any infectious disease, it shall not be the duty of the clerk to apply for his admission as before provided, until he be so declared by the certificate of some respectable physician, which certificate shall be forwarded to the superintendent with the application.

(296.) SEC. XI. The expense of conveying paupers to the hospital shall be paid by the counties in which they reside, and that of others by conservators, husbands, parents and guardians, and in no case shall any such expense be paid out of the "fund for the insane."

(297.) SEC. XII. The compensation to the sheriff and his assistant shall be four cents each per mile, going and returning, computing the distance by the usual route of the United States mail, and two dollars per day for the sheriff, and one dollar per day for his assistant, for each day's necessary absence going to and returning [from] the hospital.

(298.) SEC. XIII. The clothing to be furnished each patient upon being sent to the hospital, shall not be less than the following: For a male, three new shirts, a new and substantial coat, vest, and two pairs of pantaloons of woolen cloth, three pairs of woolen socks, a black or dark stock or cravat, a good hat or cap, and a pair of new shoes or boots, and a pair of slippers to wear within doors. For a female, in addition to the same quantity of under garments, shoes and stockings, there shall be two woolen petticoats or skirts, three good dresses, a cloak or shawl, and a decent bonnet. Unless such clothing be delivered in good order to the superintendent, he shall not be bound to receive the patient.

(299.) SEC. XIV. Any patient may be discharged from the hospital, when, in the judgment of the trustees, it is necessary. Incurable and harmless cases may be discharged when necessary to make room for recent cases, as ordered by the trustees.

(300.) SEC. XV. Whenever a patient shall be ordered to be discharged, the superintendent shall immediately give notice thereof to the county clerk, or to the party or parties responsible in the bond for his or her removal. Said clerk shall, immediately upon reception of the notice, issue his warrant to the sheriff, commanding him to remove the patient and return him or her to the county from which he or she has been taken. If within thirty days after the notice was given, the patient be not removed, the superintendent, if he think it necessary, may return the patient to the county from which he came, at the expense of the county in case of a pauper, and of the party responsible on the bond in other cases; the amount to be that allowed sheriffs in section thirteen, and recoverable by the trustees, with costs of suit, by proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction.

(301.) SEC. XVI. Whenever application shall be made for a patient not residing within the State, if the superintendent shall be of opinion that from the character of the case it is probably curable, and if there be at the time room to spare in the hospital, the trustees, in their discretion, may order the patient to be admitted, always taking a satisfactory bond for the maintenance of the patient, the rate of which the trustees shall fix, requiring two months' pay in advance, and for his or her removal when required.

(302.) SEC. XVII. No idiot shall be admitted into the hospital, and every such case shall be discharged, the trustees and superintendent having the right to decide what cases are idiotic.

(303.) SEC. XVIII. This act shall be in force from and after its passage, and all acts and parts of acts coming in conflict with provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

An Act to authorize the Formation of Corporate Companies for the purpose of Mining and Transportation, by a General Law.

[Approved June 22, 1852. Laws, 1852, p. 135.]

of deeds, articles of association, in which shall be fully set forth the description and kinds of business they propose to pursue, the name they assume, the location of the said company, which shall be within this State, the number of years it is to exist, which shall not exceed thirty years from the date of said articles, the amount of capital stock of said company, which shall in no case exceed three hundred thousand dollars, the amount and number of shares composing said stock, and such other particulars as may be deemed proper; and upon filing said articles of association, signed and acknowledged as aforesaid, in the office of the secretary of State, and a duplicate thereof in the office of the county clerk of the county wherein said company may be located, the persons aforesaid, and all persons who shall, from time to time become stockholders and associates in said company, their heirs and assigns, shall be known by the name assumed, and considered in law a body corporate, and shall possess all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the restraints and liabilities of bodies corporate; may have and use a common or corporate seal and alter the same at pleasure, and by their name assumed sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, as natural persons, in all or any of the courts of this State having jurisdiction of the subject matter, and the copy of any such articles of association, filed in pursuance of this act, certified by the secretary of State, or by said county clerk or his deputy, to be a full and true copy of such articles of association, shall be taken in all courts and places as presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, and of the legal existence of said company.

(316.) SEC. II. The stock, property and business of the said company shall be managed by not less than three or more than nine directors, who shall respectively be stockholders in said company, and one of whom shall be appointed president; and the said president and directors, or a majority of them, or a majority of the directors in the absence of the president, shall constitute a board or quorum for the transaction of business, and all questions shall be decided by a majority of votes. The first board of directors may be chosen or appointed at such time and place and in such manner as the members of said corporation may see proper, to hold their offices for one year, and until their successors are elected to fill their places. After the first election or appointment, the said board of directors shall be elected annually, by the stockholders of said company, at such time and place as shall be determined by the by-laws of said company; public notice of the time and place of holding such election shall be published not less than thirty days previous thereto, in some newspaper published in the county, or nearest to the place where the business of said company may be carried on, when there shall be no paper published in said county. The election shall be made by ballot, and by such of the stockholders as shall attend for that purpose, either in person or by proxy, and each stockholder shall be entitled to cast as many votes as he may own shares of stock in said company, and the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be the directors of said company for the year next ensuing, and until their successors shall be elected to take their places. When a vacancy shall occur in the board, by death or otherwise, it may be filled for the remainder of the term in such manner as shall be provided by the by-laws of said company; and in case it shall happen at any time, that an election of directors shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws of the company when it ought to have been made, the said company for that reason shall not be dissolved, but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold an election, upon notice as aforesaid, and all the acts of the directors shall be valid and binding as against said company, until their successors shall be elected and organized by the election of their president.

(317.) SEC. III. The board of directors and their successors shall have power to make and pass such by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of said company and the management of its affairs and business, for the election of a secretary and treasurer, (or the secretary may act as treasurer, ex officio.) and such agents and servants as they may deem proper, prescribe their duties, fix their remuneration, require bonds for the faithful performance of their respective duties, and all other matters that shall be deemed necessary to promote the interests of said company, not inconsistent with this act, the laws and constitution of this State or of the United States; a copy of which, duly certified by the president, attested by the secretary and under the seal of said company, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county wherein said company shall be located, and shall be as binding on said company, its officers and agents, in every respect as if the same had been incorporated in this act. The said directors may cause books to be opened for subscriptions to their capital stock, in such manner and at such times and places as they shall deem proper, and issue certificates of stock to the said stockholders; and it shall be lawful for the directors to call in and demand from the stockholders, respectively, all such sums of money by them subscribed, at such times and in such payments or instalments as the directors shall deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting the shares of stock subscribed for and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholders, their heirs or legal representatives, within sixty days after a personal notice or demand, or notice requiring such payment shall have been published for six successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which said company is located, or in a newspaper published nearest thereto. The stock of said company shall be deemed personal property, and transferable in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of said company, but no certificate of stock shall be transferable until all calls and instalments are fully paid in, or whilst the holder of said certificate of stock shall be indebted to said company, without the written consent of the directors, and all or any transfer so made, without the consent of the directors as aforesaid, shall be null and void as against said company. The said company shall have and hold the first lien on the stock for any and all debts due from the holder thereof to the said company, and may be reached by judgment and execution, the same as other personal property under the laws of this State; and when any such stock shall be declared forfeited to the company by reason of non-payment of the instalments thereon, or purchased in for debt at public sale, the same numbers and amounts may be again subscribed for by any other person, and certificates issued therefor, the same as if it had been an original subscription.

(318.) SEC. IV. The said company may purchase, hold, sell and convey at their pleasure, all such real estate as shall be deemed necessary for their interest and business operations, not exceeding at any one time twenty-five per centum of their capital stock, and to take and hold any real estate mortgaged or pledged as security for the payment of any debt due or to become due to said company, or to take and receive any real estate or other property in payment or towards the satisfaction of any debt previously due to said company, and to hold the same until they can conveniently and advantageously sell and convert the same into money or other property. All conveyances of real estate to said company, and all bonds, notes, obligations or agreements, with or to said company, shall be made in the corporate name of said company, and all conveyances of real estate made by said company shall be made in the corporate name thereof, signed and acknowledged by the president, bearing the seal of the company and attested by the secretary, and the same so made shall be valid in law or equity. All business transactions, and all notes, bills, bonds or obligations, made or entered into by said company, shall run in the name of said company, and may be signed by the president, secretary or agent of said company, as the said company may, by their laws, rules or regulations, determine. All suits for or against said company shall be brought, prosecuted or defended by the corporate [name] thereof, and all process against said company shall be by summons, and the service of the same shall be by leaving an attested copy thereof with the treasurer, at least thirty days before the return thereof.

(319.) SEC. V. Said company shall have power to possess, have and hold personal property to the extent that may be necessary for their business operations, and to sell, exchange or dispose of the same at pleasure; to borrow money, and secure the payment thereof by bond, mortgage or otherwise; to be the owner or part owner of docks, depots, warehouses, tenements, water-craft, appliances, and every species of property necessary to carry out the object of their organization, and for developing the resources of this State, by mining for coal or other minerals, transporting the same or other products, commodities, passengers or property, from or to their place of business, by land or water; to effect insurance upon their property; to divide their earnings and profits with the stockholders of said company, or to employ their funds in any other lawful manner.

(320.) SEC. VI. The said company shall keep at the office of their secretary or treasurer, at the place of their location, well-bound and substantial books, in which shall be kept a full and correct record of the names of the stockholders, their place of residence, the amount held by each respectively, the date of the subscription, the amount paid in, and of all transfers of stock, the date of such transfer, from whom and to whom transferred; also a record of all the proceedings of the board of directors, by-laws, rules and regulations made for the government and management of the said company and its business operations: which said books shall be subject to inspection at all reasonable times, during business hours, by any stockholder or creditor of said company, under the penalty of fifty dollars, to be recovered by suit against said company by any person who shall be refused the use and inspection of said books, being a stockholder or creditor of said company, at a proper time and upon request of the officers who may have the said book or books in charge; and at the end of each current year, the said board of directors shall cause to be made out a tabular statement, showing the amount of the capital stock paid in, the amount of property owned by the company, real and personal, the amount of debts due to the company, and the amount of the said company's indebtedness, and also showing the profit or loss of said company; which said tabular statement shall be liable and subject to inspection, in the same manner and under the same penalty as is provided in relation to the books of said company. The said company in their corporate name may have their action at law or equity, before any court in this State having jurisdiction of the subject matter, and if the sum demanded be one hundred dollars or less, any justice of the peace shall have jurisdiction as in other cases against any and all persons in debt, damages or other action for the recovery of any debt or other matter, notwithstanding the said person or persons against whom suit is brought, may be stockholders in said company, and the law of partnership shall in nowise apply or be pleaded in bar or set up in defense of such action. The stock, property and effects of said company shall be liable and subject to execution for all debts due or owing by said company to any person or persons, company or corporation, and any transfer or assignment of property made by said company to any person, for the purpose of giving preference to any one or more of its creditors, shall be null and void as against all other creditors of said company. It shall not be lawful for said company at any time to contract debts, or be indebted at any one time in any amount over fifty per cent. of the amount of their capital stock actually paid in, and the directors of said company in office at the time of contracting such debts, and consenting thereto or assenting thereto, by not protesting against such contracting of debts, and giving notice of such protest, shall be jointly and severally liable for all such excess of debts over fifty per cent. of the amount of their capital stock actually paid in as aforesaid.

(321.) SEC. VII. This act shall be taken and considered as a public act in all courts and places, shall be liberally construed in favor of any and all companies organized by virtue hereof, and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

(322.) SEC. VIII. The powers conferred by this act shall not be so construed as to authorize any company organized under the same to enter upon the business of transportation upon any waters within this State, for the purpose of carrying freights and passengers, or passengers only, but the word "transportation," whenever used in this act, shall be so construed as to confine said corporation to the transportation incident to and connected with their mining operations.

An Act to provide for the Construction of Plank Roads, by a General Law.

(397.) SECTION I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois represented in the General Assembly. Any number of persons, not less than five, may be formed into a corporation for the construction of a plank road, by complying with the following requisitions, to wit: Notice shall be given in each county through which any plank road is intended to be constructed, of the time and place or places where books for subscribing to the stock of such road will be opened, by publication three weeks consecutively in at least one newspaper [published] in said county or counties; or, if there be no newspaper published in said county, by posting up printed or written notices, for three weeks, on the door of the court-house, and on the door of the post-office nearest each terminus of the proposed road. When stock to the amount of five hundred dollars for every mile of the road intended to be constructed shall be subscribed, and five per cent. paid thereon, the subscribers may, upon due and proper notice, elect directors for the said company, not less than three in number, who shall hold their offices until others are elected. The stockholders shall severally subscribe articles of association, in which shall be set forth the name of the company; the number of years that it is to exist, which shall not exceed thirty years from the date of said article; the number of shares of which the said stock shall consist; the names of the directors first elected; the places from and to which the proposed road is to be constructed, and each township, town or city through which it is intended to pass, and its length, as near as may be; the name of each subscriber and his place of residence, and the number of shares of stock subscribed by him. Upon the filing of said articles of association, with an affidavit of at least three directors affixed thereto, that the foregoing requisitions have in good faith been complied with, in the office of the secretary of State, the subscribers of stock as aforesaid, and all persons who shall from time to time become stockholders in said association, shall be a body corporate, and shall possess and exercise all the powers and privileges of bodies corporate.

(398.) SEC. II. A copy of any articles of association filed in pursuance of this act, with a copy of the affidavit, certified by the secretary of State, shall in all courts and places be presumptive evidence of the incorporation of said company, and of the facts therein stated.

(399.) SEC. III. Within two weeks after the formation of any company by virtue of this act, the directors thereof shall designate some place within a county, in which, according to the articles of association of such company, its road, or some parts thereof, is to be constructed, as the office of said company, and shall give public notice thereof by publication in a public newspaper, published in such county, (if there be a newspaper so published,) for three successive weeks, and shall file a copy of such notice in the office of the clerk of the county court of every county in which any part of such road is to be constructed. And if the place of such office shall be changed, like notice of such change shall be published and filed as aforesaid, before it shall take place, in which notice the time of making the change shall be specified. Every notice, summons or other paper required by law to be served on such company, may be served by leaving the same at such office, with any person having charge thereof, at any time between nine o'clock A.M. and noon, and between two and five o'clock P.M., of any day, except Sundays and the fourth day of July.

(400.) SEC. IV. It shall be the duty of the directors of said company to keep at their office, by the secretary, treasurer or clerk, a book containing the names of all persons who are, or shall, within six years, have been stockholders of such company, a statement of their places of residence, the number of shares of stock held by them respectively, and the time when they respectively became the holders of stock, which book shall, in office hours, as defined in section three of this act, be open for the inspection of all persons who may desire to examine the same, and every and any person shall have the right to make extracts from such book. Such book shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, in favor of the plaintiff, in any suit or proceeding against said company, or against one or more stockholders. Every officer or agent of any company, who shall neglect to make any proper entry in such book, or shall neglect or refuse to exhibit the same, or allow the same to be inspected and extracts to be taken therefrom, as provided by this section, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and for every such refusal or neglect of such officer or agent, the company shall forfeit and pay to the party injured, a penalty of fifty dollars, and all the damages resulting therefrom. Every company that shall neglect to keep such book open for inspection as aforesaid, shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars for every day it shall so neglect, which penalty, when recovered, shall be paid into the treasury of the county, or, if there be more than one, into the treasuries of the counties, in equal proportions, in which the road is constructed.

(401.) SEC. V. The shares of any company formed under this act shall be deemed personal property, and may be transferred as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of such company; but no transfer of stock shall be valid for any purpose whatever, except to render the person to whom it shall be transferred liable for the debts of such company, according to the provisions of this act, unless such transfer shall be entered on the book required to be kept as aforesaid at the office of the company, and such entry shall show to and from whom transferred, and the date of transfer.

(402.) SEC. VI. The directors of any company incorporated under this act, may require payment of the sums subscribed to the capital stock, at such times, and in such proportions, and on such conditions, as they shall see fit, under the penalty of the forfeiture of their stock, and all previous payments thereon: and they shall give notice of the payments thus required, and of the place and time when and where the same are to be made, at least thirty days previous to the payment of the same, in one newspaper printed in each county in or through which the road is located, or by sending such notice to such stockholder by mail, directed to him at his usual place of residence.

(403.) SEC. VII. The business and property of each company shall be managed and conducted by a board of directors, consisting of not less than three nor more than nine, who, after the first year, shall be elected at such time and place as shall be provided by the by-laws of such corporation, and public notice shall be given of the time and place of holding such election, not less than twenty days previous thereto, in a newspaper printed in each county in or through which the road of such company may be located; or if no newspaper be published in such county, by posting up notices. The election shall be made by such of the stockholders as shall attend for that purpose, either in person or by proxy. All elections shall be by ballot, and each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he shall own shares of stock, and the persons having the greatest number of votes shall be directors, and shall hold their offices for one year, and until others are elected. No person shall be a director unless he is a stockholder in the company, and no stockholder shall be permitted to vote at any election for directors, on any stock except such as he has owned for the thirty days next preceding the election. Whenever any vacancy shall happen in the board of directors, such vacancy shall be filled for the remainder of the year by the remaining directors.

(404.) SEC. VIII. Any company formed under the provisions of this act may procure, by purchase or gift, from the owners thereof, any lands, or the right of way over any lands, necessary for the construction of the proposed road; and may also agree to the use of any part of a public highway for the construction of a plank road, with the county court of the county in which such highway may be situated. Such agreement with said court shall be in writing, and shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the said court. Before constructing the road over such land as may be acquired by gift or purchase, or over any highway by agreement with the county court, such company shall cause an accurate survey of such road, or section of road, to be made by a practical surveyor, signed by two of the directors, acknowledged by them as conveyances of real estate are required to be acknowledged, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county court.

(405.) SEC. IX. Whenever said company shall be desirous of constructing a plank road over any land not acquired by them by gift, purchase or agreement, application shall be made to the county court of the county in which such land shall be, for authority to lay out and construct such road, and to take the land necessary for such purposes; which application shall set forth the route of the proposed road as the same shall have been described in the articles of association. Public notice shall be given of such application, by publication for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in said county, if there be one published, and by posting up, for four successive weeks, a written or printed notice thereof, on the door of the court-house of said county.

(406.) SEC. X. Upon the hearing of the said application, all persons residing in said county, and all persons having any interest in any real estate through which said road is intended to be constructed, may appear and be heard. Such county court may take testimony in relation to such application, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time, in its discretion.

(407.) SEC. XI. The county court, if such an application be granted, shall appoint three persons, having no interest in the stock of the proposed road, nor in the land over which said road is intended to be constructed, as commissioners to lay out said road. If such company shall intend to construct its road continuously in or through more than one county, three commissioners shall be appointed by the county court of each county, and the joint commissioners so appointed shall lay out the whole route. The said commissioners, after taking an oath justly and fairly and impartially to perform their duty, shall cause an accurate survey and description to be made of such route, and of the land necessary to be taken for the construction of such road, and the necessary buildings and gates, which survey shall be acknowledged, as deeds are required to be acknowledged, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county court. Where joint commissioners act, appointed by different counties, they shall make a separate survey for each county, to be acknowledged and filed as aforesaid. The commissioners appointed by each county court shall, at the same time, assess the damages which each owner or owners of land, in their respective counties, will sustain, over and above the additional value which such lands will derive from the construction of the road, and make a report thereof in writing, signed by a majority of the commissioners, to the county court appointing them. The said commissioners shall hear all persons interested who shall apply to them to be heard. The company shall pay each of said commissioners two dollars for every day spent by him in the performance of his duties, and his necessary expenses.

(408.) SEC. XII. No road shall be laid out through any orchard, to the injury or destruction of fruit trees, or through any garden, nor through any dwelling-house or buildings connected therewith, or any yards or enclosures necessary for the use and enjoyment of such dwelling, without the consent of the owner; nor shall any such company bridge any stream, where the same is navigable by steam-boats, or in any manner that will prevent or endanger the passage of any flat-boat or raft of the width of twenty-five feet.

(409.) SEC. XIII. The route laid out and surveyed as aforesaid shall be the route of said road, and such company may enter upon and take and hold, subject to the provisions of this act, all such lands as the said survey shall describe as necessary for the construction of such road, and the necessary buildings and gates. But before entering upon any such lands, the company shall purchase the same of the owners thereof, or, pursuant to the provisions of this act, acquire the right to enter upon and hold the same.

(410.) SEC. XIV. If any owner of any such land shall, from any cause, be incapable of selling the same, or if such company cannot agree with such owner for the purchase thereof, or if, after diligent inquiry, the name and residence of any such owner cannot be ascertained, the company may present to the county judge of the county in which the lands lie, a petition setting forth the grounds of the application, a description of the lands in question, and the name and residence of the owner, if known, and the means that have been taken to ascertain the name and residence of such owner, if unknown, and praying that the damages of the owner of the lands described in the petition may be ascertained.

(411.) SEC. XV. Upon receiving such petition, the said judge shall appoint a time, at some regular or special term of the county court, for the hearing of the petition. At least ten days' notice of the time and place of the hearing of the petition, shall be served personally upon each owner of the lands described in the petition, if he reside in the State of Illinois, and such notice shall be served on all other owners in like manner, or by publication thereof, for four successive weeks, in some newspaper published in the county in which the lands lie; or if there are none published in such county, then in the nearest newspaper, the first of which publications shall be sixty days before the hearing.

(412.) SEC. XVI. At the time appointed for the hearing, if the assessment of damages reported by the commissioners be objected to by either party, by the consent of both parties, or those legally authorized to represent them, the county court shall assess and determine the damages which the owner of any lands will sustain, over and above the value the owner will derive from the building of the road. The court shall, in such assessment, hear any competent testimony either party may present, and shall have power, upon cause shown, to adjourn the hearing from time to time. The court shall, at the time of making the assessment of damages, also determine the amount that ought to be paid to the owner for the time spent and necessary expenses incurred by him in respect to the proceedings to determine the damages, which shall be paid by the company. The assessment of the court, which shall contain the name of the owner and an accurate description of the lands to be taken, shall be entered of record, and such assessment shall be final.

(413.) SEC. XVII. At the time appointed for [the] hearing before the county court, if the assessment of damages reported by the commissioners be objected to by either party, and a trial by jury demanded, or if there be no person legally authorized to act for the owner, it shall be so entered of record in the county court; and such entry, with a copy of the application, shall be certified by the clerk of the county court, and filed by him in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, who shall docket the same.

(414.) SEC. XVIII. Such case shall stand for trial in its order on the docket, at the term of the circuit court next after the filing of the papers by the county clerk as aforesaid, if the owner appears in person or by attorney, or if satisfactory evidence be furnished to the court by affidavit, or the return of a sworn officer, that notice of the time and place of the hearing of the petition before the county court had been served upon the owner personally, or by publication, as provided in section fifteen of this act.

(415.) SEC. XIX. In case any lands described in the petition shall be owned by any married woman, infant, idiot or insane person, or by a non-resident of the State, and no person legally authorized to represent him, her, or them, shall appear, the circuit court shall appoint some competent and suitable person, having no interest adverse to the owner, to take care of the said owner's interest in the proceedings to assess damages to be paid to the owner. And all such notices as in the further progress of the case are required to be served on any owner, shall be served in like manner on the person so appointed, but any person so appointed may at any time be superseded by the owner.

(416.) SEC. XX. Cases of assessment of damages, except so far as is otherwise provided by this act, shall be conducted in the circuit court, according to the rules of practice of said court, so far as such rules are applicable. The jury, after hearing the evidence of the parties, shall, by a verdict, ascertain and determine the damages which the owner of any lands will sustain over and above the value the owner will derive from the construction of the road, and also the amount that ought to be paid to him for the time spent and the necessary expenses incurred by him in the proceeding to assess damages, to be paid by the company. Such verdict shall be in writing, signed by the jury, and shall contain a particular description of the land in respect to which it is found, and be entered of record. The court may, in its discretion, on the application of the company, direct two or more similar cases standing for trial at the same term, to be submitted to the same jury.

(417.) SEC. XXI. Within thirty days after the rendition of any such verdict, or if a new trial be granted, or an appeal taken, within thirty days after the final trial or decision in the appellate court, or within thirty days after the assessment of damages by the county court, if made by that court, the company shall pay to the person entitled to receive the same, the amount awarded by the county court, if tried by consent by that court, or awarded by the jury if tried in the circuit court, or shall make a legal tender thereof to him; and the company may thereupon enter upon the lands in respect to which an assessment of damages has been made, and take and hold the same so long as it shall be used for the purposes of such a road as such company was formed to construct.

(418.) SEC. XXII. If any person be not a resident of this State, or cannot be found therein after diligent search, the company may furnish to the county judge satisfactory proof, by affidavit, of such fact, and he shall thereupon make an order, that the amount to be paid to the owner shall be deposited with the county treasurer of the county in which the lands lie, for the use of the owner, and notice of such payment to be given by publication for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in said county, or if none be published in said county, in the nearest newspaper. Upon satisfactory proof being made to the judge, by affidavit, of such payment to the county treasurer, and publication, he shall make an order authorizing the company to take possession of the land in respect to which the damages have been thus assessed and deposited, under which order the company may enter upon, take and hold such land in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if payment had been made to the owner personally. The orders and affidavits made under this section shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court.

(419.) SEC. XXIII. Every plank road made by virtue of this act, shall be so constructed as to make a secure and permanent road, the track of which shall be made of plank, and in such manner as to permit wagons and other vehicles conveniently and easily to pass each other, and also so as to permit all vehicles to pass on and off where such road is intersected by other roads.

(420.) SEC. XXIV. In each county of this State, in which there shall be any plank road constructed by virtue of this act, the county court shall appoint three inspectors of such roads, who shall not be interested in any plank road, and who shall hold their offices during the pleasure of the court. Before entering on their duties, they shall take an oath faithfully to perform the duties of their office, and file the same in the office of the clerk of the county court.

(421.) SEC. XXV. Whenever any such company shall have completed their road, or any two consecutive miles thereof, application may be made to any two of the inspectors, to be appointed as aforesaid by the court of the county in which the road, or the part thereof to be inspected, is constructed, to inspect the same; which inspectors shall be allowed two dollars per day for the time necessarily employed, to be paid by the company whose road they inspect; and if they find that the road so inspected, or two or more miles thereof, is constructed according to the true intent and meaning of this act, and is fit for use, they shall sign a certificate to that effect.

(422.) SEC. XXVI. Upon filing a certificate as aforesaid, of the inspectors, or two of them, in the office of the clerk of the county court, the company may erect one or more toll-gates upon the road, and may demand and receive toll not exceeding the following rates: For every vehicle drawn by one animal, two cents per mile; for every vehicle drawn by two animals, three cents a mile; for every vehicle drawn by more than two animals, three cents a mile, and one half cent additional a mile for every animal more than two; for every ten of neat cattle, one cent a mile; for every ten of sheep or swine, one cent a mile; and for every horse and rider, or led horse, one cent per mile.

(423.) SEC. XXVII. The stockholders of every company incorporated under this act, shall be liable in their individual capacity for the payment of the debts of such company, for an amount equal to the amount of stock they severally have subscribed or hold in said company over and above such stock, to be recovered of the stockholder who is such when the debt is contracted, or of any subsequent stockholder; and any stockholder who may have paid any demand against such company, either voluntarily, or by compulsion, shall have a right to resort to the rest of the stockholders liable, for contribution. The dissolution of any company shall not release or affect the liability of any stockholder, which may have been incurred before such dissolution.

(424.) SEC. XXVIII. The debts and liabilities of any company formed under this act, shall not exceed in amount, at any one time, fifty per cent. of the amount of its capital actually paid in; and if such debts and liabilities shall at any time exceed such amount, the stockholders who were such at the time any excess of debts or liabilities shall be created or incurred, shall be jointly and severally individually liable for such excess, in addition to their other individual liability as provided in this act.

(425.) SEC. XXIX. In any action against any company formed under the provisions of this act, the plaintiff may include as defendants any one or more of the stockholders of such company, who shall, by virtue of the provisions of this act, be claimed to be liable to contribute to the payment of the plaintiff's claim; and if judgment be given against such company, in favor of the plaintiff, for his claim, or any part thereof, and one or more stockholders, so made defendants, shall be found to be liable as aforesaid, judgment shall be given against him or them, and shall show the extent of his or their liabilities individually. The execution upon such judgment shall direct the collection of the sum for which it may be issued, of the property of such company liable to be levied upon by virtue thereof; and in case such property sufficient to satisfy the same cannot be found, that the deficiency, or so much thereof as the stockholders who shall be defendants in such judgment shall be liable to pay, shall be collected of the property of such stockholders respectively. And if in any such action any one or more of such stockholders shall be found not to be liable for the demand of the plaintiff, or any part thereof, judgment shall be given for the stockholders so found not to be liable, but no verdict or judgment in favor of any such stockholders shall prevent the plaintiff in such action from proceeding therein against the company alone, or against the company and such defendants who are stockholders as shall be liable for such demand, or some portion thereof. Suits may be brought against one or more stockholders who are claimed to be liable for any debt owing by the company, or any part of such debt, without joining the company in such suit, but no such suit shall be so brought, until judgment on the demand shall have been obtained against the company, and execution thereon returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, or the company shall have been dissolved; and in such suit there may be a verdict and judgment in favor of any defendant not liable as aforesaid, but such verdict and judgment shall not prevent the plaintiff in such suit from proceeding therein against any defendant who shall be liable as aforesaid.

(426.) SEC. XXX. Where any services shall be rendered by any officer or person in the proceedings under this act, and no specific fees have been fixed by law, the compensation to be paid by the company to such officer or person, shall be taxed by the court under whose direction the services may have been rendered.

(427.) SEC. XXXI. Any plank road and its appurtenances, that may be constructed by virtue of this act, shall, for revenue purposes, be deemed real estate, and be liable as such to taxation.

(428.) SEC. XXXII. All companies formed under this act, shall, for any violation of its provisions, to be determined by a judicial investigation, forfeit their corporate privileges. Such companies shall at all times be subject to visitation and examination by the legislature, or a committee appointed by either house thereof, or by any officer or agent in pursuance of law.

(429.) SEC. XXXIII. Every company incorporated under this act shall cease to be a body corporate, if, within two years from the filing of their articles of association, they shall not have commenced the construction of their road, and actually expended thereon at least ten per cent. of the capital stock of such company; or if, within five years from such filing of the articles of association, such road shall not be completed according to the provisions of this act.

(430.) SEC. XXXIV. The county court of any county is hereby authorized to subscribe to the stock of any plank road lying in said county, to an amount not exceeding one-third of said stock, and such county shall be subject to all the liabilities and have all the rights of a stockholder, as provided by this act.

The value of such superstructure shall be ascertained by reference to three disinterested citizens of such county, one of whom shall be appointed by the board of supervisors or county court (as the case may be) of said county, one other by said company, and they two shall choose the third, and their decision, under oath, to be binding and final upon both parties.

If any person shall forcibly pass any toll-gate on any such road, without having paid the legal toll, without the permission of the toll collector, he or she shall forfeit and pay to such company owning such road, the sum of twenty-five dollars for each offense. All penalties and forfeitures incurred under this act may be recovered by action of debt in any court having cognizance thereof, and where the penalty or forfeiture does not exceed the sum of one hundred dollars, the same may be prosecuted and recovered before any justice of the peace of the county where the offender or offenders may be committed. or refuse, on or before the day in such rule named, to file an instrument of writing of some responsible person, being a resident of this State, whereby he shall bind himself to pay all costs which have accrued or may accrue in such action, the court shall, on motion, dismiss the suit.

SEC. III. If any court shall, before or after the commencement of any suit, be satisfied that the plaintiff is a poor person, and unable to prosecute his or her suit, and pay the costs and expenses thereof, they may, in their discretion, permit him or her to commence and prosecute his or her action, as a poor person; and thereupon such person shall have all the necessary writs, process and proceedings as in other cases, without fees or charge. The court may assign to such person counsel, who, as well as all other officers of the court, shall perform their duties in such suit without any fees, charge or reward; if judgment be entered for the plaintiff, there shall be judgment for his costs; which costs shall be collected for the use of said officers.

SEC. IV. If any person shall sue in any court of this State in any action, real, personal or mixed, or upon any statute for any offense or wrong immediately personal to the plaintiff, and shall recover any debt or damage in such action, then the plaintiff or demandant shall have judgment to recover costs against the defendant to be taxed; and the same shall be recovered, together with the debt or damages, by execution, except in the cases hereinafter mentioned.

SEC. V. If any person shall sue in any court of record of this State, in any action, wherein the plaintiff or demandant might have costs in case judgment be given for him, and he be non-pros'd, or suffer a discontinuance, or be non-suited after appearance of the defendant, or a verdict pass against him, then the defendant shall have judgment to recover his costs against the plaintiff (except against executors or administrators prosecuting in the right of their testator or intestate,) or demandant to be taxed, and the same shall be recovered of the plaintiff or demandant, by like process as the plaintiff or demandant might have had against the defendant, in case judgment had been given for such plaintiff or demandant.

SEC. VI. Any person making avowry, justification or cognizance in replevin, if the same be found for him, or the plaintiff be non-suited or non-pros'd, suffer a discontinuance, or be otherwise barred, then such person shall recover his damages and costs against the plaintiff, in like manner as the plaintiff would have done, if the same had been found against the defendant.

SEC. VII. If, in any action, judgment upon any demurrer, by either party to the action, shall be given against the plaintiff or demandant, the defendant shall recover costs against the plaintiff or demandant. If such judgment be given for the plaintiff or demandant, he shall recover costs against the defendant; and the person so recovering costs, shall have exception for the same.

SEC. VIII. Where any defendant in any action, or plaintiff in replevin, shall plead several matters, and any of such matters, upon demurrer joined, shall be adjudged insufficient, or if a verdict shall be found, in any issue of the cause, for the plaintiff or demandant, costs shall be given at the discretion of the court.

SEC. IX. Where there are several counts in any declaration, and any one of them be adjudged insufficient, or a verdict on any issue joined thereon, shall be found for the defendant, costs shall be awarded in the discretion of the court.

SEC. X. Where several persons are made defendants to any action of trespass, assault, false imprisonment, detinue, replevin, trover or ejectment, and any one or more of them shall, upon the trial, be acquitted by verdict, every person so acquitted shall recover his costs of suit, in like manner as if such verdict of acquittal had been given in favor of all the defendants.

SEC. XI. In all suits upon any writ of scire facias, or upon prohibition, the plaintiff obtaining judgment, or an award of execution, after plea pleaded, or demurrer joined therein, shall recover his costs of suit; if the plaintiff shall be non-suited or non-pros'd, or suffer a discontinuance, or a verdict shall pass against him, the defendant shall recover his costs.

SEC. XII. In no case in the circuit court shall the fees of more than four witnesses be taxed against the party against whom judgment shall be given for costs, unless the court shall certify on their minutes, that more than four witnesses were really necessary; in which case the clerk shall tax the costs of as many witnesses as the court shall so certify.

SEC. XIII. In all cases where any action shall be dismissed for irregularity, or be non-pros'd or non-suited, by reason that the plaintiff neglects to prosecute the same, the defendant shall have judgment for his costs, to be taxed, and have execution therefor.

SEC. XIV. In all suits and actions commenced or to be commenced for and on behalf of the people of this State, or the governor thereof, or for or on behalf of any county of this State, or in the name of any person for the use of the people of this State or any county, then and in every such case, if the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall recover any debt or damages in such action or suit, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall recover costs as any other person in like cases; but if such plaintiff or plaintiffs suffer a discontinuance, or be non-suited or non-pros'd, or verdict pass against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, the defendant shall not recover any costs whatever. Nothing in this section contained shall extend to any popular action, nor to any action to be prosecuted by any person in behalf of himself and the people or a county, upon any penal statute.

SEC. XV. Upon the complainant dismissing his bill in equity, or the defendant dismissing the same for want of prosecution, the defendant shall recover against the complainant full costs; and in all other cases in chancery, not otherwise directed by law, it shall be in the discretion of the court to award costs or not; and the payment of costs, when awarded, may be compelled by execution.

SEC. XVI. When any suit shall be commenced in the name of one person, to the use of another, the person to whose use the action is brought, shall be held liable and bound for the payment of all costs which the plaintiff may be adjudged or bound to pay, to be recovered by action on the case.

SEC. XVII. In all cases of appeal or certiorari upon the judgments of justices of the peace, when the judgment of the justice of the peace shall be wholly affirmed or reversed, the party succeeding shall recover from the opposite party his costs, not only in the circuit court, but before the justice of the peace, and shall have his execution therefor: where the judgment of the justice of the peace shall be affirmed in part, then the court shall divide the costs between the parties, according to the justice of the case.

SEC. XVIII. In all cases of appeal from the decision of a court of probate, the costs shall be in the discretion of the circuit court.

SEC. XIX. If any person shall sue out a writ of error, or take an appeal to the supreme court, to review the judgment of the circuit court, and the same judgment be affirmed, or the writ of error be discontinued or quashed, or the plaintiff in error or appellant be non-sued, the defendant in error or appellee shall recover his costs, and have execution therefor; and if the judgment be reversed, the appellant or plaintiff in error shall recover his costs, and shall have execution therefor, as in other cases.

SEC. XX. In every such case, if the judgment or decree be affirmed in the whole, the party prosecuting such writ of error or appeal shall pay to the opposite party a sum not exceeding ten per centum on the amount of the judgment or decree so attempted to be reversed, at the discretion of the court, and in addition to the costs, shall have judgment and execution therefor: Provided, The supreme court shall be of opinion that such appeal or writ of error was prosecuted for delay.

SEC. XXI. Where such judgment or decree shall be reversed in part, and affirmed in part, the costs shall be apportioned between the parties, according to the discretion of the supreme court.

SEC. XXII. The clerk of any court in this State is hereby authorized and required to tax and subscribe all bills of costs arising in any cause or proceeding instituted in the court of which he is clerk, agreeably to the rates which shall, for the time being, be allowed or specified by law; and shall in no case allow any item or charge unless he shall be satisfied that the service for which it was made, was actually performed in the cause.

SEC. XXIII. If any person shall feel himself aggrieved by the taxation of any bill of costs by the clerk, he may apply to the court in which the action or proceeding was had, to re-tax the same, according to law. If the said court shall find any charge allowed for services not performed, or for which the person charged is not liable, or any item charged higher than by law is allowed, then the court shall correct such taxation; and if the party aggrieved shall have paid such unlawful charge, the clerk shall forfeit all fees allowed to him for taxation; and shall pay to the party aggrieved the whole amount which he may have paid by reason of the allowing of such unlawful charge.

SEC. XXIV. In all cases where either party shall be adjudged to pay costs before final judgment, by reason of setting aside, a non-suit, default or non-pros', or the granting of a continuance or new trial, or otherwise, and in all cases where there is security for costs, or attorney liable for costs, or an action brought to the use of another, and the plaintiff shall be adjudged to pay the costs, either before or upon final judgment, it shall be lawful for the clerk to make out and tax a bill of costs so adjudged to be paid, against the party adjudged to pay the same, and against his security for costs, or other person liable for the payment thereof, or either of them, and certify the same under the seal of the court, which being delivered to the sheriff of the proper county, he shall demand payment from the person therein charged; if payment shall not be made accordingly, within thirty days after such demand, the sheriff shall levy the same on the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the person so chargeable, and proceed therein in all things as on a writ of feri facias.

A security for costs may be discharged in order to be made a witness, and another security substituted. Kimmel v. Schwartz, Breese, 216.

A judgment need not state the amount of costs in numero. Sims v. Klein, Breese, 292.

Under the statute "concerning costs," a judgment for costs cannot be rendered against an administrator in his personal character. Church et al. v. Jewett et al., 1 S. 55; Bailey v. Campbell, 110.

The board of canal commissioners, like other litigants, are liable to pay costs, out of the canal fund, in suits commenced by the board for the benefit of the fund. The People ex rel. v. The Board of Commissioners, &c., 3 S. 545.

The State never gives bond for costs in any case, nor ever pays costs except in some special way required by statute. People v. Pierce, 1 G. 553.

In a suit, by a resident of the State, for the use of another, affidavits of the insolvency of the person for whose use the suit was brought, and motion for security for costs, were made. The motion was denied, as the nominal plaintiff was a citizen, and liable for costs. Buckmaster for use, &c., v. Beames et al., 3 G. 1.

In the supreme court, a motion founded on affidavit was made, to dismiss the writ of error, unless the beneficial plaintiff should indemnify the nominal plaintiff against costs. Motion allowed. If a bond for costs is objected to, the burthen of proof to show it to be sufficient, is on the party presenting it. Buckmaster for use, &c., v. Beames et al., 3 G. 97.

An equitable assignee of a chose in action, may sue on it in the name of the legal owner, but must indemnify such party against costs. Henderson v. Welch, 3 G. 340.

An attachment bond under the statute was sued on in the name of the sheriff for the use of the party in interest. Upon writ of error on such suit, in the supreme court, ordered, that indemnity against costs be given the sheriff, or the writ of error be dismissed. Young v. Campbell et al., 4 G. 156.

Motions for security for costs are addressed to the discretion of the court, and decisions thereon cannot be assigned for error. An administrator is not personally liable for costs. Selby v. Hutchinson, Administrator, 4 G. 319.

A non-resident commencing an action either in the circuit or supreme court, without first filing security for costs, such action must be dismissed. Hickman v. Haines, 5 G. 20.

In all actions on official bonds, for the use of any one, the person for whose use the suit is to be brought, must, before commencing suit, file security for costs, whether the action be commenced in the circuit or probate court. Robertson et al. v. County Commissioners, &c., 5 Gil. 559.

An action was brought in the probate court, on an official bond, without filing security for costs. No motion to dismiss the suit, for that cause, was made in that court: Held, that the party by omitting to make such motion, had waived his right to do so when the case was taken to the circuit court. Idem.

Under the 17th Section, Chapter XXVI, Revised Statutes, 1845, when the unsuccessful party before a justice of the peace, prosecutes an appeal to the circuit court, which results in an affirmance of the judgment below, the circuit court should charge the appellant with the costs of the appeal. O'Reer v. Strong, 13 Ill. 688.

A motion for security for costs against a non-resident, is too late if made after the time when the defendant should have pleaded in abatement. Randolph v. Emerick, 13 Ill. 344.

Under the 12th Section, Chapter XXVI, Revised Statutes, 1845, the successful party in a suit in the circuit court, can recover the fees of no more than four witnesses, unless the court certify that a greater number was necessary. Peoria & Bureau V. R. R. Co. v. Bryant, 15 Ill. 438.

(1.) SECTION I. Each county which has heretofore been or may hereafter be established in this State, according to the laws thereof, shall be a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of "The county of —," and by that name may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended against, in any court of record, either in law or equity, or other place where justice shall be administered.

(2.) SEC. II. There shall remain, as at present established, in each county of this State, and shall be established in each county hereafter created, a court of record, to be constituted, composed of three commissioners, elected by the people as hereinafter provided, to be styled "The county commissioners' court of — county."

(3.) SEC. III. Such commissioners shall be elected as provided in chapter thirty-seven (title "ELECTIONS,") of the Revised Statutes. Previous to entering upon their duties, they shall be sworn, before some justice of the peace, judge of the circuit court, or clerk of the circuit court, faithfully to perform the duties of their office to the best of their knowledge and ability.

(4.) SEC. IV. At the first meeting of such commissioners after they shall have been so elected and sworn, the clerk of said county commissioners' court, shall prepare three tickets, upon one of which he shall write the words "one year," upon another the words "two years," and upon the other the words "three years," which tickets so prepared shall be presented by said clerk with the writing thereon concealed, to such county commissioners, and each of said commissioners shall draw one of said tickets.

(5.) SEC. V. The term of service of the commissioner who draws the ticket upon which is written "one year," shall expire at the end of one year; the term of service of the commissioner who draws the ticket upon which is written "two years," shall expire at the end of two years; and the term of service of the commissioner who draws the ticket upon which is written "three years," shall expire at the end of three years; the result of which drawing shall be entered by the clerk upon the records of the court.

(6.) SEC. VI. The two preceding sections shall be deemed to apply only to commissioners elected at the first elections to be held in counties hereafter to be organized. Thereafter in all such new counties, as well as in all counties now organized according to law, one commissioner shall be elected at the general election in each year, as provided in chapter thirty-seven, (title "ELECTIONS,") to supply the place of the commissioner whose term of office shall then expire; it being intended that after such first election, each commissioner shall hold his office for the term of three years.

(7.) SEC. VII. Whenever a vacancy shall happen in the office of county commissioner by death, resignation or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the county commissioners' court of the county in which the vacancy shall happen, to issue his order to the judges of election in the different precincts in said county, requiring them on a certain day not less than twenty days from the date of such order, to hold an election to fill such vacancy:

Provided, That if the term of service of the commissioner whose vacancy is to be filled, would have expired within six months of the happening of said vacancy, it shall not be necessary for the clerk to order an election to fill such vacancy.

(8.) SEC. VIII. There shall be elected in each county, a county commissioners' clerk, who shall hold his office four years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In counties hereafter to be organized, they shall be elected at the first election of county commissioners, and in like manner every four years thereafter. In counties now existing, they shall be elected at the periods and in the order of time by law established.

(14.) SEC. XIV. All deeds, grants and conveyances, heretofore made, or which shall be hereafter made, and duly acknowledged and recorded, as other deeds conveying any lands, tenements or hereditaments, to any county or the inhabitants of any county and their successors, or to the county commissioners, or to the county commissioners' court, or to the governor, or any other person or persons by whatever form of conveyance, for the use and benefit of any county, shall be good and valid, to all intents and purposes, to vest in such county in fee simple or otherwise, all such right, title, interest and estate as the grantor or grantors in any such deed or conveyance had at the time of the execution thereof, in the lands conveyed, and was intended thereby to be conveyed.

(15.) SEC. XV. The county commissioners' court may, by their order to be entered on their minutes, appoint a commissioner to sell and dispose of any real estate of their county, and the deed of such commissioner, under his proper hand and seal, for and in behalf of such county, duly acknowledged and recorded, shall be sufficient, to all intents and purposes, to convey to the purchaser or purchasers, all the right, title, interest and estate whatever, which the county may then have in and to the premises so to be conveyed.

(16.) SEC. XVI. All notes, bonds, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements or writings made, or to be made, whereby any person or persons is, are or shall be bound to any county or the inhabitants thereof, or the county commissioners, or county commissioners' court, or to the governor, or any other person or persons, in whatever form, for the payment of money, or any debt or duty, or the performance of any matter or thing to the use of any county, shall be as valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, to vest in the said county all the rights, interest and actions, which would be vested in any individual, if any such contract had been made directly to him. Suits may be commenced, sued and prosecuted thereon in the name of said county, as is provided in the first section of this chapter, or in the name of the person to whom they are made, to the use of the county, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as any person may or can upon like notes, bills, bonds, contracts, agreements or writings made to him.

(17.) SEC. XVII. The county commissioners' court may appoint an agent or agents, to make any contract on behalf of such county for erecting any county building, or for any other purpose authorized by law. The contracts of such agent or agents, duly executed for and on behalf of such county, shall be valid and effectual to bind such county, to all intents and purposes.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. All actions, local or transitory, against any county, may be commenced and prosecuted to final judgment and execution in the circuit court of the county against which the action is brought. Any action, local or transitory, in which any county shall be plaintiff, may be commenced and prosecuted to final judgment in the county in which the defendant in such action resides. When any action shall be commenced against any county, a copy of the summons shall be left with the clerk of the commissioners' court, either during the sitting of said court, or so as a term of said court shall intervene between the day of leaving a copy of such summons and the return day thereof. There shall always be ten days between the service and return of every such summons. In all actions brought by or against every county, the inhabitants of the county so suing, or being sued, may be jurors or witnesses, if otherwise competent or qualified according to law.

(19.) SEC. XIX. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of each of the counties of this State, to take and order suitable and proper measures for the prosecuting and defending of all suits to be brought by or against their respective counties.

(20.) SEC. XX. When any judgment shall be rendered against any county, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court to order a warrant to be drawn on their treasurer for the amount of the judgment and costs; which warrant shall be paid as other county debts. Nothing herein contained shall authorize any execution to be issued against lands or other property of any county of this State.

(21.) SEC. XXI. All the counties of this State, or which shall hereafter be erected, which are or shall be bounded, or which may front on either the Mississippi or Wabash rivers, shall respectively have and exercise jurisdiction upon such rivers so far as the counties shall respectively be bounded by the rivers aforesaid; which jurisdiction shall be exercised concurrently by the counties aforesaid, with the contiguous States and territories bounded by said rivers, so far and to such extent as the said rivers shall form the boundary of the counties aforesaid respectively; and also the boundary between this State and contiguous States or territories.

(22.) SEC. XXII. There shall be four sessions of the county commissioners' court in each county in this State, to be holden at the usual place of holding courts, or at the office of the clerk, to commence on the first Mondays of March, June, September and December of each year, and continue six days, if the business shall not be sooner completed.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. Two commissioners shall constitute a quorum to do business. Should a quorum not meet at any stated meeting of the said court, then the said court shall be considered to be continued by law from day to day, if necessary, until four of the clock in the afternoon of the second day, and then if a quorum be not present for said court, the business therein to stand continued to the next court in course.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. Said special court shall have the same power and authority as when holding a stated court.

(25.) SEC. XXV. The said courts shall have jurisdiction throughout their respective counties in all matters and things concerning the county revenue, and regulating and imposing the county tax, and shall have power to grant licenses for ferries and for taverns, and all other licenses and things that may bring in a county revenue; and shall have jurisdiction in all cases of public roads, canals, turnpike roads and toll bridges, where the law does not prohibit the said jurisdiction of said courts; and shall have power and jurisdiction to issue all kinds of writs, warrants, process and proceedings by the clerk, throughout the State, which are necessary to the execution of the power and jurisdiction with which such courts are or may be vested by law.

(26.) SEC. XXVI. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners in each county, as soon as practicable, to cause to be procured, all the necessary official seals that may be requisite in their respective counties; and they shall be, and are hereby, authorized to draw on the county treasurer for the expense of any such seal or seals, which shall be paid for in the same manner as other county debts are paid.

(27.) SEC. XXVII. (100.) SEC. V. Whenever said copy of said record is filed and entered upon said probate records as aforesaid, the county court of said county shall have full and complete jurisdiction of the subject matter of said estate, to the same extent and with like effect that it would have had had the deceased person been a resident of said county at the time of his death, and said court shall proceed to make such order for the settlement of such estate as is now provided by law in other cases.

(101.) SEC. VI. All orders, decrees and judgments made or rendered by said court in regard to said estate, shall have the same force and effect (both in courts of law and equity,) that they would have had if the deceased person had been a resident of said county at the time of his death.

(105.) SEC. X. Certified copies of all papers and proceedings transmitted under the provisions of this act, shall be admitted as evidence, and have the same force and effect as the original papers: Provided, That the fact that the county judge is a creditor of any such estate, shall not be such an interest as will authorize a change of venue.

DECISIONS. Under the act of March 24, 1819, county commissioners have no power to contract except as a court. County Commissioners of Randolph County v. Jones, Breece, 103.

Under the act of Feb. 17, 1827, county commissioners cannot grant a license to keep a ferry, to the trustees of a town, or other like corporation. The county commissioners' court is the mere creature of the statute, and though authorized to be created by the constitution, its powers and duties are limited and defined by law, and are partly judicial and partly ministerial. Betts v. Menard, Appendix to Breece, 11.

A county is not bound to pay interest on county orders. Madison County v. Bartlett, 1 S. 67.

A county order for any specific sum in dollars, or its equivalent in State paper, is an order either for that sum in specie, or for so many State paper dollars as will amount to that sum, at their current value. Idem.

Statutes defining the boundaries of a county are public acts, and the courts are bound judicially to notice them. In an action of qu. cl. fr., proof that the trespass was committed in the section, township and range alleged, is sufficient, without proof that such section was in the county alleged. Ross et al. v. Reddick, 1 S. 73.

A contract, made by county commissioners, with a physician, to render professional services to a pauper, and not entered on record, may be proved by parol.

One, who has, at the request of the county commissioners, rendered aid to a person acknowledged as a pauper by the county commissioners, need not prove the pauper legally entitled to such aid, in order to entitle him to recover for such service.

Neither by the constitution, nor the act of March 22, 1819, has the court of county commissioners' jurisdiction to determine civil causes, or criminal suits, where the State, or individuals, or corporations, are parties.

County commissioners acting as a court only, can bind the county by their contracts. Vermilion County v. Knight, 1 S. 97.

Before the passage of the act of Jan. 7, 1835, county commissioners could not legally convey the real estate of their county. The act of 1835 makes conveyances of real estate of the county, executed by the county commissioners before that time in good faith, and even in their individual names and under their private seals, as county commissioners on behalf of the county, valid and effectual. Williams v. Clayton et al., 1 S. 502.

Money appropriated to counties under the "Act to establish and maintain a general system of internal improvements," could be loaned by the courts of county commissioners; and they might appoint agents to loan the same, and take bonds from such agents for the faithful discharge of their duties; and such bonds are valid. Kitchens v. County Commissioners of Greene County, 4 S. 485.

A county is not liable to the clerk of the circuit court for his fees on a scire facias upon a recognizance. Edgar County v. Mayo, 3 G. 82.

County commissioners have exclusive jurisdiction, and a discretionary power, limited by the statute, over all matters relating to roads in their counties. Eyman et al. v. People, 1 G. 4; Nealy v. Brown et al., County Commissioners, 1 G. 10.

On the trial of an indictment against county commissioners for refusal or neglect to repair a bridge, the defendants may prove a personal inspection of the bridge, in order to ascertain its condition, and that the supervisor had not used all the means in his control to make necessary repairs; and on such trial it must be shown that the omission of duty was willful. Eyman et al. v. People, 1 G. 4.

An error in judgment or policy, will not subject a tribunal having discretionary power, to punishment under an indictment for palpable omission of duty. Idem.

Under the statute, the county commissioners' court may enforce its orders, decrees and judgments, by attachment or other process, and may punish for contempts. Ex parte Thatcher, 2 G. 167.

A clerk of a county commissioners' court, appealed from an order of that court, removing him from office, and gave bond on such appeal: Held, that the appeal and giving bond operated as a supersedeas. Idem.

After such appeal, the county commissioners' court appointed a new clerk, and ordered the old clerk to deliver up the books, &c., of his office. Upon refusal to deliver, the county commissioners' court caused the old clerk to be arrested for a contempt: Held, that after such appeal, no successor of the clerk could be appointed, and that the court could not punish for a contempt in such case. Idem.

Counties can neither sue or be sued at the common law. Their rights and liabilities depend on statutory enactment. Schuyler County v. Mercer County, 4 G. 20.

All actions against a county must be commenced and prosecuted to judgment and execution in the circuit court of that county. All actions wherein a county is plaintiff, must be commenced and prosecuted to judgment in the county of the defendant. Idem.

Ordinarily, a law which in general terms speaks of plaintiffs and defendants, applies to persons only, and does not apply to States, counties and municipal corporations, unless expressly named. Idem.

Applications to the county commissioners' court, for reduction of assessments on property, are addressed to its discretion only, and cannot be reviewed elsewhere. Morgan v. Smithson et al., County Commissioners, 4 G. 368.

A statute providing for the division of a county, and the formation of a new county from the same territory, but to take effect only upon a majority of votes of the people being cast for such division, is not unconstitutional. People ex rel. v. Reynolds, 5 G. 1.

A county is a public corporation subject to the control of the legislature; and the legislature may release a penalty recovered in a popular action brought for the benefit of a county. Holliday v. People, 5 G. 214. See also, Coles v. Madison County, Breese, 115.

County commissioners in making settlements with collectors of the revenue, act as agents of the State, and do not adjudicate as a court. Their orders entered upon their records, are memoranda only, and only prima facie evidence of the correctness of the result stated. Mistakes made in such settlements may be inquired into and corrected. Washington County v. Parlier et al., 5 G. 232.

Declarations of county commissioners, are not evidence against their county, unless made while officially representing the county, and while engaged in the transaction respecting which the declaration is made. La Salle County v. Simmons, 5 G. 513.

A book kept in the clerk's office of the county commissioners, under their direction, respecting the affairs of the county, though not a public record, is prima facie evidence against the county of the facts stated therein. Idem.

Counties are not liable to pay interest on their contracts, except in pursuance of an express agreement to do so. Pike County v. Hosford, 11 Ill. 170.

If a specific fund be given by the legislature to a county, to be held in trust for certain purposes, and the fund be diverted from its purpose, and mixed with the general funds of the county, a mandamus may be awarded, directing the payment of the fund to the proper purpose out of the general funds of the county. Pike County v. The State, 11 Ill. 202.

A conveyance of land to a county, in consideration that the county seat be located at a particular place, does not deprive the legislature of the power to remove the county seat. The donors of the land, if the conveyance be unconditional, cannot recover damages for such removal. An agreement that the land should revert, in case of removal, should be expressed in the conveyance, and cannot rest in parol. Adams et al. v. Logan County, 11 Ill. 336.

By the constitution, the right of a county to adopt township organization, is made to depend expressly upon the affirmative vote of a majority of all within the county entitled to vote on the question. The power of the county court, over the county business, continues until the organization is adopted by such vote. The township organization law of February 12, 1849, is in force in the counties that have adopted the organization by such affirmative vote. People ex rel. v. Brown et al., 11 Ill. 478.

The money appropriated by the internal improvement act of Feb. 27, 1837, to the counties, through which no public works should be constructed, might, prior to the act of 1845, giving the money absolutely to certain counties, have been resumed or diverted by the legislature, and be as subject to its control. Richland County v. Lawrence County, 12 Ill. 1.

The legislature cannot abolish counties, and form their territory into one or more counties, nor take territory from one county and add it to another, nor remove a county seat, without submitting the act to a vote of the inhabitants affected by such changes. The People ex rel. v. Marshall, 12 Ill. 391.

The county court is a court of record, and has a general jurisdiction over a particular class of cases; its jurisdiction is limited but not inferior. Probst. Exr. v. Meadows, 13 Ill. 157.

The judge of the county court cannot entertain an insolvent proceeding, except when sitting as a court. The People v. Wilkinsen, 13 Ill. 660.

By implication, and a fair construction of all the statutes upon the subject, there is no doubt that the clerk of the county court succeeds to the office, powers and duties of the clerk of the county commissioners' court. People v. Thurber, 13 Ill. 554.

The term county court, as used in the 21st section of the act of Feb. 12, 1849, is intended to apply only to the sittings of the court for the transaction of county business. St. Clair County v. Irwin, 15 Ill. 54.

A county court, or board of supervisors, can remove a county treasurer only for causes specified in the statute; they have no general powers of removal. Clark v. The People, 15 Ill. 213.

Sec. XXI. The collectors of the State revenue in the several counties of this State, shall receive auditor's warrants in payment of any or all taxes due the State, in their respective counties, at par, and they shall not be permitted to take, buy, share or receive, directly or indirectly, by themselves or agent, any auditor's warrant or warrants, at less than the full sum due thereon to the holder of such warrant or warrants.

Sec. XXIII. It shall be the duty of the county treasurer of any county in this State, whenever any county order is presented for payment, to indorse on the back of any such order, the time when the same was presented for payment; and it shall also be the duty of the said treasurer, to set down in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, the amount and date of all such county orders, to whom made payable, and the time when presented to the said treasurer for payment; and all county orders shall be paid according to their original dates; and it shall be the duty of the county treasurer, whenever any money comes to his hands, to set apart the amount of the order presented as aforesaid, which money shall be kept by the treasurer until called for; and the said treasurer, when he goes out of office, shall deliver said book, containing a list of the county orders so presented, to his successor, who shall in all things act as though the entries of orders were made by himself.

(1.) SECTION I. There shall remain, as at present established, a supreme court, to be composed of one chief justice and eight associate justices, to be chosen and continued in office in manner and for the term provided in article fourth of the constitution.

(2.) SEC. II. The supreme court shall hold one session in each year, to commence on the second Monday in December, and continue in session until all the business before it is disposed of.

(3.) SEC. III. The sessions of the supreme court shall be held at the seat of government, unless by reason of pestilence or any other public calamity, the justices thereof shall see fit to change the same until the cause of such removal shall cease.

(4.) SEC. IV. Five of said justices shall constitute a quorum for business; and all questions submitted for decision shall be determined by a majority of the justices present at the hearing.

(5.) SEC. V. The chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court, previously to entering upon the duties required of them by law, shall, in addition to the oath to support the constitution of the United States and of this State, take the following oath of office: "I, A. B., chief justice (or associate justice, as the case may be.) of the supreme court, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will administer justice, without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, without sale or denial, promptly, without delay, conformably to the laws, without favor, affection or partiality, to the best of my judgment and abilities;" which oath or affirmation may be administered by any justice of the peace in this State; a certificate whereof shall be indorsed by the person administering the same, on the back of the commission of such judge, and another certificate thereof filed in the office of the secretary of State.

(6.) SEC. VI. The said supreme court may, from time to time, institute such rules of practice, and prescribe such forms of process to be used, and for the keeping of the dockets, records and proceedings, for the regulation of the said court, as shall be deemed most conducive to the due administration of justice; and it shall be the duty of the chief justice to examine the state of the clerk's office of the said court annually, and make report thereof to the next term of the court which shall be noted in the proceedings.

(7.) SEC. VII. The said supreme court shall exercise appellate jurisdiction only (except as is hereinafter excepted), and shall have final and conclusive jurisdiction of all matters of appeal, error or complaints from the judgment or decrees of any of the circuit courts of this State, and from such other inferior courts as may hereafter be established by law, in all matters of law and equity, wherein the rules of law or principles of equity appear, from the files, records or exhibits of any such court, to have been erroneously adjudged and determined. And the said supreme court is hereby empowered, authorized and enabled to take cognizance of all such causes as shall be brought before it in manner aforesaid, and shall be vested with all the power and authority necessary for carrying into complete execution all its judgments, decrees and determinations in the matters aforesaid, according to the laws, customs and usages of this State, and according to the rules and principles of the common law; and its judgments, decrees and determinations shall be final and conclusive on all the parties concerned.

(8.) SEC. VIII. If there shall not be a quorum of the justices of the said supreme court present, on the first day of any term, the court shall stand adjourned from day to day, until a quorum shall attend; and if, from any cause, the supreme court shall not sit on any day in a term after it shall have opened, there shall be no discontinuance, but so soon as the cause is removed, the court shall proceed to business until the end of the term, or until the business depending before it shall be disposed of.

(9.) SEC. IX. The chief justice and associate justices of the said supreme court, shall hold circuit courts as is herein provided for by law; and when either of the said judges shall, by death, resignation, removal from office or unavoidable absence, fail to attend and hold any of the circuit courts required of him by law, it shall be the duty of one of the other judges presiding in either of the other circuits, upon receiving information that such courts will not be holden, to attend in the said circuit, so situated, and hold courts therein, and exercise all the powers and jurisdiction, both in term time and vacation, that the judge assigned by law to such circuit could legally do, until the causes aforesaid, which authorize and require such judge to exercise such power and jurisdiction in such circuit, shall be removed.

(10.) SEC. X. If the said supreme court, or any of the circuit courts directed to be held by this chapter, shall not sit in any term, or shall not continue to sit the whole term, or before the end of the term shall not have heard and determined all matters and causes depending in said courts, all matters and causes depending and undetermined, shall stand continued until the next succeeding term.

(11.) SEC. XI. All process which shall be issued from the said supreme court, shall bear teste in the name of the chief justice, be signed by the clerk, dated when issued, and sealed with the seal of the court; and all such process shall be made returnable according to law, or such rules and orders as may be prescribed by the court.

(12.) SEC. XII. Any process which may be issued from the said supreme court or any justice thereof, or the clerk, according to law, shall be executed by the officer or person to whom it shall be directed in any county or place in this State, in the usual manner that process is or may be required to be executed and returned. The said court shall have power to punish contempts offered by any person to it while sitting, and for disobeying any of its process, rules and orders issued or made conformably to law.

(13.) SEC. XIII. The supreme court shall have original jurisdiction in all causes, suits and motions against public debtors, sheriffs, clerks and all collectors of the public revenue to the State, of every denomination whatsoever; and in all cases, where it may have been or may hereafter be the duty of any sheriff, clerk, collector or receiver of public moneys for the State, to make collections and settlements with the proper authority, if he or they have failed to do so, or shall hereafter fail to do so, and there shall appear any defect in the bond given by said officer or person or other proceeding, sufficient to exempt from liability the security or securities of such officer or person, or to defeat the ordinary proceedings against himself, the court shall have power to compel such person, whether in or out of office, who has either collected public money, or ought to have done so, to exhibit upon oath a full and fair statement of all moneys by him collected, and a list of all persons, as far as it may be practicable to obtain the same, of whom such person had a right to collect, and who had failed to pay him accordingly; and the court shall, upon hearing the whole case, without regard to form, have power to give such judgment for such sum or sums of money as such person ought to be liable to pay, according to the true spirit of the law and the principles of equity: Provided, That the person or persons as aforesaid shall have due and reasonable notice of the time of proceeding against him or them as aforesaid; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general to attend and prosecute the same.

(14.) SEC. XIV. The supreme court, or a majority of the justices thereof, shall appoint a clerk of said court, and may remove him from office at pleasure, for neglect of duty, mal-conduct in office, incompetency to perform the duties thereof, or for any other cause which shall be satisfactory to said court, or a majority thereof. The cause of such removal shall be entered upon the records of said court.

(15.) SEC. XV. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court to issue process, in all cases where process ought to be issued from the said court; and to keep and preserve complete records of all the decisions and proceedings of the said court. He shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take the following oath or affirmation before one of the justices of the supreme court: "I, A. B., being appointed clerk of the supreme court, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will truly and faithfully enter on record all the orders, decrees, judgments and proceedings of the said court, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties of my said office, according to the best of my abilities and understanding according to law;" and the said clerk shall keep his office at the seat of government, and shall do and perform all such acts and things as are or may be enjoined on him, and be entitled to such compensation as is or may be provided by law. And he shall, at the first term of said court after he shall be appointed, give bond to the Governor of this State and his successors in office, for the use of the people of the State, with one or more securities, to be approved by the said court, in the sum of three thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties, and to deliver up all moneys, papers, books, records and other things, appertaining to the same, whole, safe and undefaced, when lawfully required so to do; which bond so executed as aforesaid, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of State.

(16.) SEC. XVI. The parties in any suit or proceeding at law or in chancery, in any circuit court, may make an agreed case containing the points of law at issue between them, and file the same in the said court; and the said agreed case may be certified to the supreme court by the clerk of such circuit court, without certifying any fuller record in the case; and upon such agreed case being so certified and filed in the supreme court, the appellant or plaintiff in the error may assign errors, and the case shall then be proceeded in in the same manner as it might have been had a full record been certified to said supreme court.

(17.) SEC. XVII. Any judge of a circuit court may, if the parties litigant assent thereto, certify any question or questions of law arising in any case tried before him, to the supreme court, together with his decision thereon; or the parties in the suit may agree as to the questions or points of law arising in the case, and the same may be certified by the counsel or attorneys of the respective parties, who shall sign their names thereto; and upon such certificate being made, the same shall be filed in the circuit court, and a copy of such certificate certified by the clerk of said circuit court to the supreme court, and filed therein; and upon filing the same, the like proceedings may be had in the supreme court as if a full and complete record had been transcribed and certified to said court.

The terms of said circuit court to be held on the first Monday of May and the third Monday of November, and the terms of said court of common pleas to be held on the first Monday of February and the second Monday of September, shall be trial terms, at which jury trials shall have the preference of all other business, and all causes for trial shall be disposed of before any other business shall be taken up, excepting such business as may be incident to or necessary for the proper disposal of said jury trials: Provided, That in case the judges of said courts respectively shall direct the petit jury for any term, to be summoned to appear on the second week thereof, in such case any other causes may be tried or business disposed of during the first week of such term. The other terms of said courts herein provided for, shall be called vacation terms.

(86.) SEC. II. Any party desiring to have a motion, plea or other matter cognizable at a vacation term, disposed of, shall file a written notice thereof, together with the papers on which such motion is founded, in the clerk's office, and serve a copy of said notice on the attorney of the opposite party, or in case he has no attorney, then upon the opposite party, at least four days before the commencement of such term. The clerk shall make a list of such notices in the order in which the same are filed, and upon proof of due service thereof, the court shall take up and dispose of said matters in their order, unless satisfactory reasons for further delay be shown. (87.) SEC. III. Any party having commenced suit in either of said courts, shall be entitled to a default at any vacation term, upon proof of due service of process upon the defendant, and a copy of the declaration with a rule to plead, at least ten days before such term, unless such defendant, or the attorney of such defendant, if such defendant be a resident of such county, shall, before the expiration of said ten days, if the suit be founded on a contract, file a plea to said action, and also an affidavit setting forth that he believes he has a good defense to said suit upon the merits: Provided, however, That the defendant shall have a right to file a plea in abatement, demurrer or motion to quash said action, in which case said plea, demurrer or motion shall be in order to be disposed of at the term at which the same is filed, or at the next vacation term, in case the same shall be filed in vacation without service of notice. In all cases where it shall appear by affidavit or otherwise, that the defendant resides out of the county, the court may allow time to procure an affidavit of merits.

(88.) SEC. IV. In all cases where a demurrer, plea or motion shall be filed, which the court shall adjudge to be frivolous, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment, as in case of default. When the issue is made up in any cause at a vacation term, the parties shall determine whether the cause is to be tried by a jury, or by the court without the intervention of a jury, and an order of the court shall be made accordingly, and such cause shall be set down to be tried in the manner stated in said order, and not otherwise. A special jury may be summoned from the bystanders whenever the court may adjudge it necessary, at a trial term or a vacation term.

(90.) SEC. VI. In all cases where defaults have been taken, the court may, without the intervention of a jury, assess the damages, and execution may issue forthwith upon the rendition of judgment.

(91.) SEC. VII. All judgments rendered in either of said courts shall become liens from the time such judgment shall be entered on the judgment docket of such court: Provided, That as between judgment creditors and other parties claiming under the lien of such judgment rendered at the same term of the court, or on the same day in vacation, there shall be no preference or priority of the lien of one judgment over that of another.

(92.) SEC. VIII. The said courts shall always be open for the disposal of all matters in chancery, whether interlocutory or final, and shall possess all the power in vacation which they could exercise in term time, subject to such rules and regulations with respect to the practice as said courts may from time to time adopt: Provided, That no final decree shall be entered up, unless where specially authorized by statute, except at a vacation or regular term of said court.

(98.) SEC. XIV. In all suits arising on contracts, brought to any term of said courts, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment, unless the defendant shall, with his plea, file an affidavit of merits, plea in abatement, demurrer or motion to quash, as hereinbefore provided.

(99.) SEC. XV. A creditor's bill may be filed or garnishee process issued in either of said courts before the return day of the execution: Provided, That the execution shall first be returned by the sheriff unsatisfied, either in whole or in part, and that the plaintiff, or some person for him, shall file an affidavit, setting forth that there is danger that the benefit of said judgment will be lost unless the said plaintiff be allowed to file such creditor's bill or issue such garnishee process before the return day of such execution; and such garnishee process may be issued and the bond filed, approved by the clerk, in vacation, as well as in term time. It shall be the duty of the judges of the said courts to establish rules of practice not inconsistent with this act, and they shall endeavor to make the same uniform in each of said courts.

(100.) SEC. XVI. No grand or petit jury shall be summoned for any vacation term of either of said courts, unless the judge thereof shall make an order for summoning such jury or juries, which order may be made in vacation as well as in term time.

suits on confessions of judgments or the taking of appeals in the Cook county court of common pleas, shall hereafter be as follows: On confessions of judgments, two dollars for each confession; in suits on the law side of said court, two dollars and fifty cents in each suit; in appeal cases, one dollar and fifty cents in each suit; in chancery suits, three dollars in each suit; to be taxed, collected and paid, as provided in the fourth and fifth sections of "An act to provide for the election of certain officers therein named," approved February 6th, 1849. And the judge of said court shall hereafter receive the same salary from the State treasury that is paid to the respective judges of the circuit courts.

(102.) SEC. XVIII. (103.) SEC. XIX. In all applications for change of venue in criminal cases, the applicant shall set forth in his petition the particular facts and circumstances upon which his belief or fears are founded, and the granting or refusing such application shall be discretionary with the judge or court to whom the application may be made.

DECISIONS. The circuit court may, in its discretion, hear new testimony, after the commencement of the argument by the counsel. Bloom v. Goodner, Breese, 35.

Instructions as to the weight of evidence, given by the judge to the jury, are unnecessary and irregular. Humphries v. Correll et al., Breese, 231.

No particular form is required to render an order of a court, a judgment. It is enough if it be final, and a party may be injured thereby. Wells v. Hogan, Breese, 264.

The power to punish for contempts is incident to our courts, independent of the statute; and the exercise of this power will not be reviewed by the supreme court. Clark v. The People, Breese, 266. Contra, See Stuart v. The People, 3 S. 395.

When the court has no jurisdiction of the subject, consent of parties will not give it. Foiey v. The People, Breese, 31; Leigh v. Mason, 1 S. 249.

Refusing to grant a new trial is no ground of appeal. Judgment will not be reversed because instructions are not given to the jury precisely as asked, if they be substantially so. Littleton et al. v. Moss, Appendix to Breese, 9.

When the supreme court are equally divided in opinion, the judgment below will stand affirmed. Kerr et al. v. Whiteside, Appendix to Breese, 6.

The statute fixing the time of holding courts, passed March 2, 1839, took effect from its passage, no time being fixed by the act. Gould et al. v. Boynton et al., 1 S. 555.

By an act of March 2, 1839, the Spring term of the Cook circuit court was changed from March to the next April. The term was held in March. The proceedings at the term held, were coram non iudice, and its judgments illegal and void. Idem.

The criminal jurisdiction of the municipal court of the city of Chicago, is, by the act creating that court, confined to the territorial limits of the city. Bell v. The People, 1 S. 397.

The circuit courts are limited in their jurisdiction to the counties in which they are erected, except in cases where their jurisdiction is expressly extended by law. Clark v. Harkness, 1 S. 56.

If a court is held at a time unauthorized by law, all the judgments and proceedings of such term are void. Galusha v. Butterfield et al., 2 S. 227.

The circuit courts are the only superior courts of the State possessing original unlimited jurisdiction. While exercising such jurisdiction within the county where it is held, it is a superior court and its jurisdiction is presumed; if it extends its jurisdiction extra territorially, its jurisdiction must appear. Beaubien v. Brinkerhoff, 2 S. 269, and notes to the case.

Under the statutes, a judge of a circuit court cannot appoint a special term of the court to commence at a time when he is required by statute to hold a court in another county. Archer v. Ross, 2 S. 303, and notes to the case.

The 13th section of the statute of 1841, p. 106, requires the court to try all persons confined in jail at the time of holding a special term, and confers on the court the power to summon a grand jury whenever one is necessary for such trial. Gardner v. The People, 3 S. 83.

A writ of error may be sued out of the supreme court to reverse a decision of the circuit court fining a person for contempt of court. Stuart v. The People, 3 S. 395.

The supreme court has jurisdiction to award a writ of mandamus to a circuit judge. Upon refusal to obey such writ, an attachment will issue for a contempt. The People v. Pearson, 3 S. 270.

By the "Act regulating the supreme and circuit courts," (Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 147,) the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court is confined to "matters of error or complaint from the judgment or decree of any of the circuit courts;" but the instruction of a circuit court to its clerk, respecting the taxing of costs in a cause, is neither "a judgment or decree," nor "matter of error or complaint," authorizing an appeal therefrom, within the meaning of the statute. Miller v. Adams, 4 S. 195.

The time of holding the circuit courts is fixed by law, and every person is presumed to know when that time is. Rogers v. Miller, 4 S. 333.

Every presumption is in favor of the jurisdiction of a court of general jurisdiction. Wells v. Mason et al., 4 S. 84.

Terms of court fixed by law are still terms, whether there be any judge to hold the court or not. Downey v. Smith, 13 Ill. 671.

Original process can be issued to a different county from that in which the action is commenced, in the three following cases only: 1. Where the plaintiff resides in the county in which the action is commenced, and the cause of action accrued in such county; 2. Where the contract is specifically made payable in the county where the action is brought; 3. Where there are several defendants residing in different counties, and the action is commenced in a county in which some one of the defendants resides. When process is issued to a foreign county, the declaration should contain an averment of the facts necessary to authorize the issuing of the writ to such foreign county. An averment that the cause of action accrued in the county where the suit was brought, without averring that the plaintiff resided there at the time of the commencement of the suit, would be insufficient. An affidavit of the facts necessary to give the court jurisdiction, is not necessary to authorize the issuing of process to a foreign county; and if made, it is not a part of the record, nor does it dispense with the averment of those facts in the declaration. Key v. Collins, 1 S. 403; Shepard v. Ogden, 2 S. 257; Wakefield v. Goudy, 3 S. 133; Brown v. Bodwell, 4 S. 302; Clark v. Clark, 1 G. 33. See also, Semple v. Anderson, 4 G. 546; Haddock v. Waterman, 11 Ill. 474; Linton v. Anglin, 12 Ill. 284; Boilvin v. Edwards, 4 G. 115.

The general statement, under a videlicet, that at a particular time and place, the defendant was indebted, is no averment that the cause of action arose in that place. Shepard v. Ogden, 2 S. 257.

Circuit courts have general original jurisdiction, and exclusive jurisdiction in civil cases, except that given to justices of the peace; and they have jurisdiction, in civil cases, over all transitory actions, where the defendant comes, or is found within their territorial jurisdiction, though he may reside without or beyond it. Brewster et al. v. Scarborough, 2 S. 280. See also, Semple v. Anderson, 4 G. 546.

The circuit courts of this State are superior courts of general jurisdiction; and nothing shall be intended to be out of the jurisdiction of a superior court, except what specially appears to be so. The statute which prohibits the suing a defendant out of the county where he resides or may be found, confers a privilege, which he waives unless he makes his objection in apt time.

The cases of Key v. Collins, Gillet v. Stone, Evans v. Crozier, Shepard v. Ogden, Wakefield v. Grundy, Clark v. Harkness, Clark v. Clark, Boilvin v. Edwards, and Semple v. Anderson, are reviewed and partly overruled. Kenney et ux. v. Greer, 13 Ill. 432.

A corporation has its residence where it exercises corporate functions. The Aurora & Chicago Rail Road runs through the counties of Du Page, Kane and La Salle; but its chief office for business is in Cook county; this gives the courts of Cook county jurisdiction over it. Bristol v. Chicago & Aurora R. R. Co., 15 Ill. 436.

The unlawful killing may be perpetrated by poisoning, striking, starving, drowning, stabbing, shooting, or by any other of the various forms or means by which human nature may be overcome, and death thereby occasioned.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. Express malice is that deliberate intention unlawfully to take away the life of a fellow creature, which is manifested by external circumstances capable of proof.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. Malice shall be implied when no considerable provocation appears, or when all the circumstances of the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart. The punishment of any person or persons convicted of the crime of murder shall be death.

(25.) SEC. XXV. Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of a human being, without malice express or implied, and without any mixture of deliberation whatever. It must be voluntary, upon a sudden heat of passion, caused by a provocation apparently sufficient to make the passion irresistible or involuntary, in the commission of an unlawful act, or a lawful act without due caution or circumspection.

(26.) SEC. XXVI. In cases of voluntary manslaughter, there must be a serious and highly provoking injury inflicted upon the person killing, sufficient to excite an irresistible passion in a reasonable person, or an attempt by the person killed to commit a serious personal injury on the person killing.

(27.) SEC. XXVII. The killing must be the result of that sudden, violent impulse of passion, supposed to be irresistible; for if there should appear to have been an interval between the assault or provocation given and the killing, sufficient for the voice of reason and humanity to be heard, the killing shall be attributed to deliberate revenge, and punished as murder.

(28.) SEC. XXVIII. Involuntary manslaughter shall consist in the killing of a human being without any intent to do so, in the commission of an unlawful act, or a lawful act, which probably might produce such a consequence, in an unlawful manner: Provided, always, That where such involuntary killing shall happen in the commission of an unlawful act, which in its consequences naturally tends to destroy the life of a human being, or is committed in the prosecution of a felonious intent, the offense shall be deemed and adjudged to be murder.

(29.) SEC. XXIX. Every person convicted of the crime of manslaughter shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding eight years.

(30.) SEC. XXX. In order to make the killing either murder or manslaughter, it is requisite that the party die within a year and a day after the stroke received or the cause of death administered; in the computation of which, the whole of the day on which the hurt was done shall be reckoned the first.

(31.) SEC. XXXI. If the injury be inflicted in one county and the party die within another county or without the State, the accused shall be tried in the county where the cause of death was administered. And if the party killing shall be in one county and the party killed be in another county, at the time the cause of death shall be administered, the accused may be tried in either county.

(32.) SEC. XXXII. Justifiable homicide is the killing of a human being in necessary self-defense, or in the defense of habitation, property or person, against one who manifestly intends or endeavors by violence or surprise to commit a known felony, such as murder, rape, robbery, burglary and the like, upon either person or property, or against any person or persons who manifestly intend and endeavor, in a violent, riotous or tumultuous manner, to enter the habitation of another for the purpose of assaulting or offering personal violence to any person dwelling or being therein.

(33.) SEC. XXXIII. A bare fear of any of these offenses, to prevent which the homicide is alleged to have been committed, shall not be sufficient to justify the killing. It must appear that the circumstances were sufficient to excite the fears of a reasonable person, and that the party killing, really acted under the influence of those fears and not in a spirit of revenge.

(34.) SEC. XXXIV. If a person kill another in self-defense, it must appear that the danger was so urgent and pressing, that in order to save his own life, or to prevent his receiving great bodily harm, the killing of the other was absolutely necessary; and it must appear also, that the person killed was the assailant, or that the slayer had really, and in good faith, endeavored to decline any further struggle before the mortal blow was given.

(35.) SEC. XXXV. If any officer in the execution of his office in a criminal case, having legal process, be resisted and assaulted, he shall be justified if he kill the assailant. If an officer or private person attempt to take a person charged with treason, murder, rape, burglary, robbery, arson, perjury, forgery, counterfeiting or other crime, denominated felony by the common law, and he or they be resisted in the endeavor to take the person accused, and to prevent the escape of the accused by reason of such resistance, he or she be killed, the officer or private person so killing shall be justified: Provided, That such officer or private person, previous to such killing, shall have used all reasonable efforts to take the accused without success, and that from all probability, there was no prospect of being able to prevent injury from such resistance and the consequent escape of such accused person.

(36.) SEC. XXXVI. Justifiable homicide may also consist in unavoidable necessity, without any will or desire, and without any inadvertence or negligence in the party killing. An officer, who in the execution of public justice, puts a person to death in virtue of a judgment of a competent court of justice, shall be justified. The officer must, however, in the performance of his duty, proceed according to the sentence and the law of the land.

(37.) SEC. XXXVII. Excusable homicide, by misadventure, is when a person in doing a lawful act, without any intention of killing, yet unfortunately kills another; as where a man is at work with an axe and the head flies off and kills a bystander; or where a parent is moderately correcting his child, or master his servant or scholar, or an officer punishing a criminal, and happens to occasion death, it is only a misadventure, for the act of correction was lawful; but if a parent or master exceed the bounds of moderation, or the officer the sentence under which he acts, either in the manner, the instrument or quantity of punishment, and death ensue, it will be manslaughter or murder, according to the circumstances of the case.

(38.) SEC. XXXVIII. All other instances which stand upon the same footing of reason and justice as those enumerated, shall be considered justifiable or excusable homicide.

(39.) SEC. XXXIX. The homicide appearing to be justifiable or excusable, the person indicted shall, upon his trial, be fully acquitted and discharged.

(40.) SEC. XL. the end of each term, to issue an execution for every fine which shall have been imposed during the term, and which remains unpaid, and for all costs of conviction in criminal cases; in which execution shall be stated the day on which the arrest was made, or indictment found, as the case may be, which execution shall be delivered to the sheriff or coroner, and shall be by him levied on all the estate, real and personal, which the defendant or defendants possessed, as his or her own real or personal estate, on the day mentioned in such execution, and any property, real and personal, subsequently acquired by him or her; which property, so to be levied upon, shall be advertised as in civil cases, and sold for what it will bring. It shall be no objection to the selling of any property under such execution, that the body is in custody for said fine and costs.

(239.) SEC. CXCH. It shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, convicted of any criminal offense, to replevy the judgment for the fine and costs, or the costs only, when no fine shall be imposed, by such convicted person or persons, with one or more good and sufficient freeholder, entering into a recognizance before the circuit court, to the people of this State, for the payment of such fine and costs, or costs only, within five months from the date of the acknowledgment, which recognizance, so taken, is hereby declared valid in law, and to create a lien on the real estate of all such persons as shall acknowledge the same; and upon the breach thereof, the clerk is hereby authorized to issue an execution against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the persons who entered into recognizance, in the same manner as if it had been a judgment of the court, which execution shall be collected in the same manner as is prescribed in the preceding section. No scire facias shall be necessary previous to issuing such execution. In all cases where the person or persons, convicted as aforesaid, shall replevy the fine and costs, as is provided in this section, then no execution shall issue for said fine and costs, as is prescribed in the next preceding section; and further, such person or persons, after replevying the fine and costs, as aforesaid, shall not be imprisoned for such fine and costs, but such person or persons shall be wholly discharged from any imprisonment in consequence of any conviction, unless where imprisonment is by this chapter made a part of the punishment; in that case, such convicted person or persons shall be discharged from his or her or their imprisonment, at the expiration thereof, if he, she or they have replevied the fine and costs as aforesaid.

(240.) SEC. CXCV. Executions for fines and costs of prosecution, and on recognizances taken in pursuance of the preceding section, may be issued into any county in this State.

(241.) SEC. CXCVI. Whenever it shall be made satisfactorily to appear to the circuit court, after all legal means have been exhausted, that any person who is confined in jail for any fine or costs of prosecution, for any criminal offense, hath no estate wherewith to pay such fine and costs, or costs only, it shall be the duty of the said court to discharge such person from further imprisonment for such fine and costs, which discharge shall operate as a complete release of such fine and costs: Provided, That nothing herein shall authorize any person to be discharged from imprisonment before the expiration of the time for which he or she may be sentenced to be imprisoned, as part of his or her punishment.

(242.) SEC. CXCVI. In all cases of bail for the appearance of any person or persons charged with any criminal offense, the security or securities of such person or persons may, at any time before judgment is rendered upon scire facias to show cause why execution should not issue against such security or securities, seize and surrender such person or persons, charged as aforesaid, to the sheriff of the county wherein the recognizance shall be taken; and it shall be the duty of such sheriff, on such surrender and the delivery to him of a certified copy of the recognizance by which such security or securities are bound, to take such person or persons, so charged as aforesaid, into custody, and by writing acknowledge such surrender, and thereupon the security or securities shall be discharged from any such recognizance, upon payment of all costs occasioned thereby.

(243.) SEC. CXCVII. In the trial of any person or persons, for any crime or misdemeanor, it shall be the duty of the judge before whom such trial is pending, to sign and seal any bill of exceptions tendered to the court during the progress thereof: Provided, The truth of the case be fairly stated in such bill of exceptions; and thereupon the said exceptions shall, by the clerk of the said court, be entered in the record of such trial, and become, to all intents and purposes, a part thereof.

(244.) SEC. CXCVIII. The party aggrieved by manifest and material error, appearing of record, in any capital prosecution by indictment, may be relieved by writ of error, upon complying with the following terms, to wit: The party complaining that error has been committed, shall obtain a certified copy of the record from the clerk, and from the judge of the circuit court, or from the person who acted as prosecuting attorney on the trial, a certificate expressive of an opinion that said record contains a full and true history of the proceedings on said trial; which record, together with an assignment of the errors relied on for the reversal of the judgment, shall be presented to the supreme court, or to one of the justices thereof, in vacation; and if, after inspecting such transcript, the court or justice aforesaid shall be of opinion that there is reasonable cause for allowing a writ of error, the same shall be granted by order indorsed on the back of said transcript. The allowance of such writ of error shall be sufficient authority to the clerk of the supreme court, to issue a supersedeas to stay the execution of the sentence of death, but not the discharge of the prisoner from jail. Where any judgment, the execution whereof has been stayed by writ of error, as aforesaid, shall be affirmed, the supreme court shall, by order, fix the time when the original sentence of death shall be executed, a copy of which order shall be sufficient authority to the sheriff for the execution of any prisoner therein mentioned, at the time specified.

(245.) SEC. CXCVI. Writs of error in all criminal cases not capital, shall be considered as writs of right, and issue of course; but no writ of error shall be a supersedeas, unless the supreme court, or one of the justices thereof in vacation, after inspecting a copy of the record, certified as in the preceding section, together with an assignment of the errors relied on for a reversal of the judgment, shall be of opinion that there is reasonable cause for allowing a writ of error, then the writ shall be granted, by order indorsed on the back of such record, in which case the clerk of the supreme court shall issue a supersedeas, which shall have the effect to stay execution of the sentence, but not to discharge the prisoner from custody. If the party applying for such writ of error shall at the time be in custody, under the authority of the judgment prayed to be superseded, and the said court or justice shall be of opinion that the party obtaining such writ of error ought to be bailed until the determination of such writ of error, the said supreme court or justice may make an order to discharge such prisoner from custody, upon the prisoner entering into a recognizance to the people of the State, before the sheriff of the county where he or she shall be imprisoned, in such sum and with such security as said court or justice shall prescribe; which recognizance shall be conditioned that the prisoner will appear at the next circuit court, to be holden in the county where the trial of such prisoner took place, and at each subsequent term of the circuit court on the first days, until the determination of such writ of error, and that he will be present and submit to such order as the supreme court shall make in the premises, and will not, at any of the terms of said court, in which he shall be bound to appear by said recognizance, depart the court without leave. The recognizance so taken, shall be returned to the next circuit court, and there entered of record, and such proceedings may be thereon had, in case of a breach of the condition of such recognizance, as shall be according to the course of the common law: Provided, however, That in cases where corporeal punishment is inflicted, the prisoner shall in no case be bailed upon the affirmance of any judgment brought into the supreme court, by virtue of this section; the said court shall order and direct the circuit court to carry into effect the judgment of the court below. In case of affirmance, judgment shall be given for costs against the party prosecuting such writ of error, and execution shall issue thereupon from the supreme court.

any other time than is hereby limited, then the same shall be brought or exhibited within the time limited by such statute: Provided, also, That where any indictment, information or suit shall be quashed, or the proceedings on the same set aside or reversed, on writ of error, the time during the pendency of such indictment, information or suit, so quashed, set aside or reversed, shall not be reckoned within this statute, so as to bar any new indictment, information or suit, for the same offense.

(247.) SECTION CCI. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts in their respective circuits, and justices of the peace, in their respective counties, shall jointly and severally be conservators of the peace within their respective jurisdictions, as herein designated, and shall have full power to enforce, or cause to be enforced, all laws that now exist, or that shall hereafter be made, for the prevention and punishment of offenses, or for the preservation and observance of the peace. They shall have power to cause to be brought before them, or any of them, all persons who shall break the peace, and commit them to jail, or admit them to bail, as the case may require, and to cause to come before them, or any of them, all persons who shall threaten to break the peace, or shall use threats against any person within this State, concerning his or her body, or threaten to injure his or her property, or the property of any person whatever, and also all such persons as are not of good fame; and the said judge or justice of the peace, being satisfied, by the oath of one or more witnesses, of his or her bad character, or that he or she had used threats, as aforesaid, shall cause such person or persons to give good security for the peace, or for their good behavior towards all the people of this State, and particularly towards the individual threatened. If any person against whom such proceedings are had, shall fail to give a recognizance with sufficient security, it shall be the duty of the judge or justice of the peace before whom he or she shall be brought, to commit such person or persons to the jail of the proper county until such security be given, or until the next term of the circuit court. Such judge or justice of the peace shall also take recognizances for the appearance of all witnesses at such courts. All recognizances to be taken in pursuance of this section, shall be returnable to the next circuit court, to be holden in the proper county, where all such recognizances shall be renewed or dismissed, as the said circuit court shall, upon examination of the witnesses, deem to be just and right. And where the person or persons committed are in jail at the sitting of such circuit court, the court shall examine the witnesses, and either continue the imprisonment, bail the prisoner, or discharge him or her, as to the said court shall appear to be right, having due regard to the safety of the citizens of this State.

(248.) SEC. CCII. When any felonious offense shall be committed, public notice thereof shall be immediately given, in all public places near where the same was committed, and fresh pursuit shall be forthwith made after every person guilty thereof, by sheriffs, coroners, constables and all other persons who shall be by any of them commanded or summoned for that purpose; every such officer who shall not do his duty in the premises, shall be punished by fine in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding three months.

(249.) SEC. CCIII. It shall be lawful for any of the aforementioned judges or justices of the peace, upon oath or affirmation being made before him that any person or persons have committed any criminal offense in this State, or that a criminal offense has been committed, and that the witness or witnesses have just and reasonable grounds to suspect that such person or persons have committed the same, to issue his warrant under his hand, commanding the officer or person charged with the execution thereof, to arrest the person or persons so charged, and bring him, her or them before the officer issuing said warrant, or in case of his absence, before any other judge or justice of the peace. The said judge or justice of the peace, before whom any person shall be brought in pursuance of such warrant, or shall be brought without warrant, and charged with any criminal offense, before he shall commit such prisoner to jail, admit to bail, or discharge him or her from custody, shall inquire into the truth or probability of the charge exhibited against such prisoner or prisoners, by the oath of all the witnesses attending; and shall, upon consideration of the facts and circumstances then proved, either commit such person or persons, so charged, to jail, admit him, her or them to bail, or discharge him, her or them from custody. No justice of the peace shall admit to bail any person or persons charged with treason, murder, or any offense punishable with death: And provided, That in all cases where the charge is for sodomy, rape, arson, burglary, robbery, forgery or counterfeiting, it shall be the duty of any justice of the peace, whenever any person or persons shall be brought before him, for the same or either of them, to associate with himself some neighboring justice of the peace previous to the examination of the witnesses, and they two shall have power to bail such prisoner or prisoners, or commit him, her or them to jail, in case no good and sufficient bail is offered, or discharge the prisoner or prisoners, according to the proof that is adduced, and the law arising thereon. All recognizances taken in pursuance of this section, shall require the accused to appear at and on the first day of the next circuit court, or if the court be then sitting, on some day of the term, to be therein designated.

(250.) SEC. CCIV. It shall be the duty of the judge or justice of the peace who shall commit any offender to jail as aforesaid, or admit him to bail, to bind by recognizance, the prosecutor, and all such as do declare anything material to prove the offense charged, to appear before the next circuit court on the first day thereof, or if the said court shall be then sitting, on some day to be therein designated, (and in all cases at the same time and place as the person or persons accused by said witnesses shall be bound to appear,) to give evidence touching the offense so charged, and not depart the court without leave. If any person, upon being required to enter into recognizance as aforesaid, shall refuse, it shall be lawful for such judge or justice of the peace to commit him or her to jail, there to remain until he or she shall enter into such recognizance or be otherwise discharged by due course of law.

(251.) SEC. CCV. All recognizances that have any relation to criminal matters, shall be taken to the people of this State, shall be signed by the person or persons entering into the same, be certified by the judge, justice of the peace or other officer taking the same, and delivered to the clerk of the circuit court, on or before the day mentioned therein for the appearance of the witness or accused therein bound. Recognizances taken in courts of record need not be signed or certified as aforesaid. Recognizances for assaults, batteries and affrays, shall be for the appearance of the accused before the justice of the peace taking the same, or before some other justice of the county, on the day appointed by the justice for the trial of the offender.

(252.) SEC. CCVI. Where any person shall be committed to jail on a criminal charge, for want of good and sufficient bail, except for treason, murder or other offense punishable with death, or for not entering into a recognizance to appear and testify, any judge or any two justices of the peace, may take such bail or recognizance in vacation, and may discharge such prisoner from his or her imprisonment. It shall be the duty of the judge or justice committing such person to jail, to indorse on the warrant of commitment, in bailable cases, in what sum bail ought to be taken.

(253.) SEC. CCVII. When a charge shall be exhibited upon oath, before any judge or justice of the peace, against any person for a criminal offense, it shall be the duty of the judge or justice of the peace before whom the charge shall be made, to issue his warrant for the apprehension of the offender, directed to all sheriffs, coroners and constables within the State; and it shall be the duty of any sheriff, coroner or constable, into whose hands any such warrant shall come, to execute the same within their respective counties, and if the offender shall be found therein, to arrest and convey such offender before the judge or justice of the peace who issued the warrant, or before some other justice of the peace of the same county. When any such sheriff, coroner or constable, or other person called to the assistance of such sheriff, coroner or constable, shall be in pursuit of any offender, having a warrant for the apprehension of such offender, and the offender shall cross the line into the adjoining county, such sheriff, coroner or constable, or other person, may pursue such offender into such adjoining county and make the arrest, as if such offender had been found in the county of the officer in pursuit.

(254.) SEC. CCVIII. Any judge or justice of the peace, issuing any such warrant, may make an order thereon, authorizing a person to be named in such warrant to execute the same, and the person named in such order may execute such warrant any where in the State, by apprehending and conveying such offender before the judge or justice issuing such warrant, or before some other justice of the same county; and all sheriffs, coroners and constables, and others, when required, in their respective counties, to be aiding and assisting in the execution of such warrant.

(255.) SEC. CCIX. Any person or persons, officer or officers, who may have the custody of any offender or offenders, by virtue of either of the two preceding sections, may take or carry such prisoner or prisoners into any other county which may be situated on his or their way back to the county from which the said prisoner or prisoners fled, and may deposit such prisoner or prisoners in any jail on his or their route, for safe custody, for one night or more, as occasion may require. Upon their arriving in the county to which the prisoner or prisoners is or are sent, under the last preceding section, such officer or officers, person or persons, shall deliver such prisoner or prisoners into the custody of the sheriff or jailer, together with the warrant of the said judge or justice, which shall be a sufficient justification to the said sheriff or jailer, to receive and detain such prisoner or prisoners, until he, she or they obtain bail, if the offense be bailable, or be otherwise discharged by due course of law.

(256.) SEC. CCX. It shall not be necessary to the validity of any warrant for the apprehension of any person charged with an offense or warrant of commitment, or search warrant, that it be under the seal of the judge or justice of the peace granting or issuing the same; but every such warrant under the hand of the judge or justice of the peace, shall be as valid in law as if a seal were affixed. And no person shall be discharged on habeas corpus from his imprisonment merely by reason of defect of legal precision, or want of technical form in the warrant of commitment, but the court or judge awarding such habeas corpus shall, in all such cases, proceed and determine as if the mittimus had all legal and technical form: Provided, Sufficient appear on the face of the mittimus to ascertain for what crime or offense such prisoner or prisoners shall have been committed.

(257.) SEC. CCXI. It shall be lawful for any judge or justice of the peace, upon complaint made before him upon oath or affirmation, that a larceny has been committed, and that the person affirming or swearing does verily believe that the stolen goods or other property, are or is concealed in any dwelling-house, out-house, garden, yard or other place or places, to issue a warrant under his hand, commanding every such dwelling-house or place to be searched in the day time; and if any of the goods described in any such warrant, be found therein, then that the said goods be seized or brought before the judge or justice issuing said warrant. If, upon examination of witnesses before the judge or justice of the peace who issued said warrant, it shall be determined by such judge or justice, that the goods so brought before him have been stolen, it shall be the duty of such judge or justice, either to keep possession of, or to deliver, or cause to be delivered, such goods to the sheriff of the proper county, there to remain until the conviction of the thief, or the claimant's right be otherwise legally ascertained. If the thief shall not be indicted at the next circuit court after the goods shall be seized, and an action shall not be commenced against the person or persons in whose possession such goods shall have been found, for the recovery thereof, within one month after a circuit court shall have been held after such seizure, the said circuit court shall, at their next session, order such goods to be re-delivered to the person in whose possession they were found, which order shall be obeyed by the person in whose possession such goods may, at the time, be. In case the judge or justice of the peace shall, upon such examination as aforesaid, determine that such goods so seized had not been stolen, then the goods shall be immediately restored to the person from whose possession they were so taken.

(258.) SEC. CCXII. It shall be the duty of the judge or justice of the peace who shall commit any offender to jail, either because such offender is unable to procure bail for his appearance at court, or because the offense is not by law bailable, to write on the warrant of commitment the names and residences of the principal witnesses by whom the crime was proved before said judge or justice.

(259.) SEC. CCXIII. Whenever any prisoner in the custody of the sheriff or jailer of any county, on any warrant of commitment as aforesaid, shall demand of said sheriff or jailer, a copy of said warrant of commitment, said sheriff or jailer shall indorse on the said copy the names of the witnesses written thereon as aforesaid; and any justice or judge who shall neglect to write the name or names of the witnesses aforesaid, on the warrant of commitment, or any sheriff or jailer who shall neglect to indorse the name of said witness or witnesses on any copy of said commitment, each justice, judge, sheriff or jailer offending in the premises, shall be fined in the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by action of debt, in the name and for the use of any person who shall sue for the same in any court of record.

(260.) SEC. CCXIV. Whenever a habeas corpus shall be issued to bring the body of any prisoner committed as aforesaid, unless the court or judge issuing the same, shall deem it wholly unnecessary and useless, the said court or judge shall issue a subpoena to the sheriff of the county where said person shall be confined, commanding him to summon the witness or witnesses therein named, to appear before such judge or court, at the time and place when and where such habeas corpus shall be returnable: it shall be the duty of such sheriff to serve said subpoena, if it be possible, in time to enable such witness or witnesses to attend. It shall be the duty of the witness or witnesses thus served with said subpoena, to attend and give evidence before the judge or court issuing the same, on pain of being guilty of a contempt, and shall be proceeded against accordingly by said judge or court.

(261.) SEC. CCXV. On the hearing of any habeas corpus issued as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the judge or court who shall hear the same, to examine the witness or witnesses aforesaid, and such other witnesses as the prisoner may request, touching any offense mentioned in the warrant of commitment as aforesaid, whether said offense be technically set out in said commitment or not, and upon which hearing, said judge or court may either re-commit, bail or discharge the prisoner, according to the facts of the case.

DECISIONS. In stating time in an indictment, it is necessary to mention the "year of our Lord." Whitesides v. The People, Breese, 4.

An indictment must on its face show that it is carried on "in the name and by the authority of the People of the State of Illinois." Idem.

Where an indictment charges the defendants with making a great noise and disturbance of the peace, the manner of making the noise should be stated. Idem.

Before a prisoner can be tried upon an indictment, it must be indorsed "a true bill," by the foreman of the grand jury. Nomaque v. The People, Breese, 109.

Objections to the forms of indictments must be made before trial. An omission in an indictment that the same was found on the "oaths" of the grand jury, will not reverse the judgment on error. Cartiss v. The People, Breese, 197.

When a proper application for a change of venue is made by one of several defendants in an indictment, it is error in the court to refuse it. Clark v. The People, 1 S. 120.

In an indictment for arson, the value of the property burned must be stated. Without this averment, the indictment is defective. Idem.

Under the 110th Section of the act of July 1, 1833, a justice of the peace may be indicted for taking up and corruptly causing animals to be appraised before him. Wickersham v. The People, 1 S. 128.

Upon a plea of "guilty," under an indictment for burglary, the court must fix the time of imprisonment in the penitentiary. Blevings v. The People, 1 S. 172.

In all cases of trial by jury, the jury fix the time of imprisonment; and in all cases where the defendant pleads guilty, the same must be done by the court. Idem.

Four persons were indicted jointly for a riot; one made application for a change of venue under the act of January 23, 1827, which was allowed: the indictment was sent to the county to which the venue was changed; afterwards, it was returned to the clerk of the court where it was found, and the other three defendants tried and convicted: Held, that there was no error in the proceedings, although there was no formal order directing the return of the indictment. Hunter et al. v. The People, 1 S. 454.

The caption is not part of an indictment. Duncan v. The People, 1 S. 456.

Quashing the first count of an indictment does not, where there are two counts, affect the caption. Idem.

An alien is not a competent juror in criminal cases. Guykowschi v. The People, 1 S. 481.

A verdict rendered by twelve men, one of whom is an alien, is not the verdict of twelve legal jurors, and no legal judgment can be entered on the same. Idem.

But this is the law in capital cases only. Greenup v. Stoker, 3 G. 202.

The people cannot prosecute a writ of error in a criminal case. The People v. Dill, 1 S. 257; The People v. Royal, 1 S. 557; Gerard v. People, 3 S. 363.

Appeal bonds in criminal cases are not amendable under the act of May 1, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1833. Swafford v. The People, 1 S. 289.

In cases of indictments for larceny, the jury must find the value of the property stolen. Highland v. The People, 1 S. 392.

Under the act incorporating the municipal court of the city of Chicago, the grand jurors could only be selected from the city, and such fact must appear on the face of the indictment. Bell v. The People, 1 S. 397.

The making, uttering or passing a counterfeit check, purporting to have been drawn by the canal commissioners, is a forgery within the meaning of the criminal code, and punishable by indictment, as such. Crofts v. The People, 2 S. 442.

Upon the trial of an indictment for bigamy, either marriage may be proved by such evidence as is competent to prove a marriage in other cases. Jackson v. The People, 2 S. 231.

An indictment against a justice of the peace for refusing to issue a subpoena, should state that he willfully and corruptly refused. Jones v. The People, 2 S. 477.

An indictment for having in possession instruments for counterfeiting coin, need not charge the offense to have been committed feloniously. Miller v. The People, 2 S. 233.

An indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder: Held sufficient under the statute. Nixon v. The People, 2 S. 267.

In an indictment for forgery, it is not necessary to allege a felonious intent. Quigley v. The People, 2 S. 301.

After a jury is empaneled, and it is discovered that one is an alien, the court may discharge him and supply his place. Idem.

The circuit courts by their common law powers have authority to direct the summoning of a new grand jury, after the regular jury is discharged. Idem.

Closing the doors of a court-house during a trial, to prevent noise and confusion, is no infringement of that clause of the constitution which guarantees to a party accused a public trial. Idem.

In an indictment for murder, the particular character of the wound which caused the death need not be stated. Idem.

Upon the trial of an indictment, upon a change of venue, it is sufficient if the record shows that the grand jury returned a "true bill," without showing that such indorsement was made on the back of the bill by the foreman of the grand jury. Gardner v. The People, 3 S. 86.

Objections of a formal character to the certificate of the record upon a change of venue, should be taken in the circuit court before trial. Idem.

It is not error to arraign a prisoner and compel him to plead once in the county where the indictment is found, before a change of venue, and again in the county where the cause is tried. But the latter arraignment is unnecessary. Idem.

A juror in a criminal case is not disqualified, unless he has formed or expressed a decided opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. Idem.

Witnesses whose names are not indorsed on the back of the indictment, may, in the discretion of the court, be examined on the part of the people. Idem.

It is not necessary in an indictment against a person for having in his possession forged bank bills with intention to utter and pass the same, to allege that they were bank bills "for the payment of money;" the term "bank bills" is familiar, and conveys a definite meaning. Townsend v. The People, 3 S. 326.

A juror who has expressed a decided opinion in a criminal case, as to the guilt of the defendant, is incompetent. Sellers v. The People, 3 S. 412.

Where there are several good counts in an indictment and others which are bad, if there is a general verdict of guilty, the verdict must stand. Townsend v. The People, 3 S. 326.

All objections to the forms of indictments merely, must be made before trial. An indictment will be considered sufficient which states the offense in the language of the criminal code, or so plainly that the nature thereof may be easily understood by the jury. Connolly v. The People, 3 S. 474; Swain v. The People, 4 S. 178.

If persons are seen drinking and playing for money at a grocery, the jury may infer that it was done with the permission of the owner of the house, and for his gain. Stolts v. The People, 4 S. 168.

It is not necessary that there should be an unlawful assemblage in order to constitute a riot in this State. If two or more persons, being together, do an unlawful act against the person or property of another, or a lawful act in a violent and tumultuous manner, this is a riot. Dougherty et al. v. The People, 4 S. 179.

Under an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder or mayhem, a defendant cannot be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a bodily injury. Carpenter v. The People, 4 S. 197.

Harboring an indentured negro servant is an indictable offense. Chambers v. The People, 4 S. 351.

The 149th section of the criminal code of 1833, (Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 206,) did not conflict with the constitution, nor the laws of Congress, in relation to fugitives from justice: it was a State police regulation merely, and under it all persons harboring or secreting slaves were liable to indictment. Willard v. The People, 4 S. 462; Eells v. The People, 4 S. 498.

An indictment for harboring a slave need not state the name of such slave. Eells v. The People, 4 S. 498.

Nor is it necessary to aver that the defendant had knowledge of the fact that the person harbored was a slave. Idem.

The owner of property in possession of the same, may legally resist an officer who attempts to levy an attachment thereon, against another person who is not the owner. Wentworth v. The People, 4 S. 550.

If a party by a voluntary contract pleads "guilty" of manslaughter, to an indictment for murder, and on such plea is sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, he will not be discharged on a writ of habeas corpus, notwithstanding the law under which the plea was made had been repealed—without any saving clause relating to prior offenses. Sellers v. The People, 1 G. 183.

In the supreme court the record of an indictment and conviction for murder need not show that the names of the witnesses were indorsed on the indictment. McKinney v. The People, 2 G. 551.

Such want of indorsement is waived by plea, and can only be taken advantage of by motion to quash, and preserving that fact on the record of the circuit court. Idem.

It will be presumed by the supreme court, if not disclosed by the record, that a prisoner on trial was furnished with a copy of the indictment and list of witnesses and jurors, as provided by the statute. Such copy and list are waived by plea. Idem.

Also, that the jury were kept together during the trial, as required by the law. Idem.

A verdict rendered upon an indictment for receiving stolen goods is defective, unless it finds the value of the goods. Sawyer v. The People, 3 G. 53.

The record in a criminal case must show that an indictment was found and returned by the grand jury. Rainey v. The People, 3 G. 71.

An indictment for resisting an officer, need not state the mode of resistance. McQuoid v. The People, 3 G. 76.

In such indictment, an averment that the process is a lawful one, is equivalent to an averment of jurisdiction in the officer who issued it. Idem.

Such indictment must distinctly charge that the person resisted was an officer, and that while acting in such capacity he was opposed or resisted. The process under which he acted need not be set out in "hæc verba." Idem.

A plea of former acquittal must state that the offenses charged in the two indictments are the same. Idem.

A defendant in a criminal case cannot assign for error a decision in his favor. Idem.

An indictment for obstructing an officer must state that the process held by him at the time of the obstruction was a lawful one. Cantrill v. The People, 3 G. 356.

Sunday is not a judicial day. A verdict may be rendered and received, but no judgment can be pronounced, on Sunday. Baxter v. The People, 3 G. 368.

Motions for continuances in criminal cases are addressed to the discretion of the court. The decisions of the courts thereon cannot be assigned for error. Idem. See also, Pate v. The People, 3 G. 644; Holmes v. The People, 5 G. 478.

It is no objection to the competency of a witness that he has received a reward for apprehending a criminal. Baxter v. The People, 3 G. 368.

On a trial for murder, one of the jurors was sick and did not comprehend the argument of one of the counsel for the defendant. This is no ground for setting aside the verdict. Idem.

The distinction between accessories before the fact, and principals, is abolished by the statutes of this State. All may be indicted as principals. Idem.

When a verdict in a criminal case is rendered on Sunday, the court may, at a subsequent day or term, pronounce judgment on the verdict. Idem.

If it appears, by the record of a criminal proceeding, that the jury were permitted to disperse, it will be presumed that this was done by the consent of the defendant. Pate v. The People, 3 G. 644.

So also, it will be presumed that the jury were placed in charge of a sworn officer. Idem. See also, Holmes v. The People, 5 G. 478.

Motions for new trials in criminal cases are addressed to the discretion of the courts; their decisions thereon cannot be assigned for error. Holiday v. The People, 4 G. 111.

A general verdict will be sustained when there is one good count in an indictment. Idem.

In cases of misdemeanors merely, a verdict may be received in the absence of the prisoner. Idem.

Before a party can be convicted under the statute for having in possession counterfeit bank bills, with intention to pass the same, it must be shown that he had such bills in possession, that he knew them to be counterfeit, and that he intended to pass them fraudulently. Brown v. The People, 4 G. 439.

The court may give (in writing) such instructions in a criminal case as it sees proper, notwithstanding the statute which prohibits oral instructions. Idem.

When a person finds property in the road, which has been lost by another, about which there are no marks by which the owner can be identified, and converts the same to his own use, this is not larceny. Lane v. The People, 5 G. 305.

If an applicant for a change of venue swears that information of the fact that the inhabitants of the county were prejudiced against him, came to his knowledge to-day, this is equivalent to a statement that he had then received the information for the first time. Barrows v. The People, 11 Ill. 121.

Where an exception is contained in the same clause of a statute which imposes a duty, the exception should be negated in the indictment; otherwise, if it is contained in a subsequent clause. Loquat v. The People, 11 Ill. 330; Metzker v. The People, 14 Ill. 101.

An indictment against a supervisor for not putting up guide boards, must state at what places or crossings the omission was made. Loquat v. The People, 11 Ill. 330.

A supervisor of roads is only bound to open and keep in repair roads so far as the road labor under his control will enable him to do it. Idem.

Appeal bonds in criminal cases are not amendable. Walsh v. The People, 12 Ill. 77.

There was no appeal from the decision of a justice of the peace for a penalty under the "act to prohibit the retailing of intoxicating drinks," approved April 18, 1851. Ward v. The People, 13 Ill. 635.

A person who has formed a decided opinion in a criminal cause, is an incompetent juror. Neely v. The People, 13 Ill. 685.

The legislature may repeal so much of an act incorporating a city as confers upon its officers authority to grant licenses to sell ardent spirits. Gutzwiller v. The People, 14 Ill. 142.

The act of Feb. 1, 1851, in relation to the retailing of intoxicating drinks, is not unconstitutional. Jones v. The People, 14 Ill. 196.

Under this act a defendant may be committed until the fine and costs are paid. Metzker v. The People, 14 Ill. 101.

CUMBERLAND ROAD.

[Approved March 3, 1845. Rev. Laws, 1845, p. 194.]

(1.) SECTION I. If any person or persons shall be guilty of removing any materials for the construction of the Cumberland road, in this State, now made or hereafter to be made and constructed, or deface, injure or destroy any of the works, or steal or destroy any tool, instrument or materials belonging to the United States, or to any person for the use of said road, he or they shall be deemed guilty and punished under the laws then existing and in force for the punishment of similar offenses on individual and State property.

(2.) SEC. II. If any person or persons shall store any combustible or other matter in or near any of the culverts or bridges, or obstruct them in any manner whatever, or encamp or build fires within or near them, or obstruct or damage any of the culverts, ditches, grades or drains, remove or deface any mile stones, or stop with teams to feed on the road, he or they shall be deemed guilty of trespass, and shall be held accountable under the existing laws; and suits may be brought against said trespassers, by any agent of the government or any other person who may take upon himself to attend to the same, for all such offenses.

(3.) SEC. III. In cases arising under the provisions hereof, the individual may be taken by capias, or warrant founded on affidavit, and held to bail or committed to jail.

(4.) SEC. IV. Suits may be brought before any justice of the peace or court having competent jurisdiction to try and hear such cases, and the right of appeal to the circuit court is reserved as in similar cases provided by law.

(5.) SEC. V. The county commissioners' courts in each county through which the Cumberland road now passes, or may hereafter pass, shall have supervisory control over the same, whenever the same shall not be under the care or supervision of some person or persons authorized by the United States, and cause the same to be kept in repair, in the same manner as prescribed by the laws of this State for keeping in repair the State and county roads in the several counties in this State, and may make such order and regulation concerning the same as they shall deem necessary and proper for the repair and preservation of the same.

(6.) SEC. VI. It shall be the duty of the supervisor in each road district, whenever the county commissioners' court of the county shall direct, according to the provisions of this chapter, to cause the said road to be kept in repair through his road district, in the same manner as is provided by law for keeping in repair other State and county roads, and shall cause the same to be worked upon by the persons residing in his road district; and if such supervisor shall fail, neglect or refuse to do so, he shall be liable to the same penalties for such failure, neglect or refusal, as is provided by law on other roads in his district. And if any person subject to work upon public roads in any such road district, shall fail, neglect or refuse, when required by the supervisor of such road district, to work on said road, he shall be liable to the same penalties for such failure, neglect or refusal, as is provided for like cases on other public roads, and to be recovered in the same manner, to be collected and paid as in other cases of public roads in this State.

CANAL.

An Act to provide for the Improvement of the Internal Navigation of this State.

(7.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That Emanuel J. West, Erastus Brown, Theophilus W. Smith, Thomas Sloo, junior, and Samuel Alexander, be, and they are hereby, appointed a board of commissioners, to consider, devise and adopt such measures as shall or may be requisite to effect the communication, by canal and locks, between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and lake Michigan; and in case of the death or resignation of any of the said commissioners, in the recess of the General Assembly, the governor, or the person administering the government of this State, shall appoint another commissioner or commissioners to supply such vacancy or vacancies, who shall continue in office until the end of the next session of the General Assembly.

(8.) SEC. II. Be it further enacted, That the said commissioners shall choose one of their number to be president of said board, who shall have power to call a meeting of the same, whenever, in his opinion, it shall be requisite and necessary; and the said board may adjourn from time to time, to meet at any time and place they may deem most conducive to the public good: and further, the said commissioners shall have power to employ an engineer, and such other persons as may be necessary to enable them to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act; and to allow and pay the said engineer and other persons, so by them employed, for their respective services, such sum or sums of money as may be adequate and reasonable.

(9.) SEC. III. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners, as soon as may be after the passage of this act, to cause that part of the territory of this State which may lie upon or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of the said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same, and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books and drafts thereof to be made: and further, to adopt and recommend proper plans for the construction and formation of the said canal, and of the locks, dams and embankments, tunnels, culverts and aqueducts, which may be necessary for the completion of the same; and to cause all necessary plans, drafts and models thereof, to be executed under their direction.

(10.) SEC. IV. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to make, or cause to be made, with as much accuracy and minuteness as may be, calculations and estimates of the sum or sums of money which may or will be necessary for completing the said canal, according to the plan or plans which may be adopted and recommended by them for the construction and formation of the same, and to cause the said calculations and estimates, and all surveys, maps, field books, plans, drafts and models, authorized and directed by this act, or so many thereof as may be completed, together with a plain and comprehensive report of all their proceedings, under and by virtue of this act, to be presented to the General Assembly of this State, at the commencement of their next regular session, or at the commencement of an extra session of the present General Assembly, should the governor convene the same.

(11.) SEC. V. Be it further enacted, That the said commissioners are authorized and required to invite the attention of the governors of the States of Ohio and Indiana, and, through them, the legislatures of their respective States, to the importance of improving and connecting the navigation of the Wabash and Maumee rivers, by canal communications, and to recommend the adoption of preparatory measures to effect that object; and that the said commissioners report, as required in the preceding section of this act, all their correspondence and proceedings in relation to effecting the aforesaid communication.

(12.) SEC. VI. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the auditor of this State, whenever a majority of the said commissioners shall require it, to issue his warrant on the treasury, to pay to the order of a majority of the said commissioners, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, any sum or sums of money, in the whole not exceeding six thousand dollars, and for which the said commissioners shall account to the auditor, on or before the tenth day of the next regular session of the General Assembly.

An Act to provide for Constructing the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

[Approved Jan. 22, 1829. Laws, 1829, p. —.]

(13.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the governor shall biennially nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint, three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to consider, devise and adopt such measures as may be required to facilitate and effect the communication, by means of a canal and locks, between the navigable waters of Illinois river and lake Michigan. And in case of the death, resignation or refusal to act, during the recess of the legislature, of either of said commissioners, the vacancy thereby occasioned shall be filled by the governor.

(14.) SEC. II. The said commissioners shall choose one of their number to be president of the board, and shall appoint some suitable person or persons to be their secretary and treasurer, who shall be allowed and paid quarter yearly, such compensation, out of the canal fund, as the said commissioners shall deem reasonable and just. And the president of the board shall have power to call a meeting of the commissioners, whenever, in his opinion, the public interest requires it, or a majority of the commissioners may request it. And the said board may adjourn, from time to time, to meet at any time or place they may deem most conducive to the public good. And the said commissioners shall have power to employ such agents, engineers, surveyors, draftsmen and other persons, as in their opinion may be necessary to enable them to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act, and to pay them such compensation for their services as they may think them justly entitled to: Provided, That if the government of the United States furnishes an engineer, it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to accept of his services, for the purposes contemplated by this act.

(15.) SEC. III. It shall be the duty of the said canal commissioners, before they enter upon the discharge of the duties imposed upon them by this act, to take an oath, well and faithfully to execute the duties of their office, and severally to enter into bond to the people of the State of Illinois, to be approved by the governor, with at least two good and sufficient securities, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, faithfully to account for all moneys that may come into their hands, by virtue of their office; and they shall respectively receive, as a compensation for their services, three dollars per day, for each day they may be necessarily engaged in discharging the duties imposed by this act, out of the canal fund, and the treasurer shall pay the same.

(16.) SEC. IV. The treasurer, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, shall take an oath well and faithfully to execute the duties of treasurer, and shall enter into bond, with two or more good and sufficient securities, to the canal commissioners, to be approved by them, conditioned for the faithful discharge of all the duties imposed on him by this act, or which shall hereafter be imposed upon him by law, and to account faithfully for all sums of money and effects that may come to his hands, as treasurer. And it shall be the duty of the canal commissioners, whenever the money in the possession of the treasurer, or to be received by him, shall exceed the sum in which he shall have given bond, to require him to give additional bond, with additional security, sufficient to cover the amount received, or to be received, by said treasurer; and for failure to give such bond, or for any culpable neglect of duty, said commissioners may remove him from office, and may appoint another in his place.

(17.) SEC. V. It shall be the duty of the canal commissioners, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, to cause those parts of the territory of this State which lie upon or contiguous to the probable course or range of said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same; and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books and drafts thereof to be made; and as soon thereafter as they may be able to command sufficient funds, and deem it expedient, they shall commence the work by opening a canal, and constructing locks, aqueducts, dams and embankments, to effect a navigable communication between lake Michigan and the Illinois river.

(18.) SEC. VI. The canal commissioners shall select, or cause to be selected, as soon as practicable, in conjunction with such commissioner as shall be appointed by the commissioner of the general land office, under the direction of the president of the United States, the alternate sections of land granted to this State by the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding her in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of lake Michigan," approved 2nd March, 1827. And if no commissioner shall be appointed on the part of the general government, the said commissioners, or either of them, shall proceed to make such selection; and shall, without delay, forward to the governor a duplicate copy of the list containing the numbers of each section by him or them selected, who shall forward a copy of the same to the commissioner of the general land office.

(19.) SEC. VII. As soon as said lands shall have been selected, and a duplicate list thereof furnished as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of said commissioners to give the necessary public notice, and proceed to sell the same, at any place, either in this State or elsewhere, as they may think best, in half quarter sections, quarter or fractional sections. The sale shall be conducted in the same manner, and the land sold upon the same terms and conditions, in all respects, as the lands of the United States are now sold. Any one of said commissioners may superintend said sales, and the treasurer shall have the same power, and perform the same duties in the disposal of said lands, that are exercised by the receivers of public moneys of the United States. And it shall be the duty of the said superintending commissioner or commissioners, to grant to the purchaser or purchasers a certificate of purchase, containing a description of the number of acres purchased, and the price for which the same was sold; duplicates of all which said commissioner or commissioners shall forward to the auditor of public accounts, who shall record the same. And the person holding such certificate shall, upon presenting the same to the governor, receive a patent for the land described in the same, signed by the governor, and countersigned by the secretary of State, with the seal of the State annexed thereto. The said commissioners shall have power to lay off such parts of said donation into town lots, as they may think proper, and to sell the same at public sale in the same manner as is provided in this act for the sale of other lands. No sale shall be made otherwise than for cash. No land shall be sold at private sale, until the same shall have been offered at public sale.

(20.) SEC. VIII. The treasurer at all times (except the times of public sale) shall keep an office open at some point on the route of said canal, at which persons may enter any of the lands included within the said donation, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, in cash, in the same manner in which lands may be entered in any of the land offices of the United States. And at all such private sales the treasurer shall grant a certificate of purchase to the purchaser, containing a description of the quantity of land, and the price for which the same was sold; upon presenting which to the governor, the party shall be entitled to receive a patent for the same, as above provided. It shall be the further duty of the treasurer to make entries of sales of lands made by him, in a book or books to be kept by him for that purpose, containing a faithful description of the quantity of acres in each tract sold by him, and the price at which the same was sold, and he shall make monthly returns therefor to the auditor of public accounts.

(21.) SEC. IX. It shall be the duty of the commissioners (a majority of whom may act in all cases whatever,) to draw upon the treasurer in favor of all persons to whom the board may become indebted; and said treasurer shall pay out no money except upon the order of said commissioners, or as is herein expressly provided for; and he shall take receipts therefor. Duplicates of all orders shall be kept by said commissioners, and it shall be the duty of said commissioners and treasurer, to furnish duplicates of all orders and receipts, and a complete and detailed statement of the amount of sales and receipts, the quantity of land sold, the prices for which the same was sold, and of all their proceedings, to each called or regular session of the General Assembly, accompanied with such plans, remarks and observations as they may be enabled to make, respecting the further progress and execution of said work.

(22.) SEC. X. Said commissioners may sue and be sued, and defend in the name of "the Board of Commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan Canal." And to enable said commissioners to accomplish the object herein contemplated, it shall be lawful for them to enter, and take of and use, any lands, waters and streams, necessary for the prosecution of the works intended by this act.

(23.) SEC. XI. The canal contemplated by this act shall have the following dimensions, to wit: At least forty feet in width at the summit water line, twenty-eight feet wide at the bottom, and of sufficient depth to contain at least four feet water. And it shall be furnished with such locks, aqueducts and dams, as may be required to insure a safe and convenient navigation for boats of at least seventy-five feet long, thirteen feet six inches wide, and drawing three feet water. The reasonable expenses incurred by said commissioners in carrying the provisions of this act into effect, shall be paid out of the funds arising from the sales of the aforesaid lands.

An Act to amend an Act to provide for the Construction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

(25.) SEC. II. The governor shall appoint one of the commissioners of said board as acting commissioner, who shall be constantly employed on the canal route, when necessary, and may be removed by the governor, upon the representation of the board, for malfeasance, neglect or omission of duty, who shall appoint a successor to said office. He shall give bond to the governor, for the use of the canal fund, with sufficient security, to be approved of by the president of the board, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office; and upon the breach of the condition thereof, may be sued upon the same, and the amount of whatever judgment may be recovered against him, when collected, shall be paid to the treasurer, and made a part of the canal fund. He shall also take an oath well and faithfully to discharge the duties of his office; and as a compensation for his services, he shall receive the sum of three dollars per day, for every day he may be necessarily employed on said canal route, or on the business of the canal, out of the canal fund, to be paid quarter yearly, upon the certificate of the board of canal commissioners or the president thereof. And in case of his death, or resignation, or refusal to act, the same shall be certified to the governor, by the president, or one of the board of canal commissioners, and the vacancy occasioned thereby shall be filled by an appointment of a successor by the governor. In case of the sickness, or temporary absence granted to said commissioner, by the board or president thereof, the board or president may select one of said board to fill the vacancy thereby occasioned, until said commissioner renews the discharge of his duties if such temporary appointment may be necessary; and the commissioner so selected shall be entitled to receive the amount to which the superintending commissioner was entitled, while absent; and if the superintending commissioner is sick, then to receive such compensation as the board may think just. The said superintending commissioner shall, under the consent and direction of said board, employ such agents, engineers, surveyors, draftsmen and other persons, as in their opinion may be necessary, to enable them to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act, or the one to which this is an amendment. He shall also, under the consent and direction of said board, fix the prices, and let out contracts for excavations, embankments, dams, aqueducts, culverts, and make all other contracts necessary to the excavation and construction of said canal. He shall reduce all contracts to writing, and file the same, or an abstract thereof, with the treasurer, showing the date, the amount, and the party with whom the same were made; and shall draw, from time to time, on the treasurer, for the amount of any contract he shall have made, or so much thereof as may be due, in favor of the person entitled to the same; he shall keep duplicates of all such drafts or orders as he may draw on the treasurer, and shall present them, together with a statement of the contracts and disbursements, at each regular meeting of the board.

(26.) SEC. III. The treasurer shall discharge the duties assigned him by the act to which this is an amendment, excepting as is herein otherwise provided. He shall make all his returns of sales to the board of commissioners, together with all his receipts and disbursements. He shall pay all sums on the draft or order of the superintending commissioner, in all cases where the contract or abstract of the contract, has been filed by said commissioner in his office; which drafts or orders he shall number and preserve on file, and submit them to the examination of the board of commissioners at each regular meeting, and which the said board shall mark as canceled. And the board of canal commissioners shall allow him annually for his services, such compensation, to be paid quarter yearly, as they may think proper, provided the same does not exceed six hundred dollars. And when it shall be necessary for the treasurer to employ one or more clerks, the board of canal commissioners may make such an allowance therefor as they may think just and reasonable: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as to allow any additional compensation for expenses sustained by said commissioners, or losses sustained while in service.

(27.) SEC. IV. The said board of canal commissioners shall hold two regular annual meetings at such time and place as they may think proper, and may convene at any time they may think advisable in cases of emergency, at the request of the superintending commissioner. A majority of said board, exclusive of the superintending commissioner, shall constitute a quorum to do business. They shall inspect the accounts, books, state of the treasury, and all the proceedings of the treasurer and superintending commissioner, at each regular meeting, and report the same to the governor, who shall lay the same before the legislature, for their examination; they shall have full power to contract, and be contracted with; to sue, and be sued; plead, and be impleaded; to defend, and be defended, in all matters relating to said canal; and shall have full powers, control and authority in all things relating to the same, that are not herein expressly provided for; they shall, by order of the board, furnish, to the superintending commissioner, all means that are necessary to enable him to discharge the duties imposed upon him by this act. And they shall receive, as a compensation for their services, three dollars per day, for every day they may sit as a board, to be certified by the president to the treasurer, who shall pay the same out of the canal fund.

(28.) SEC. V. There shall be no further sale of canal lands by private entry, until said lands are so far disposed of, that the board of commissioners may deem it expedient, by an order of their board, to be given to the treasurer, a copy of which shall be published four weeks successively, in some public newspaper, printed in this State, when the same shall be sold at private sale, as is provided for in the act to which this is an amendment. The said board shall make an order, directing said lands to be sold at public sale, from time to time, as they may think most conducive to the interest of said canal, in the same manner and under the same regulations as are provided in the act to which this is an amendment: Provided, however, That the superintending commissioner shall superintend said sales, which shall in all respects be conducted, certificates made out and signed, and patents issued, as is provided for in the seventh section of the act to which this is an amendment. Said commissioners may arrest said sales when they think proper.

(29.) SEC. VI. Said commissioners may cause such tracts of land as they may think proper and conducive to the public interest, to be sold in tracts of forty acres; and they may sub-divide such other tracts into smaller quantities or lots, and sell the same as they may think most profitable to the canal fund.

(30.) SEC. VII. They shall have power to employ an engineer, without regard to any that has been promised on the part of the general government, to survey the whole line of the canal, or so much thereof as may be necessary for superintending and aiding in the construction of said canal, and for all other purposes connected with the same; they shall also have power to cause said engineer to examine the Illinois river, from the mouth of Fox river, down to the head of steamboat navigation; and if, in their opinion, the navigation of the Illinois river can be improved by dams and locks or otherwise, so as to secure its navigation as far upwards as the mouth of Fox river, with as little expense, and as much utility, as canalizing from Fox river to the Little Vermilion, or foot of the rapids, they shall have power to terminate said canal at the mouth of Fox river.

(31.) SEC. VIII. The superintending commissioner shall so alter the survey and plat of the town of Ottawa, as to present the front street of said town on the verge of the second bank of the Illinois river. Said street shall be laid off at least one hundred and twenty feet wide; and the plat of said town, together with the streets and alleys, shall be so altered as to conform thereto.

(32.) SEC. IX. Said commissioners shall have power so to improve the mouth of Fox river, if they may deem it proper to terminate said canal there, as to open a channel under the bluff of the town of Ottawa, of sufficient depth for steamboat navigation; which channel may be extended to a point at or near the termination of said bluff. All the ground between the bluff and the Illinois river, in the town of Ottawa, shall be reserved from sale.

(33.) SEC. X. Nothing in this act, or the one to which this is an amendment, shall be so construed as to prevent said commissioners, or their successors in office, from using any stone, timber, ground or water, or other material, for the purpose of making or aiding said canal, which may be required in its construction; and in all sales of said lands this right is hereby expressly reserved free from any cost, charge or liability whatever.

And the said commissioners may reserve from sale any tract or tracts of land, which they may think useful, on account of its timber, rock, or other advantages, in the construction of said canal.

(34.) SEC. XI. Said commissioners are authorized, if they may be of opinion that it will increase the value of lots in any town laid off on the canal lands, that have, or may have become seats of justice, to give a quantity of lots in said town, not exceeding ten acres, to aid in the erection of public buildings; for which donation the governor shall issue his patent as in other cases.

(35.) SEC. XII. The said superintending commissioner, and such engineers as may be employed on the part of the State, are hereby empowered to give to such canal, such dimensions as they may think most advisable, upon survey and examination thereof, suitable to canal boat navigation.

(36.) SEC. XIII. It shall be the duty of the superintending commissioner, to cause the engineer employed by him, to ascertain as early in the spring as the weather will permit, whether the Calamic will be a sufficient feeder for the part of the canal between the Chicago and Des Plaines rivers, "or whether the construction of a railroad is not preferable, or will be of more public utility than a canal." And if the commissioner shall be satisfied of the sufficiency of said river, and that a canal will be of more public utility than a railroad, it shall be their duty to commence the excavations without delay. And if they shall be of opinion that it would not, all further proceedings in relation to said canal, and sales of land, shall be deferred until the next meeting of the legislature: Provided, however, That said commissioner shall cause such a commencement to be made in the progress of the said canal, as to bring the State within the act of Congress making said grant, so as to save said grant to the State, if they shall be of opinion sufficient has not been done already.

(37.) SEC. XIV. So much of the act to which this is an amendment as is inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same is hereby repealed.

An Act to abolish the Office of Canal Commissioners.

[Approved March 1, 1833. Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 118.]

(38.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois represented in the General Assembly, That the office of canal commissioners, created by an act entitled "An act to provide for constructing the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved January 22, 1829, and further by an act entitled "An act to amend 'An act to provide for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal,'" approved February 15, 1831, be and the same is hereby abolished.

(39.) SEC. II. (52.) SEC. VI. The money thus loaned, the premiums arising from the sale of any stock thus created, the proceeds of the canal lands and town lots, and all of the moneys in any way arising from the contemplated canal, shall constitute the canal fund, and shall be used for canal purposes and for no other whatever, until the said canal shall have been completed: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent appropriations from being made, out of the said fund, for semi-annual payment of the interest upon the canal stock herein authorized to be created, and the governor is hereby authorized to cause the said interest to be paid out of the said fund.

(53.) SEC. VII. The governor of this State, by and with the advice of the Senate, shall appoint three practical and skillful citizens of this State, to constitute a board, to be known by the style and description of "the Board of Commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan Canal," and he shall designate one of said commissioners to be president thereof, one to be treasurer, and one to be acting commissioner; whenever any vacancy shall occur in the said board of commissioners by death, resignation, or from any other cause, the governor of this State shall fill such vacancy during the recess of the legislature, and the governor shall have power to remove from office any canal commissioner, for good cause, which he shall make known in a communication to the next ensuing General Assembly.

(73.) SEC. XXVII. All materials procured, or partially procured, under any contract with the commissioners, shall be exempt from execution; but it shall be the duty of the commissioners to pay the money due for such material to the judgment creditor of the contractor, under whose execution such materials might have been sold, upon his producing to them due proof that his execution would have so attached, and such payment shall be held a valid payment on the contract.

(74.) SEC. XXVIII. In case of the death of any canal contractor, who shall, at the time of his decease, be indebted to any laborers for work done on the canal, it shall be lawful for the board, if they think proper, to pay such laborers out of any money that may be due to the deceased contractor, and the receipt of such laborers shall be a good voucher in offset to the sum due the deceased contractor from the board, on the final settlement between them and his executors or administrators: Provided, That the said persons shall first obtain a judgment against the administrator of such deceased contractor, and produce a certificate from the court, judge or justice of the peace, that the judgment was rendered for work done on the canal, or for materials furnished therefor, and for no other cause.

(75.) SEC. XXIX. (81.) SEC. XXXV. The terms of sale shall be as follows, to wit: one-fourth of the purchase money to be paid in advance at the time of purchase, and notes taken for the payment of the residue in three equal annual instalments, bearing an interest of six per cent. per annum, payable annually in advance, and a failure to pay such interest or the residue of such principal within twenty days after the same or any instalment thereof becomes due, shall forfeit to the State, for the benefit of the canal fund, the said lot or lots, and all claim thereon; and if any purchaser before forfeiture, shall commit unnecessary waste upon any lot or lots not paid for, he, she or they so offending, shall be subject to an action at law for damages to said commissioners, and a certificate of the acting commissioner of any forfeiture, shall authorize the sheriff of the proper county, with the posse comitatus, to give such board possession of such forfeited lot or lots, on behalf of the State, and the lot or lots so forfeited as aforesaid shall be re-sold without let or stay, extent of time or subsequent relief of any kind whatever, the same bringing the appraised value.

(82.) SEC. XXXVI. In all sales of canal lots, the secretary and treasurer shall act as register and receiver, and shall be governed by the same rules that now govern registers and receivers in the United States land offices in this State, except as is herein provided.

(88.) SEC. XLII. The board of commissioners shall, quarterly, viz.: on the first Monday of March, June, September and December in each year, make a minute and particular report to the governor, which report shall set forth, in a plain and intelligible manner, all of their acts and doings in relation to the said canal, and the canal lands and lots; all of the money received and expended; the work done and the price allowed for the various kinds of work; the contracts made, with whom made, and the security given; the number of engineers, draftsmen, clerks and agents of every description by them employed, and the amount of compensation paid to each; the progress of the canal, their contemplated plans for the next three months, with an estimate of the probable amount of money that will be required to be expended for canal purposes, during that time, together with such other matters and things as they may see fit to add; and also the amount, time and rate of any loan made by virtue of this act; which report, or the outlines thereof, the governor shall cause to be published.

(89.) SEC. XLIII. They shall annually, on the first Monday of December, make a report to the governor, setting forth all of their acts in relation to the canal, and canal lands and lots, during the previous year, in like manner as is required of them in their quarterly reports, containing such statements and estimates for the year as their quarterly reports do for the quarter.

(90.) SEC. XLIV. The said canal shall commence at or near the town of Chicago, on canal lands, and shall terminate near the mouth of the Little Vermillion, in La Salle county, and on land owned by the State.

(91.) SEC. XLV. An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act for the Construction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal," approved Jan. 9, 1836.

[Approved March 2, 1837. Laws, 1837, p. 89.]

(92.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That there shall be elected at the present session of the legislature, by the joint vote of both houses, three practical and skillful citizens of this State, to constitute the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, one of whom shall be designated as the president, one as treasurer, and one as the acting commissioner of said board. The said president and treasurer, in addition to the other duties required of them by the act to which this is an amendment, shall also, whenever the public good may require the same, exercise all the duties and perform all the services required by said act, of the acting commissioner. Each and every one of the commissioners aforesaid, when in the discharge of the duties of acting commissioner, shall be subject to the order of the board.

(93.) SEC. II. That it shall be the duty of the commissioners authorized to be elected by this act, to proceed immediately and without delay to the prosecution and final completion of said canal, upon the plan set out upon by the commissioners in the year 1836, in all respects.

(94.) SEC. III. That the said commissioners shall require a survey and examination of the route of said canal as now established, by some skillful engineer, who shall also report to the said board of commissioners, who shall also report the same to the next session of the General Assembly. The said examination shall be made with a view of ascertaining whether there is a sufficiency of water within the legitimate authority of the State of Illinois, to use to supply a canal of the same size and dimensions as the one now contemplated to be constructed upon the summit level of said line of canal. The said engineer authorized to be employed under this act, shall take such oath as to the correctness of his estimates, surveys and conclusions, as are usually required of engineers.

(95.) SEC. IV. Said board shall also, as soon as convenient, authorize a survey and estimate to be made of the route of a canal, diverging from the main trunk of the Illinois and Michigan canal, through the Aug-sau-ge-nash-ke swamp and lake, to intersect the Calumet river at the nearest practicable point, the said work to be constructed whenever the State of Indiana shall undertake a corresponding work, connecting her system of internal improvements with the Illinois and Michigan canal.

(96.) SEC. V. Said commissioners, when elected, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe the following oath, viz.:

"I do solemnly swear, in the presence of Almighty God, that I do not own land on or adjoining the canal route, and that I am in no manner, either directly or indirectly, interested in any land within ten miles of said contemplated canal, further than a common interest as a citizen of this State, and that I will not buy or trade in any land on the route, or within ten miles of the same, during the time that I act as canal commissioner, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of canal commissioner, according to law, and the best of my abilities: so help me God."

(97.) SEC. VI. The said commissioners shall have power to sell such parts of the canal lands in the township in which Chicago is situated, and such alternate lots in such town sites at the termination, and along the canal route, as are or may be laid out by them, as may be necessary to produce the sum of one million of dollars, such sales in all respects to be made in the same manner and upon the same terms as the sales authorized by the act to which this is an amendment: Provided, That said sales may be made at such place or places as the said commissioners may deem for the interest of the State.

(98.) SEC. VII. The said commissioners shall have power to cause surveys of such town sites as they may select, to be laid out by such person or persons as they may think proper; the plats of such towns certified by such person or persons so employed and said commissioners, shall be recorded in the recorder's office in the county where such town is situated, and such plat so certified and recorded, or an attested copy thereof, shall be evidence in any court of law or equity in this State; and plats of such town sites, subdivisions of sections or surveys, which have been made and certified by the former commissioners, shall also be recorded in the same manner, and have the same validity as aforesaid.

(99.) SEC. VIII. The said commissioners shall construct a navigable feeder from the best practicable point on Fox river, to the Illinois and Michigan canal at the town of Ottawa, and such basins or lateral canal connecting the Illinois river with said canal at that point, as in their opinion will most enhance the value of the property of the State.

(100.) SEC. IX. That the judge of the circuit court within whose circuit the said canal lands are situated, shall, on or before the first Monday in June next, appoint three commissioners, citizens of this State, who shall not be interested in any lands within the district of country through which said canal passes, and who do not reside in said district, to be a board for the appraisal and determination of all questions of damages which may arise from the construction of said canal, a certificate of whose appointment under the hand of said judge, shall be recorded in each county in which any of said canal lands lie. It shall be the duty of said commissioners, whenever requested by the board of canal commissioners, to examine into all questions of damages which may arise between said canal commissioners and any individual or individuals, to make reports within twenty days after such examination in writing to the said canal commissioners, and file a copy of such reports in the clerk's office of the circuit court of the county in which the land may lie on which any damages may be claimed, which reports shall contain a full account in writing of said claim, the manner in which it may arise, and all such testimony as may be taken by them in relation to the same; also an assessment of the damages, if any are awarded, accompanied by a description of the property to be surrendered by such individual to the State, where the question of damages may relate to the right of way, or surrender of land for the use of hydraulic or other purposes. Upon the return of said report and assessment of damages aforesaid, the said circuit court at its succeeding term, if in its opinion the damages assessed are not too high, and if no objection be made to the same, shall cause an order to be made of record, directing the said board of canal commissioners to pay to such individual or individuals, in whose favor they may decide, such sum as may be awarded for his or their damages as aforesaid, with such costs as such party may have expended in the defense of such claim for damages, to be certified by the court: Provided, however, That if upon examination of such returns, assessment and testimony furnished as aforesaid, by said commissioners, if the said court shall be of opinion the said assessment is too high, or the individual or individuals in whose favor such assessment shall be made, shall be dissatisfied with the same, the said court shall proceed to hear and determine the question of damages in such manner as it may deem equitable and just, and the said court is hereby vested with full power and jurisdiction, to make all orders and decrees in the premises, and to enforce their observance, necessary to carry into full effect all or any decision which may be made: Provided, That appeals shall be allowed to the supreme court as in other cases: And provided also, That the court shall have power to compel all persons to pay all costs occasioned by their objections or exceptions to assessments, which are not sustained by the court, and the court shall also have power in all cases to make such orders in respect to costs as may be deemed equitable and just. In assessing damages, regard shall be had as well to the benefit as the injury arising from the construction of the canal.

(101.) SEC. X. The canal commissioners shall insist upon the right of the State to the right of way through and upon all lands heretofore sold or granted by the State, and also the use of all water and materials required in the construction of the canal, under the reservation contained in the tenth section of the act passed January 22nd, 1829, providing for the construction of said canal, and under the reservation contained in subsequent laws on the same subject; but if the courts shall decide against this right, then the same mode of proceeding shall be had in reference to said lands, water and materials as in other cases.

(102.) SEC. XI. The persons appointed to assess damages, shall be allowed by the court a reasonable compensation for their services, not to exceed three dollars per day, to be taxed in the bills of costs, and paid as other costs.

(103.) SEC. XII. The board of assessment shall in all cases deliver copies of their reports to each of the parties interested, or their attorney, before filing a copy with the clerk, as herein required, and they shall certify the fact of delivering such copies upon the copy filed with the clerk, as aforesaid, and the delivery of such copy shall be evidence of notice, and the court shall proceed to adjudicate upon the rights of all parties so notified, without requiring any other or further notice to be given; for good cause shown, the court may continue all causes and questions arising under this act, from term to term as in other cases.

(104.) SEC. XIII. The canal commissioners shall cause the plats of the towns of Chicago and Ottawa, by which they were governed in selling lots in said towns, to be recorded with the certificates of the late canal commissioners, indorsed thereon as to the identity of said plats. They shall also have power to execute and perform all duties heretofore required of canal commissioners in relation to alterations in the survey of the town of Ottawa: Provided, That no rights acquired by individuals shall be affected thereby. The plats of said towns, or certified copies thereof, shall be admitted as evidence in all courts or places whatsoever.

(105.) SEC. XIV. The governor of the State, when he shall be advised of its necessity by said canal commissioners, shall borrow upon the credit of the State the sum of five hundred thousand dollars on the same terms and in the same manner prescribed in the act to which this is an amendment, which said sum shall be expended on the canal in the year 1838, in addition to the moneys arising from the sale of the canal lands, and which may be then in the treasury of said board.

(106.) SEC. XV. That for the purpose of inviting and promoting fair competition in the letting of contracts, so much of the act to which this is a supplement as requires the board of canal commissioners to demand and receive security from contractors for the execution of contracts, be and the same is hereby repealed; and the board shall let all contracts to the lowest responsible bidders for the work, under such regulations and restrictions, to be fixed upon and published by the board, as shall effectually insure the punctual commencement and faithful execution, progress and completion of contracts, and to protect the rights and interests of the State; and to insure the faithful execution and completion of contracts, they shall retain in their hands, during the progress of the work, at least fifteen per centum, and not more than thirty per centum, of the value of the work actually performed, until the full completion of the contracts.

(107.) SEC. XVI. Monthly estimates of the amount and value of the work executed, shall be made out during the progress of the work, under the directions of the board or principal engineer on the line; and upon such estimates being filed in the office of the board, not less than seventy per centum, nor more than eighty-five per centum, of said estimated value shall be paid to the contractors, and the residue shall be retained until the completion of the contract, as provided for in the foregoing section: Provided, That this section and the preceding section shall not be construed to apply to existing contracts, or to the bonds given under the same.

(108.) SEC. XVII. The commissioners to be elected under the provisions of this act shall severally execute bonds in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with such security as shall be approved by the governor, for the faithful discharge of their duties as canal commissioners, in addition to which, the treasurer shall give bond in such sum and with such security as shall be approved by the governor, for the faithful management, safe-keeping and disbursement of the canal funds that may at any time come into his hands.

(109.) SEC. XVIII. Every part of the act to which this is an amendment, that does not conflict with the provisions of this act, shall be and remain in full force, and govern the commissioners to be elected under the provisions of this act, in their duties as canal commissioners, and so much of said former act as conflicts with this act, is hereby repealed.

(110.) SEC. XIX. So much of the thirteenth section of the act to which this is an amendment, as requires warrants or checks to be countersigned by the acting commissioner, and to be under the seal of the board, is hereby repealed.

An Act to protect the Canal Lands against Trespassers.

[Approved March 4, 1837. Laws, 1837, p. 44.]

(111.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That there shall be elected by joint vote of both houses of this General Assembly, two agents to go and remain upon the canal lands of this State, for the purpose of preventing and detecting all persons who have or may trespass upon said lands, and of instituting and attending to the prosecution of suits for the same.

(112.) SEC. II. The said agents shall visit every person residing upon or cultivating any part of the canal lands, and upon the execution of a bond by any such person, as hereinafter required, any one of the agents is hereby authorized to deliver to such person a written permit to remain upon the land, or to continue to cultivate the same, until the said land is advertised for sale by the State, free from any charge of rent, and to use for fuel only the timber and wood lying upon the ground: Provided, That said permit shall not extend to authorize any person to use wood off of more than six hundred and forty acres of timbered land; and no person shall be permitted to enclose or cultivate any timbered land, nor to cultivate more than six hundred and forty acres of prairie land.

(113.) SEC. III. Persons who reside upon their own land and cultivate canal lands, shall be considered as coming within the provisions of this act; but no such person shall be allowed to use wood, lying or being upon canal lands.

(114.) SEC. IV. Every person to whom a permit is given as aforesaid, shall execute a bond to the State of Illinois, with one or more responsible persons as securities, in the penalty of five hundred dollars, conditioned as follows:

"The condition of this bond is such, that whereas the State of Illinois has given to the said _____ a permit to (here state the substance of the permit,) now if the said _____ shall well and truly comply with the terms of said permit, and the provisions of the law under which the same was given, then this bond to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and effect."

(115.) SEC. V. The obligees of any bond executed as aforesaid, shall be considered as bound, first, that the person to whom the permit is given, will not use any timber, or tree of any description, standing or growing upon canal lands, for any purpose whatever; second, that he will not use for fuel, any timber or wood of any description, situated upon any canal lands, except that described in the permit; third, that he will not permit any person to use or take any tree, timber or wood off of the land described in the permit; fourth, that he will surrender the possession of the lands described in the permit, to the agents of the State, together with all improvements thereon, whenever said lands shall be advertised for sale; fifth, that he will not sell or transfer his right of possession, nor rent or lease the same for a longer time than one year; sixth, that in case of a violation or breach of any condition upon which the permit is given, the agents of the State shall have the right to take possession of the premises, with all improvements thereon.

(116.) SEC. VI. If any person shall, after this act takes effect, cut, fell, box, bore, injure or destroy, any tree or sapling of any description whatever, standing or growing upon any land described in any permit hereby authorized to be given, he or she shall be liable to pay for every tree or sapling so cut, felled, boxed, bored, injured or destroyed, any sum not less than five dollars, nor more than twenty dollars, which may be recovered by action of debt in favor of the person to whom the permit is given, before any justice of the peace or circuit court having jurisdiction of the amount claimed; and the recovery shall be for the use of the person in whose name the suit is instituted.

(117.) SEC. VII. If any person shall, after this act takes effect, purchase, receive or use any tree, sapling or timber, or wood of any description, which shall have been taken off of or from any canal land described in any permit aforesaid, such person shall be liable to pay at the rate of twenty dollars for every such tree or sapling, and one dollar per foot in length of every piece of timber, and twenty dollars per cord for wood, to be recovered by the person to whom the permit is given, in an action of assumpsit or debt, before any justice of the peace or circuit court having jurisdiction of the amount.

(118.) SEC. VIII. If any person to whom a permit shall be given as aforesaid, shall violate the provisions of this act, by cutting, taking, receiving, purchasing or using any tree, sapling, timber or wood, or shall in any manner whatsoever violate or fail to comply with the provisions of the law, such person shall be liable to an action upon his or her bond, and shall also forfeit all right and claim to the possession allowed him or her by the permit, and to all the improvements upon the premises; and a certificate of the fact of such forfeiture, made by the canal commissioners, under the seal of the board, shall be sufficient to authorize any sheriff to remove any person off of and from any canal lands; and sheriffs are hereby required to act upon the said certificates, and call to their aid the power of the county when necessary, to remove any person as aforesaid.

(119.) SEC. IX. If any person, except those to whom permits may be given, shall hereafter cut, fell, bore, box, injure or destroy any tree or sapling, of any description, standing or growing upon canal lands, he or she so offending shall be liable to pay any sum not less than five nor more than twenty dollars, for every such tree or sapling so cut, felled, boxed, bored, injured or destroyed, to be recovered by action of debt, in the name of the State of Illinois, before any justice of the peace or circuit court having jurisdiction of the amount: Provided, That when the injury or trespass shall be committed upon any land described in any permit, a recovery in behalf of the State shall bar any subsequent recovery in behalf of the person to whom the permit was given; and a recovery in behalf of such person, with satisfaction of the amount, by actual payment of the money recovered, shall be a bar to any subsequent recovery in behalf of the State; and the provisions of this section shall apply to third persons, who employ persons who commit any injury or trespass herein prohibited.

(120.) SEC. X. If any person shall hereafter purchase, receive or use any tree, timber or wood, of any description, or any sapling which may have been taken or removed from any canal lands, he or she shall be liable to pay for every tree or sapling so purchased, received or used, the sum of twenty dollars, and for every foot in length of any piece of timber so purchased, received or used, the sum of one dollar, and for wood, at the rate of twenty dollars per cord, to be recovered by action of assumpsit or debt, in the name of the State, in any court, or before any justice of the peace, having jurisdiction of the amount claimed: Provided, That when a judgment shall have been recovered under the provisions of this section in favor of the State, such recovery shall operate as a bar to a future recovery, in the name of any person to whom a permit may have been given: And provided, also, That a recovery, and actual payment of the money recovered, in behalf of any person authorized to sue for the same, shall be a bar to any subsequent recovery in behalf of the State.

(121.) SEC. XI. The circuit courts of every county in the State are hereby vested with jurisdiction to hear and determine all causes and actions instituted in behalf of the State, under the provisions of this act; and the clerks of said courts are hereby required to issue process and subpoenas for witnesses, directed to any county in the State, and such process shall be executed and obeyed as other process.

(122.) SEC. XII. If any sheriff or other officer shall fail to execute and return any process, issued under the provisions of this act, he shall be liable to be proceeded against by attachment; and no rule to show cause shall be necessary to authorize the issuing of such attachment, but the same shall be issued on the application of the agent or attorney of the State, and be returnable as early as practicable; and unless the sheriff or other officer can show a legal excuse for the failure to execute or return the process, he shall be liable to be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and to pay all costs of the proceedings against him; he shall, moreover, be liable to an action upon his bond for damages, as for other violation or neglect of duty.

(123.) SEC. XIII. The canal lands shall be considered as including all lands which have been, or may hereafter be, granted to the State of Illinois by the United States, to aid the State in the construction of a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of lake Michigan; and the certificate of any canal commissioner that any lot or parcel of land is included or embraced in any such grant, shall be evidence of the existence of the grant, and of the right of the State to the land.

(124.) SEC. XIV. It shall be the duty of the agents of the State, appointed as aforesaid, to cause the provisions of this act to be enforced, and to institute and prosecute all suits and actions necessary and proper to enforce the same; and it shall also be the duty of every canal commissioner, engineer, and all other persons employed by the State, to give information to the said agents of all and every violation of the provisions of this act.

(125.) SEC. XV. The governor shall cause this act to be published in all the newspapers printed in Chicago, Ottawa, Peoria, and Galena; and shall issue a proclamation to be published in the papers aforesaid, declaring the time when the same shall take effect.

(126.) SEC. XVI. Persons who obtain permits from the agents of the State, under the provisions of this act, and who execute bonds as herein required, shall be and are hereby released from all penalties incurred by them for violating the provisions of the law, in relation to trespassing upon canal lands.

(127.) SEC. XVII. Each agent elected as aforesaid, shall be entitled to three dollars per day for every day employed, to be paid out of the canal fund.

(128.) SEC. XVIII. Any one or more of said agents shall be discharged by the governor, whenever the canal commissioners shall inform him that their services are no longer essential to the interests of the State.

(129.) SEC. XIX. The bonds taken by the agents, as herein required, shall be delivered over to the board of canal commissioners, and by them kept and preserved.

An Act supplementary to an Act entitled "An Act to protect the Canal Lands against Trespassers."

[Approved March 4, 1837. Laws, 1837, p. 48.]

(130.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That in case of the resignation, or refusal to act, of any agent of the State appointed under the provisions of an act passed during the present session of the General Assembly, entitled "An act to protect the canal lands against trespassers," during the recess of the General Assembly, the governor is hereby authorized and required to appoint a successor or successors to such agent or agents; and the person or persons so appointed, shall possess the powers and perform the duties required of the agents elected under the provisions of the act aforesaid.

An Act to provide for the Sale of certain Canal Lands, and for other Purposes.

[Approved July 21, 1837. Laws, 1837, (Special Sess.) p. 10.]

the selection to be made, so that no lot shall lie within less than one half mile of the line of the canal, and the quantity not to exceed in value four hundred thousand dollars; and the lands so selected shall be valued, advertised and sold in the manner required for selling lots in Chicago and Ottawa, but the valuation shall not be made until within twenty days of the sale, and shall be made as well with reference to the terms of sale as all other considerations affecting the market value thereof. The place of sale shall be fixed by the commissioners. The terms of sale shall be, one-tenth the purchase money to be paid at the time of sale, and the balance payable in ten equal annual instalments, bearing an interest of six per cent. per annum from the date of sale, payable annually in advance, subject to the same conditions and provisions prescribed in reference to the sale of lots in Chicago and Ottawa.

(132.) SEC. II. No two quarter sections of land shall be sold under the provisions of this act, which shall adjoin each other.

(133.) SEC. III. The terms of the sales authorized to be made by the act which was approved on the second day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty seven, shall be the same as those prescribed in this act; and the sales under that act shall be limited to the actual wants of the canal funds.

(134.) SEC. IV. In negotiating loans which have been or may be authorized for the construction of the canal, the governor shall, if practicable, contract to receive the money borrowed, in sums of one hundred thousand dollars, or less, at such times as the same may be wanting for use upon the canal.

(135.) SEC. V. In the construction of the navigable feeder and lateral canal at Ottawa, the canal commissioners may so alter the plan heretofore prescribed, as to connect the said feeder or lateral canal with Fox river, instead of the Illinois river, or make any other change which in their judgment may be best calculated to enhance the value of State property, and the usefulness of the canal.

(136.) SEC. VI. The canal commissioners are authorized to make a re-survey of those parts or additions to the town of Ottawa, wherein lots are authorized to be sold, and change the lines of the lots and streets, so as to make those lines correspond with the lines of that part of the town wherein the lots have heretofore been sold; or they may make the said lines in such manner as they may deem best for the interests of the State.

(137.) SEC. VII. The canal commissioners are authorized to enlarge the natural basin at the confluence of the north and south branches of the Chicago river, so as to render the same as useful and convenient as possible; and block number seven of the canal lots, in the city of Chicago, shall be reserved from sale for the purpose of exchanging the same for block number fourteen, which will be required to be removed in the enlargement of the said basin; and the said commissioners are hereby required to cause the aforesaid block number fourteen to be appropriated for the purpose aforesaid, and to proceed to obtain the title to the same, in the manner provided by law for obtaining lands or materials for the use of the canal.

(138.) SEC. VIII. When the board of appraisement shall appraise the said block fourteen, they shall also appraise the aforesaid block seven, and if the owners of block fourteen will take in exchange for the same, block number seven, at the appraisal thereof, the canal commissioners are authorized to make the exchange, taking from the said owner a sufficient conveyance for said block to the State, and giving to such owner a certificate of purchase for block seven, stating therein the facts of the transaction; and if block seven shall be appraised at more than block fourteen, the said owner shall be required to pay the difference in a reasonable time, to be fixed by the canal commissioners; and upon such payment being made, the said owner shall be entitled to a patent for the same; but if said block shall be valued at less than block fourteen, or the same sum, he shall be entitled to a patent upon executing the conveyance aforesaid. If the difference in value shall be in favor of the said owner, the canal commissioners shall pay the same out of the canal fund; but if no such agreement is made, as herein contemplated, the aforesaid block fourteen shall, nevertheless, be obtained and appropriated, as herein provided, and block number seven shall be subject to sale as other lots in Chicago now are.

(139.) SEC. IX. The treasurer of the board of canal commissioners shall not hereafter be required to perform any other duties than those pertaining to the office of treasurer alone, nor shall he hereafter be considered one of the board of canal commissioners. The said board shall hereafter be composed of the president and acting commissioner, who shall perform all the duties required of the canal commissioners, except such as relate to the duties of treasurer; nevertheless, it is hereby declared and enacted, that whenever the board, as organized by this section, shall disagree in opinion upon any question, matter or thing, in relation to the canal, the powers or duties of the board, or of any agent or any other matter whatever, touching their duties as canal commissioners, the treasurer is hereby constituted and appointed the umpire to give the casting vote upon every such difference, and in giving such vote, he shall be considered as bound for the consequences thereof, as a canal commissioner; and the board of commissioners shall act upon all decisions made by the umpire as aforesaid, as though the three making the decision were all canal commissioners.

(140.) SEC. X. In the event that the funds provided by existing laws shall prove insufficient to meet the expenditures upon the canal for the years 1837 and 1838, the governor is authorized to negotiate a loan upon the faith and credit of the State, not exceeding in amount three hundred thousand dollars, to meet any deficit which may occur; said loan shall be negotiated in the manner and upon the terms, and the State assumes the responsibilities, as provided for in relation to the loan authorized by the act entitled "An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved on the 9th of January, 1836: Provided, That said loan shall not be made until the whole of the means available under existing laws, shall have been exhausted.

An Act for the Relief of Purchasers of Canal Lands and Lots.

purchasers who comply with the following conditions, viz.: That they will on the first day of October next, pay all the interest then due upon said debts, according to the terms of sale; and on the first day of October, 1838, and first day of October, 1839, pay the interest and ten per cent. of the principal, which may be due; and on the first day of October, in each and every year thereafter, pay the interest and twenty per cent. upon the principal in advance, until the whole sum due shall be paid. And payments made at the times and in the manner herein provided, shall be accepted by the canal commissioners, as a compliance on the part of the purchasers with the conditions of sale, as prescribed by the above recited act, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to impair or in anywise affect the lien of the State upon the property sold for the payment of the purchase money or any part thereof, or any interest due or which may become due upon the same. And it is hereby declared that a failure on the part of any purchaser to comply with the conditions herein contained, shall work a forfeiture of the lot or land purchased, together with all previous payments; and the provisions of the thirty-fifth section of the above recited act, shall be deemed and considered applicable to such lot or land, and purchaser, and shall be enforced by the canal commissioners.

(142.) SEC. II. The canal commissioners are authorized and required to receive in payment for canal lots and lands sold, the bills and notes of the State Bank of Illinois, and Bank of Illinois, and bills and notes of any other banks which the bank in which the canal funds are or may be deposited, will receive and credit as cash to the canal fund.

(143.) SEC. III. The contractors upon the canal, with whom contracts were made previous to the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, shall be entitled to monthly payments, upon the terms and in the manner provided for making payments upon contracts made subsequent to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven.

(144.) SEC. IV. That all relief extended to purchasers of canal property under the provisions of this act, is to be claimed under the express understanding and condition, that the legislature reserves the right to amend, modify or repeal this act at any time after the first Monday in December, eighteen hundred and thirty-eight; and said right to amend, modify or repeal the same after the time aforesaid, is hereby reserved.

An Act to repeal part of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the Sale of certain Canal Lands, and for other Purposes."

[Approved Jan. 5, 1839. Laws, 1839, p. 41.]

(145.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That so much of the tenth section of an act entitled "An act to provide for the sale of certain canal lands, and for other purposes," approved twenty-first of July, 1837, as provides that the loan therein mentioned should not be made until the whole of the means, available under existing laws, should first be exhausted, be and the same is hereby repealed.

An Act to provide for settling the Accounts between the State and the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

[Approved Jan. 12, 1839. Laws, 1839, p. 42.]

(146.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That in order to ascertain the full amount expended by the State in the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, and in the preliminary steps taken by the State in relation thereto, and to perpetuate the evidence of said expenditure, the auditor of public accounts shall open an account, in a book to be provided for that purpose, between the State and canal, with each and every sum of money heretofore paid out of the State treasury for the use or on account of said canal, noting the date and amount of each payment, and referring to the law or resolution under which it was made, and credit the canal with each and every sum of money received into the treasury belonging to the canal fund, noting the date and the amount, and referring to the law or resolution under which the money was raised; and also, by one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, for all canal lands donated or granted to individuals by the State, referring to the law making such donation or grant.

(147.) SEC. II. In making the account required by the foregoing section, interest shall be charged upon the debts and credits at the rate of six per cent. per annum, and shall be added to the principal annually; and the said account shall be continued to the ninth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, at which time the balance shall be ascertained and struck; and from that date, the balance struck shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, until paid.

(148.) SEC. III. When said accounts shall be completed, the auditor shall notify the governor thereof, who shall carefully examine the same, and after correcting errors, if any be discovered, the governor shall certify at the footing of said account, that upon a careful examination he has found the said account to be correctly stated; and the amount thus stated and certified shall be conclusive evidence between the State and the said canal fund, as to the state of accounts between the State and said canal.

An Act making further Provisions for the Sale of Canal Lands.

(149.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That in selecting lands for sale, in the execution of the laws authorizing the sale of canal lands, the commissioners shall, so far as may be consistent with the public interest, select those lands on which improvements were made previous to the first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, and in valuing said lands, the price shall be fixed without reference to improvements, and as though it had never been occupied or used. The improvements shall also be valued separately; and whatever injury or deterioration of value the lands may have sustained by reason of the occupation or use thereof, shall be deducted from the present value of the improvements, and added to the value of the land; and upon making sale of said land, purchasers shall be required to pay in advance the value of such improvements ascertained and (after making the deduction aforesaid,) settled upon the principles aforesaid, in addition to the ten per cent. upon the price of the land, which sum shall be paid to the owner of the improvement, in case such owner is not the purchaser thereof.

(150.) SEC. II. When the injury to lands, by reason of the occupation or use of the same, shall be estimated to exceed the value of the improvements, the owner of the improvement shall not be entitled to any compensation therefor.

(151.) SEC. III. It shall not be necessary for the board of canal commissioners to require the service of assessors in ascertaining damages accruing to individuals by reason of the use of land, water or timber, where said board can agree with the claimant for such damages.

(152.) SEC. IV. In constructing the canal, the commissioners shall, whenever it be found practicable, cause the water to be drained from canal lands subject to inundation, in case they shall be satisfied the value of such land will be enhanced thereby to an amount sufficient to justify the expense of such draining.

(153.) SEC. V. If, in any case, two or more persons shall claim to be owners of the same improvement adverse to each other, and the question of right is not decided before a sale of land on which such improvement is situated, the price paid for the improvement shall be retained until the question is decided; and the board shall also retain out of the money all costs which may be adjudged against the board in the settlement of such question.

(154.) SEC. VI. Hereafter the per centage retained from contractors upon estimates of work done, shall not exceed twenty nor be less than ten per cent. upon the amount of the estimate; and this section shall be held and considered as a part of the act entitled "An act to amend the several laws in relation to the Illinois and Michigan canal," passed at the present session of the General Assembly.

(155.) SEC. VII. In cases where one improvement is situated upon two lots of land required to be sold separately, the valuation of the improvements shall be made with reference to the lots of land and the lines dividing the same.

An Act to provide for selling Water-Lots and Privileges on the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

(156.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal may order a sale or sales of lots of ground for manufacturing purposes, and the use of surplus water to propel machinery, for a term of years not exceeding ninety-nine, at those points and places on the line of the canal where lots have or may be laid off for that purpose, upon the terms and conditions following: Provided, That, until the further action of the General Assembly, not more than three lots shall be sold at any one place or point.

(157.) SEC. II. Each lot, with the privilege of using water to propel machinery to be erected thereon, shall be sold separately, at public auction, to the person bidding the highest annual rent therefor. The place of sale shall be fixed by the board. A notice, stating the time and place of the sale, and describing the lots and water to be sold, shall be published, once a week, for eight weeks, in at least four newspapers in the State, and four without the State, immediately preceding the sale. Previous to any sale, the commissioners shall value the lots and privileges separately, at a fair and reasonable value, as they are required to do in relation to lots and canal lands; and no sale shall be made for less than such valuation. Upon making any sale, the board shall execute a lease, under their seal, for such term of years as may have been directed, in the name and behalf of the people of the State, to the purchaser; and, in such lease, the rent bid by the purchaser shall be reserved. Triplicate leases shall be made, and shall be signed by the purchaser, and covenants shall be inserted for the annual payment of the rent, at such place within the State, and to such person, as may at any time be required by law, with condition that, in case of default in making any annual payment for the period of one year, the lease shall become void, and all the rights thereby granted forfeited to the State.

(158.) SEC. III. Leases shall also contain a reservation of the right wholly to resume the water conveyed and the privileges thereby granted, and to control and limit the use of such water and privileges, whenever, in the opinion of the board or of the legislature, the necessary supply of water for the use of the canal, or the safety of the canal or works connected therewith, shall render such resumption, control or limitation necessary; and a provision that, when such resumption is made, or control or limitation imposed, no compensation or damage shall be allowed for any improvements or erections made in consequence of such lease; and a further reservation shall be made of the right of the State, without making any compensation to the purchaser, wholly to abandon or destroy the work by the construction of which the water privileges shall have been created, whenever, in the opinion of the legislature, the occupation and use of such works shall cease to be advantageous to the State.

(159.) SEC. IV. Leases shall contain specific descriptions, by actual measurement, of the lots leased, and shall specify the quantity of water to be used per day or month.

(160.) SEC. V. One copy of each lease shall be delivered to the purchaser, who shall, without delay, cause the same to be recorded by the recorder of the county in which the premises leased are situated; one copy shall be filed and kept by the board, and the other copy shall be by the board delivered to the auditor of public accounts.

(161.) SEC. VI. All the expenses of executing and recording leases shall be paid by the purchaser.

(162.) SEC. VII. There shall also be inserted in every lease a condition inhibiting the manufacture of spirituous or vinous liquors upon lots leased.

(163.) SEC. VIII. The board shall have power to fix a time within which the lessee, his heirs or assigns, shall put in operation the machinery intended to be used upon lots leased, and to insert a condition of forfeiture in every lease, on failure to comply with the conditions thereof, either as to time or manner; and also to insert conditions requiring the lessees, their heirs and assigns, to keep the buildings and machinery under insurance in some safe office; and in case of failure in this condition, that the board or the State shall have the right to effect such insurance, and to add the cost and expense of such insurance to the amount of rent reserved.

(164.) SEC. IX. The board shall take and use all means and measures requisite to carry into effect the objects of this act, and shall fix the places at which water is to be taken from the canal, and provide for the withdrawal thereof in such manner as to prevent injury to the canal, and also provide safe conveyances for the return of the water into the canal, or for its running off without injury to the State or individuals.

(165.) SEC. X. The board shall have power to direct the material with which the walls of the houses erected on leased lots shall be made, with a view to permanency, and to avoid injury from fire.

(166.) SEC. XI. Sealed proposals shall be received for purchases under the provisions of this act, and each proposal shall specify the use intended to be made of the lot and water, the time within which the first buildings shall be commenced and completed, and the time of commencing the use of water for manufacturing purposes; and also the dimensions of the buildings as to width, length and height, and shall also be accompanied with the names of two or more responsible persons, to be bound as security for the performance of the covenants, so far as relates to the erection of buildings.

(167.) SEC. XII. Each purchaser shall give a bond, with two or more securities, payable to the State, with conditions that the purchaser will, within the time limited, erect one or more buildings, such as may be agreed on, and, in case of default, that the State shall be paid three times the amount of rent reserved by the terms of the lease, from the date thereof to the date of obtaining judgment upon the bond.

(168.) SEC. XIII. The provisions of the thirty-ninth and fortieth sections of the act entitled "An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved on the ninth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, shall be applicable to sales made under the provisions of this act.

(169.) SEC. XIV. The power of taxing the lots and privileges sold under the provisions of this act, and all improvements made thereon, is reserved to the State; but this power to be exercised according to the provisions of the constitution, and the same rules to be observed in assessing and collecting the taxes as are applied to other property in the State.

An Act to amend the several Laws in relation to the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

(170.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the sales of the canal lands and town lots heretofore authorized by law, shall be regulated as follows: The terms of sale shall be, that each purchaser shall pay, at the time of sale, ten per cent. on the amount of the purchase, and shall be bound to pay an interest of six per cent. per annum upon the balance, at the end of every year, for twenty years, at which time the principal shall be paid. The lands and lots heretofore valued shall be re-valued, before being offered for sale under the provisions of this act; and if the sales of lands selected for sale under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to provide for the sale of certain canal lands and for other purposes," approved on the twenty-first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, shall not amount to four hundred thousand dollars, within three months from the termination of the last public sale thereof, the commissioners are authorized to select other lots of land, under the provisions of said act, and, after valuing them as required by law, offer them for sale upon the terms herein provided, and continue to make selections, valuations and sales, after the expiration of three months from the termination of the last sale, until the sales shall amount to the aforesaid sum of four hundred thousand dollars.

(171.) SEC. II. In all sales of lands and lots under the provisions of this act, the following conditions shall be annexed, and shall compose part of the contract :

First. That the purchaser will not appropriate or use the lot or land so as to reduce its value by means of the use thereof.

Second. That, on failure to make payment of interest and principal, according to the terms of sale, all rights acquired by the purchase, and the money paid, shall be forfeited to the State.

Third. That payments upon purchases shall be made at Chicago, Ottawa, or Lockport, as may be provided by law, to the person or persons who may be authorized to receive the same.

Fourth. That timber upon land purchased shall not be sold, except upon being converted by the owner of the land into furniture or machinery, and shall be used only, with the exception, for ordinary farming or agricultural purposes, upon the land of the purchaser.

Fifth. That a violation of any one of the conditions of sale shall work a forfeiture of all rights acquired by the purchaser.

Sixth. That a lien shall exist in favor of the State, as well upon all improvements, buildings and machinery, which may be made or placed upon lands or lots, for the payment of the purchase money and interest, as upon the said lands or lots.

Seventh. That in case of forfeiture of any lot or land for non-payment of interest or principal of purchase money, or for any violation of the conditions of sale, the purchaser shall be liable to pay the difference between the price for which the land may be subsequently sold and the price agreed to be paid by such purchaser: Provided, That such difference shall have been occasioned by any act of the purchaser, or shall be a consequence resulting from improper use of the premises or any part thereof.

Eighth. That no buildings or fixtures shall be removed from any lot or land sold under the provisions of this act, without the consent of the board or State.

Ninth. That no stream of water passing through the canal lands shall pass, by the sale, so as to deprive the State of the use of such water, if necessary to supply the canal, without charge for the same.

Tenth. That the State, the board of canal commissioners, the agents of each, and all contractors acting under the authority of the board or State, shall have a right of way over and upon said land in the construction and use of the canal, free from charge: Provided, That purchasers or owners may select the ground on which roads for the uses aforesaid shall pass, if there be no road at the time of purchase.

Eleventh. Lands situated upon streams which have been meandered by the surveys of public lands by the United States, shall be considered as bounded by the lines of those surveys, and not by the streams.

Twelfth. Lands sold under the provisions of this act, and all improvements made thereon, shall be subject to taxation from the date of sale, according to the laws of the State which may be enacted with reference to other estate; the taxes to be assessed and collected under and according to the revenue laws of the State. Upon the terms and conditions specified in this act, the board shall execute the laws heretofore enacted authorizing sales of canal lots and lands, notwithstanding the time limited for those sales may have expired.

(172.) SEC. III. Purchasers of canal lots and lands shall be entitled to certificates of purchase from the treasurer of the board, upon making the first payment of the purchase money, which shall contain a description of the lot or land purchased, and specify the terms of sale, and the condition upon which purchasers will be entitled to patents; which certificate shall be surrendered to the board when full payment of the purchase money is made; and purchasers shall, upon such surrender, be entitled to final certificates, which are required to be given by the thirty-seventh section of the act entitled "An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved on the ninth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six; and such final certificates may be given to assignees or transferees, upon making proof of assignments and transfers, as required by the act entitled "An act in relation to the title of school and canal lands," approved sixteenth of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven; and patents shall issue upon all final certificates to purchasers, their heirs or assigns, as required by the above recited acts; and purchasers of lots and lands heretofore sold shall be entitled to certificates under the provisions of this section.

(173.) SEC. IV. Certificates of the purchase of canal lots and lands shall be evidence of title in the purchaser, his, her or their heirs or assigns, except as against the State or a patent.

(174.) SEC. V. The authority conferred upon the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, to make rules and regulations from time to time in respect to persons employed about the canal, shall extend to authorize the board to require each contractor to furnish to the board, quarterly or monthly, satisfactory evidence, by the oath of one or more persons or otherwise, that the persons employed have been paid for their services to the date of the previous payment; and, in default of furnishing said evidence, to withhold payment upon estimates until the same is furnished, but the amount withheld not to exceed the sum which may appear to be due for services aforesaid.

(175.) SEC. VI. In case any person employed by contractors upon the canal shall obtain a judgment against the contractor for services rendered upon the canal, and the contractor shall not, within twenty days, pay such judgment, the board is hereby authorized to pay the same; and such payment shall be a valid set-off against any claim of the contractor upon his contract, or for any services rendered the board or the State; Provided, That no judgment shall be paid from which an appeal may be prosecuted, until the decision of the case in the appellate court.

(176.) SEC. VII. In making payments to contractors, the board is authorized to deliver checks upon the bank in which the canal fund shall be deposited, in such amounts as may suit the convenience of the contractor; the checks shall be signed by the president of the board, countersigned by the acting commissioner, and made payable to the order of the treasurer; and, upon making payments, the treasurer shall take duplicate receipts containing a descriptive list of the checks delivered, one of which shall be filed with the secretary of the board, and the other retained by the treasurer; and the secretary shall make weekly reports to the bank of the delivery of such checks, giving in such report a description thereof.

(177.) SEC. VIII. The checks, being signed by the president and acting commissioner, shall remain in possession of the secretary, under the direction of the board, and shall be delivered to the treasurer when required for use, who shall execute a receipt to the secretary, containing a descriptive list of the checks delivered; but no check shall be delivered to the treasurer, except upon the requisition of the acting commissioner or president of the board.

(178.) SEC. IX. At the end of every month, or oftener, if deemed necessary, the board shall examine and settle the accounts of the treasurer, and make entries on the books of the secretary, showing the true state of the accounts; and the acting commissioner shall settle the accounts with the bank in which the canal fund may be deposited, every three months, upon which settlement the bank shall be entitled to credit for the amount of checks returned to the said commissioner, which checks, when returned by the bank, shall be delivered to the secretary of the board, and may be again used by the treasurer in making payments, upon the terms and in the manner required in the first instance; and no money shall be drawn from the bank except upon checks executed and delivered as required by this act: Provided, That no check shall be made under the provisions of this act upon any bank out of this State.

(179.) SEC. X. In making estimates of the amount and value of work executed upon contracts, regard shall be had in fixing the price or value as well to the work to be performed as that executed, and the price shall bear a rateable proportion to each; and the amount to be retained from contractors, as security for their performance, shall have relation to the amount and value of work to be performed as well as to that executed; and in all cases of payments upon estimates, the amount retained shall be graduated and reduced in the proportions following: At every alternate estimate, one-half of the amount retained at the previous estimate shall be paid, until the contract shall be more than half completed; after which time, the first payment shall include one-half of the whole amount retained upon previous estimates; and at every alternate estimate thereafter, three-fourths of the amount retained at the previous estimate may be paid, until the completion of the contract.

(180.) SEC. XI. Contractors who feel themselves aggrieved by the estimates or measurements of engineers, may apply to the board to order a new measurement, and such application shall be granted upon condition that, in case the second estimate does not exceed the first, the contractor shall pay the cost of making the second estimate; and in such case the measurement shall be made by a different engineer from the one who made the first.

(181.) SEC. XII. In order to afford facilities to contractors, the canal commissioners may purchase, and keep on hand for their use, provisions, powder, tools, iron and steel, upon the plan heretofore adopted, and deliver such articles in payment of estimates at the cost thereof.

(182.) SEC. XIII. When contracts have been or may be forfeited or abandoned by contractors, the canal commissioners may, in accordance with the practice, make new contracts without advertising for proposals, provided the price does not exceed the estimates of the engineer.

(183.) SEC. XIV. Town lots and land, valued and offered for sale by the board of canal commissioners, and not sold at public auction, may be purchased at their valuation, at any time within three months after being offered at public sale; the sale to be made by the secretary of the board, and the treasurer to give a certificate of purchase upon receiving a certificate of the deposit of the amount of the purchase money in one of the banks of this State; but no one person or company shall be permitted to purchase at private sale more than three lots, nor more than three hundred and twenty acres of land, nor shall any such sale be made except to persons who intend bona fide to improve and occupy the lot or land purchased; and every purchaser, before being permitted to purchase at private sale, shall make and file with the secretary of the board an affidavit, in the words following:

"I, A. B., do swear (or affirm, as the case may be,) that I desire to purchase the (here insert the description of the lot or land,) for the purpose of improving and occupying the same bona fide; that the purchase is not for the use of nor in trust for any person or persons whatever, except for myself."

(184.) SEC. XV. The board of canal commissioners shall proceed to the construction of the canal diverging from the main trunk of the Illinois and Michigan canal, through the Saganaskee swamp and Grassy lake, to intersect the Calumet river at the most practicable point, the survey of which was authorized by the fourth section of the act entitled "An act to amend the act entitled 'An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, approved January 9, 1836,'" approved March 2, 1837, whenever they shall be notified that the State of Indiana has commenced the construction of a corresponding work, to connect her system of internal improvements with the Illinois and Michigan canal, and the cost of such construction shall be paid out of the canal funds. In forming a junction with the Illinois and Michigan canal, and at the Calumet river, and in the location throughout, the board shall adopt the most natural connection and route, keeping in view the shortest, best and cheapest route, and the interest of the State, in lands and otherwise. The said canal shall be deemed and considered as part and parcel of the Illinois and Michigan canal, and the laws and regulations adopted with reference to the construction thereof, the duties of canal commissioners, the making and executing contracts, shall be held and deemed applicable to the canal directed to be constructed by this act.

(185.) SEC. XVI. Each judge of a circuit court of any county through which the canal passes, is authorized and required to appoint a board of assessors, not exceeding six in number, under the provisions of the act recited in the fifteenth section of this act, and to fill all vacancies which may occur in said board. The powers and duties of the board, and the qualifications of the members thereof, shall be the same as those in the act aforesaid; but no more than three of said board shall be authorized to act upon any one case.

(186.) SEC. XVII. No damage shall be allowed to any person for the use of water in any river or stream, the bed of which, or some part thereof, does not belong to the claimant, nor for the use of water in any stream, whether navigable or not, if the boundaries of the land through which it passes are fixed by land-marks, and not by the stream itself.

(187.) SEC. XVIII. Islands and inundated lands, situated within the limits of sections of lands granted to the State by the United States, shall be deemed occupied and held as canal lands.

(188.) SEC. XIX. Purchasers of canal lots and lands may pay the amount due upon the purchase at any time, and receive final certificates from the treasurer, as herein provided.

(189.) SEC. XX. The provisions of the thirty-ninth and fortieth sections of the act entitled "An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved on the ninth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, are hereby made applicable to sales made under the provisions of this act, with this exception, that, after any lots or lands have been subject to private sale under the provisions of this act, for the period of one month, any of the board of canal commissioners, or other agent of the State, may purchase not exceeding one block of town lots, or three hundred and twenty acres of land on which to reside; but this provision is not to extend to more than one purchase, and the terms of sale to be the same as those imposed upon other purchasers.

(190.) SEC. XXI. No contractor shall be entitled to the benefit of the provisions of this act until he shall have filed with the board of canal commissioners a writing, under his hand and seal, agreeing that his contract shall be deemed and considered as having been executed under the provisions of this act, and that he will be bound to comply with and conform to the provisions hereof as fully as if this act had been in force at the date of the contract.

(191.) SEC. XXII. Payments shall hereafter be made to contractors at Ottawa and Lockport, the place to be at the option of the contractor; but this provision shall not interfere with any arrangement which may be made by contractors with the board in reference to the place of payment.

(192.) SEC. XXIII. If, in the construction of the canal, the board shall be satisfied that any section of the work can be executed with less cost to the State by the employment of laborers and executing the work, than by the execution thereof by contract, they are authorized to adopt that plan of execution.

(193.) SEC. XXIV. The laws authorizing the sale of lots and lands by the canal commissioners shall be construed as conferring power upon the board to continue sales from day to day for any number of days not exceeding twenty.

An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act to protect the Canal Lands against Trespassers," approved March 4, 1837.

power, and require them to perform all the duties specified in said act, and such other duties as the board may deem requisite to the protection of the interest of the State and the protection of the public property.

(195.) SEC. II. The agents to be appointed under the provisions of this act, shall notify each person residing upon canal lands, or who may cultivate any part thereof, that unless he or she will execute bond as required by the act to which this is an amendment, and agree to comply with the provisions thereof, as amended by this act, that he or she must, within twenty days after such notice given, abandon the occupation or cultivation of the same; and each and every person who shall fail or refuse to abandon the occupation, possession or cultivation of any canal lands, upon being notified as aforesaid, shall be liable to pay the sum of five dollars for every day which he or she shall continue in the occupation, possession or cultivation of such lands, after the expiration of the time limited by this notice of the agents; which sum may be recovered in an action of debt or assumpsit, in the name of the State of Illinois, before the circuit court of any county in the State, or any justice of the peace of any county where such person may reside or be found; and separate actions may be maintained for every day's violation of the law, or actions may be maintained for the penalties incurred by two or more days' violation thereof: Provided, That this section shall not apply to improvements upon lots owned by the State adjoining Ottawa, or to any lots situated within the limits of any town or village laid off by the canal commissioners.

(196.) SEC. III. Persons who have or may execute bonds to the State, under the provisions of this and the act to which this is an amendment, shall be permitted, in all cases, to remove the crops growing upon lands occupied or cultivated at the time of the sale thereof by the State; and the same privilege is extended to those who remove from land without having executed such bond.

(197.) SEC. IV. The agents appointed under the provisions of this act may, under the direction of the board of canal commissioners, sell wood or timber lying upon the ground on canal lands; but no tree standing or growing upon said land shall be sold, under any pretense whatever.

(198.) SEC. V. If any person shall, without authority of law, quarry and remove from any canal lands any rock or stone, or shall remove from said lands any rock or stone already quarried, or if any person shall use any rock or stone taken from canal lands, each and every such person shall be liable to pay at the rate of five dollars for each perch of such stone, to be recovered by action in favor of the State, under the provisions of the act to which this is an amendment, as though such rock or stone had been embraced in said act.

(199.) SEC. VI. Agents appointed under this act shall be subject to be displaced at any time by the board of canal commissioners, and shall be bound to perform any service required by the board, as well as the duties specially pointed out by law; and the board shall have power to appoint others in the place of those displaced, and keep agents in service so long, and at such times, as in their judgment the interest of the State may demand; and the agents shall be paid by the board a reasonable sum, which shall not exceed four dollars per day.

this act, shall be accounted for to the board of canal commissioners, and shall compose a part of the canal funds.

(201.) SEC. VIII. The agents may, under the direction of the board of canal commissioners, include any quantity of land in permits; and the persons to whom permits are given, shall have all the rights that are granted by permits under the provisions of the act to which this is an amendment; and the obligations of such persons upon the bond shall extend to the whole land included in the permit; and permits may be given to persons who do not reside on or cultivate canal lands.

(202.) SEC. IX. Said agents may, also, under the direction of the board of canal commissioners, authorize the opening of stone quarries and banks of stone, coal, or either, upon such terms as may be deemed reasonable, or shall be agreed on; and contracts made in relation to the use of such stone and coal shall be in the name of the State of Illinois, and shall be valid to all intents and purposes.

(203.) SEC. X. If any person, to whom a permit has been or may be given to occupy or cultivate canal lands, shall fail to deliver possession of the premises to the purchaser thereof, within sixty days after being requested to deliver and surrender the same, such person shall be liable to pay to the purchaser five dollars for every day of retaining such possession after the expiration of the said term of sixty days; which may be recovered, by action of debt or assumpsit, before any court or justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the amount claimed: Provided, however, That crops growing or standing upon land shall, in all cases, be removed by the owner thereof, at the season of the year when such crops are usually taken from lands.

(204.) SEC. XI. If, at any time, a judgment shall be obtained upon the bond of any person to whom a permit has been or may be given to occupy or cultivate canal lands, such judgment shall operate as a forfeiture of all rights granted by the permit; and thereupon such person may be proceeded against as though no permit had been given.

An Act for the Relief of Purchasers of Canal Lots and Lands, and for other Purposes.

[Approved March 2, 1839. Laws, 1839, p. 276.]

(205.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That all persons who made purchases of lots and land of the commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, shall be permitted to pay for said lots and land under and according to the provisions of the act passed at the present session of the General Assembly, entitled "An act to amend the several laws in relation to the Illinois and Michigan canal." All such purchasers shall be permitted to surrender their certificates of purchase, and obtain new certificates; and have their notes or bonds canceled, and execute new notes for the balance due, without paying ten per cent. in advance at the time of the surrender and cancelment. By the new notes they shall be bound to pay six per cent. per annum interest on the amount due, for twenty years, and then to pay the principal; and all the provisions of the act above recited shall be applicable to said purchasers, and their rights and liabilities shall be regulated and defined by the act aforesaid. The provisions of this act shall not in any manner affect the lien of the State upon the lots and lands and all improvements thereon for the payment of the purchase money; and purchasers who avail themselves of the provisions of this act, shall hold the lots and lands subject to all the conditions in the act aforesaid.

(206.) SEC. II. The provisions of this act shall extend to heirs, devisees and assignees of purchasers.

(207.) SEC. III. In making the valuation of improvements upon canal lands under the law authorizing their valuation, the standard or rule of estimation shall not be what the improvements cost, nor what the making of such improvements would cost, at the date of valuation, but the estimate shall be the addition which the improvements make to the value of the land.

(208.) SEC. IV. In making the selections of lands to be sold whereon improvements are situated, the selections shall be confined to lands occupied or cultivated by persons having permits to occupy or cultivate the same.

(209.) SEC. V. The canal commissioners shall be permitted to purchase the lots in Lockport, at their valuation, on which they have erected dwellings, and make payment therefor under and according to the provisions of the act recited in the first section of this act. The purchase shall extend to the improvements; and the cost of the improvements shall be paid without reference to their valuation. The lots shall be valued with reference to their actual value at the date of making improvements thereon, by the commissioners, having regard to the terms of sale.

(210.) SEC. VI. The valuation of said lots shall be made by three or more of the assessors appointed by the circuit court of Will county, or the judge thereof, and they shall make duplicate certificates of their valuation; one shall be filed with the secretary of the board of canal commissioners, and the other with the clerk of the circuit court of Will county.

(211.) SEC. VII. The first section of this act shall continue in force one year; the fifth and sixth sections six months, and no longer.

(212.) SEC. VIII. The board of canal commissioners shall pay to William B. Archer, Gurdon S. Hubbard and William F. Thornton, five dollars per day each, for the time they were detained in Vandalia on business connected with the canal during the session of the General Assembly which commenced on the first Monday in December, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, after the expiration of the term of their service as canal commissioners.

(213.) SEC. IX. Forfeited lots in Chicago and Ottawa on which houses have been erected, or which are occupied by purchasers, their heirs or assigns, shall be reserved from sale until further provision shall be made by law.

An Act to provide for a Loan for Canal Purposes.

(215.) SEC. II. The governor of the State is authorized and required to execute bonds for and in behalf of the State, for any sum or sums of money which may be borrowed under the provisions of this act, in the English or any foreign language, stipulating for the payment of the interest and principal, within or without the United States, in such currency as may be agreed on by the contracting parties; which bonds shall be signed by the governor, countersigned by the auditor of public accounts, and the impress of the great seal of State shall be affixed thereon by the secretary of State.

(216.) SEC. III. The State doth hereby agree and irrevocably pledge its faith to provide sufficient resources and means with which to pay the interest accruing upon said bonds as it becomes due and payable, and to reimburse the principal when the same becomes due; and doth hereby irrevocably pledge, as security for this purpose, all the lands heretofore granted or which may hereafter be granted to the State of Illinois by the United States to aid the State in the construction of said canal, and the said canal with all its appurtenances, and the revenue arising from the use of said canal, and every branch or part thereof, subject to the liens heretofore created upon the lands, canal and revenue aforesaid, as well as all premiums which may be obtained from the sale of bonds and certificates of stock created by this act, and the rents, issues and profits which may in anywise accrue to the State from the lands and premises herein pledged, as well as from water privileges upon the line of the canal.

(217.) SEC. IV. It shall be deemed a good execution of the power to borrow, to sell the bonds herein authorized to be made; and the said bonds shall be so framed as that they shall be in form and substance certificates of stock, and shall be called the "Illinois and Michigan canal stock."

(218.) SEC. V. When bonds shall have been executed as required by this act, the governor is authorized to constitute and appoint a suitable agent or agents to sell and transfer the same, and vest the said agent or agents with full power to take all proper means and measures for the sale and transfer of said bonds.

(219.) SEC. VI. All money obtained under the provisions of this act shall be kept and used according to the provisions of the law now in force in relation to the canal fund.

(220.) SEC. VII. The right is reserved to the State to sell any of the lands pledged by this act, and the proceeds of sales to be applied exclusively to the payment of interest upon canal loans, or to expenses of constructing the canal.

(221.) SEC. VIII. No bonds shall be sold under the provisions of this act for less than their par value.

(222.) SEC. IX. In contracting for loans under the provisions of this act, provision shall be made for the reception of the money by the State, in sums of one hundred thousand dollars, as the same may be wanting for expenditure upon the canal.

An Act to provide for the Dedication of Lots, in Towns situated on Canal Lands, to Public Purposes.

of town lots owned by the State in towns laid out and established by the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, by encouraging public improvements, the said board shall designate lots in each of said towns, to be donated to religious societies or congregations, whereon to erect houses of worship; and one lot shall be granted to every society or congregation desiring the same, upon condition that such society will erect or build a church or chapel thereon, and use and occupy the same for that and no other purpose. The lots so donated shall be unalienable by the society or congregation; and whenever abandoned, or used for any other purpose than is expressed in this act, shall revert to the State, together with all improvements made thereon. The title to lots shall be vested in societies or congregations, by an entry to be made by the board of canal commissioners upon the recorded plat of the town, of the name of the society or congregation for which the donation is intended; but the title shall be subject to the provisions of this act.

(224.) SEC. II. The board shall also set apart and designate, in the manner aforesaid, not exceeding four lots in each town, on which the inhabitants of such towns may erect school-houses, for the use of common schools; said lots to be unalienable, and to be occupied and used as aforesaid, under the direction of the proper authorities of the town. The provisions of this act shall extend to towns hereafter as well as towns already laid out.

An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the Dedication of Lots, in Towns situated on Canal Lands, to public Purposes," approved Feb. 28, 1839.
[Approved Jan. 31, 1840. Laws, 1840, (Special Sess.) p. 30.]

WHEREAS some of the congregations and religious societies in towns laid off by the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, have erected churches on lots in such towns, parts of which are held by individuals, and the act entitled "An act to provide for the dedication of lots, in towns situated on canal lands, to public purposes," approved February 28, 1839, does not authorize said canal commissioners to divide such lots, and donate to such religious societies and congregations a part of such lots; therefore,

(226.) SEC. II. [Approved Feb. 27, 1841. Laws, 1841, p. 49.]

(239.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That all persons who have heretofore purchased any of the property belonging to the canal, any of the canal lands, or any of the lots in any town, sold by authority of the State, and who have made advances to the State by way of payment for the same, and who have by any means forfeited the same by not complying with the other stipulations of the contract, shall be entitled to the relief hereinafter granted, upon the conditions hereinafter mentioned, that is to say: Every person who has paid any money upon such purchases, shall first ascertain the amount from the proper authority, and next, he shall have or procure to be described the particular lot or land upon which payment shall have been made, and shall be allowed the right to select so much of his original purchase, at his option, as the said payments will cover, deducting from the original price stipulated for, thirty-three and one-third per centum.

(240.) SEC. II. Said purchaser shall relinquish all claim to the lots or lands which he does not choose to purchase, and in writing make his selection known to the board of canal commissioners, who are hereby authorized and required to procure and deliver to such purchaser a deed or patent for the same, agreeable to the laws now in force for patenting lands and lots sold by canal commissioners.

(241.) SEC. III. If any balance shall be due to the canal fund, the same shall be promptly paid at the rate aforesaid; but it shall in no case be allowed that the said board shall issue scrip of forfeited payments that may in any event become currency for the payment of any other lands or lots belonging to the canal at any other than the amount of purchase, but that the same balance, if any, shall be liquidated by the conveyance of lands or lots originally sold, and at the original amount or price given at the time of purchase, with the deduction before mentioned.

(242.) SEC. IV. That it may be lawful for any purchaser to relinquish a part of a lot by fourths, or halves, in proportion to the depreciated value heretofore fixed by this act, but not by any other mode than leaving to the State as much front as rear; and in all cases of the relinquishment of lands, other than town lots, the same shall be done in pursuance of the legal subdivisions of the United States' surveys, and not less than forty acres, nor shall the commissioners transfer any lands, nor town lots, by any other description than by such legal subdivisions.

(243.) SEC. V. It may be lawful for any purchaser as aforesaid, to place his payment which has been so forfeited, on one piece of land, not a town lot, or one or more town lots, or such particular lot or piece of land as he may deem proper at the original purchase price, with the deduction as aforesaid, but in no case shall it be allowed to any such purchaser to place this payment on any other lands or lots, at any other price or valuation than as before mentioned.

(244.) SEC. VI. The canal commissioners shall keep a just and full record of all proceedings under this act, and report the same to the next meeting of the general or special session of this legislature.

(245.) SEC. VII. The rights of the purchasers under the provisions of this act may be the subject of transfer in writing, signed by the purchaser or his legal representative, which shall be filed and recorded by the board: Provided, however, That the benefits and relief extended by the provisions of this act shall not embrace any land or town lots whatever, except the town lots sold by the commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal in the towns of Chicago and Ottawa in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, being for the relief and benefit of those purchasers, and none others.

[Approved Feb. 27, 1841. Laws, 1841, p. 212.]

An Act to Provide for the Completion of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and for the Payment of the Canal Debt.

WHEREAS, it has been represented that certain holders of the bonds of this State are willing to advance the necessary funds for the completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal, upon being secured the payment of their said advances and of their said bonds, by a vested lien upon the said canal, lands and revenues; for the purpose, therefore, of accomplishing an object so desirable and beneficial to the said bond holders and the State:

(247.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That for the purpose of raising a fund for the completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal, the governor of this State be and hereby is fully authorized and empowered to negotiate a loan solely on the credit and pledge of the said canal, its tolls, revenues and lands, to be granted to trustees, as hereinafter provided, of one million six hundred thousand dollars, for a term not exceeding six years, and at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, payable out of the first monies to be realized from the said canal, its lands, tolls and revenues, the payment of interest and reimbursement of principal to be at such place, within or without the United States, and payable in such currency as may be agreed on.

(248.) SEC. II. The holders of canal bonds and other evidences of indebtedness of this State, issued for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, or hereafter to be issued for work done, per centage, scaleage or damages, shall be first entitled to subscribe, in proportion to the amount of bonds or other indebtedness held by them, and take the whole of the said loan; but if, within a reasonable time, to be determined by the governor, any of the said holders of canal bonds or indebtedness shall neglect or refuse to subscribe as aforesaid, the whole of the said loan may be subscribed for and taken by other holders of canal bonds or indebtedness; but if, within a reasonable time, to be determined upon by the governor, the holders of the said canal bonds or other evidences of indebtedness aforesaid, shall not subscribe for and take the whole of the said loan, then, and in that case, any other person or persons, body politic or corporate, shall be entitled to subscribe for and take so much of the said loan as may remain unsubscribed for by the said holders of bonds or other evidences of debt aforesaid.

(249.) SEC. III. After the said loan shall be subscribed for as aforesaid, there shall be appointed three discreet persons to constitute a board, to be known by the style and description of the "Board of Trustees of the Illinois and Michigan Canal;" one of the said trustees shall be appointed by the governor of this State, and the other two shall be elected or appointed by the subscribers to the said loan, or the holders of the certificates authorized by this act, in manner and form as hereinafter mentioned. Whenever any vacancy shall occur in the said board of trustees, either by death or resignation, or from any other cause, said vacancy shall be filled by the governor, or holders of said certificates, to whom belonged the appointment of the trustees whose seat shall have become vacant, as the case may be.

(250.) SEC. IV. The first election of trustees by the subscribers to said loan under this act, shall be held at the canal office, at Lockport, at such time as the governor of this State shall appoint, under the direction of one of the judges of the supreme court of this State, who is hereby appointed inspector of the first election; and the two persons then elected as trustees by the said subscribers, and the person appointed trustee by the governor, shall hold their offices for two years from the time of their said election or appointment, and until others are elected.

(251.) SEC. V. Subsequent elections shall be held every two years, at such time and place, and under the direction of such persons, as a majority of the trustees for the time being shall, by resolution to be entered on their minutes, appoint, and they shall hold their offices for two years, and until others are elected in their stead.

(252.) SEC. VI. At the election of trustees under this act, each stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for each and every one thousand dollars of stock held by him, and in all elections, votes may be given in person or by proxy.

(253.) SEC. VII. All elections shall be by ballot, and the two who shall have the greatest number of votes, shall be the two trustees duly elected by the said subscribers or holders of said certificates. At all such elections, the said subscribers or holders of said certificates shall designate, upon their ballots, one of the persons voted for as president; and the person having the greatest number of votes as trustee and president, shall be one of the said trustees and president of said board.

(254.) SEC. VIII. The said board of trustees of the Illinois and Michigan canal, when duly appointed and elected as aforesaid, shall apportion their respective duties among themselves, and so far as is not incompatible with this act, shall possess all the powers and perform all the duties conferred upon the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal by the act entitled "An act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved January ninth, eighteen hundred and thirty-six, and the acts supplementary and amendatory thereto, and shall take an oath or affirmation, and give bonds with security for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon them by this act.

(255.) SEC. IX. If the holders of any of the said canal bonds or other evidences of indebtedness issued for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, shall become subscribers for the said loan or any part thereof, they shall, at the time of subscribing, file or cause to be filed with the governor, a brief description of said bonds or other evidences of indebtedness aforesaid owned by them, which description shall be deposited by the governor in the office of the auditor of public accounts, in order that the evidences may be preserved to discriminate the holders who subscribed for the said loan, and to identify the said bonds or other evidences of indebtedness aforesaid, that may in consequence be entitled to a priority of payment out of property and assets granted to the board of trustees as hereinafter provided.

(256.) SEC. X. For the purpose of placing in the hands of trustees full and ample security for the payment of said loan authorized by this act, and the interest thereon, as well as for securing a preference in the payment of such of the canal bonds and other evidences of indebtedness issued by this State for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal as may be owned by the subscribers to the said loan, the State does hereby irrevocably grant to the said board of trustees of the Illinois and Michigan canal, the bed of the said Illinois and Michigan canal, and the land over which the same passes, including its banks, margins, tow-paths, feeders, basins, right of way, locks, dams, water power, structures, stone excavated and stone and materials quarried, purchased, procured or collected for its construction; and all the property, right, title and interest of the State, of, in and to the said canal, with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in anywise appertaining; and also all the remaining lands and lots belonging to the said canal fund, or which hereafter may be given, granted, or donated by the general government to the State, to aid in the construction of the said canal, and the buildings and erections belonging to the State thereon situated; the said board of trustees to have, hold, possess and enjoy the same as fully and as absolutely in all respects, as the State now can or hereafter could do, for the uses, purposes and trusts hereinafter mentioned; but it is to be understood that all canal lands and lots heretofore sold by the board of commissioners, upon which moneys are now due, or may hereafter become due, whether the said lands and lots be now forfeited or relinquished, or hereafter become forfeited or relinquished, shall be exempt from the aforesaid provisions of this act, and the trustee herein provided to be appointed by the governor, or any other officer or officers, having the management of the affairs of the canal, until said trustee be appointed on the part of the State, is hereby authorized and required to settle all accounts due to contractors and others (except for such damages as are hereinafter provided for) by issuing certificates of indebtedness which, together with the certificates of indebtedness, scrip, and acceptances heretofore issued by the said canal commissioners, shall be received by said trustee, or other officer or officers aforesaid in payment for said lots and lands whenever they may be presented for that purpose. The said lands and lots hereby reserved shall, within three months after the passage of this act, be appropriated as is provided in the thirteenth section of this act, and sold in accordance with the laws of this State regulating the sale of canal lands.

(257.) SEC. XI. The subscribers to the said loan shall execute an agreement to and with the governor of this State to pay the amount respectively subscribed to the said board of trustees, at such times and in such proportions as said trustees shall direct, and said agreement shall specify the manner in which said trustees shall give notice to the said subscriber of every call for a payment: Provided, That in case any subscriber under the provisions of this act shall fail, neglect or refuse to pay any instalment at the time called for by said trustees, he shall forfeit all payments previously made, and all benefits and advantages arising under the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That the said trustees shall be bound to make a call for at least one hundred thousand dollars per quarter for the first year after their appointment.

(258.) SEC. XII. Whenever and as often as the said subscribers to the said loan shall make a payment of any portion of their subscriptions, in pursuance of a call of the said trustees, the said board of trustees, by their president and secretary, under the seal of said board, shall execute a certificate to each of the said subscribers for the amount paid by them on their respective subscriptions, with one year's interest at the rate of six per cent. added to the principal, stipulating for the payment of the same within six years, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, to be computed after one year from the date of said certificate, and to be paid semi-annually thereafter; the said principal and interest to be paid by the said trustees out of the first moneys to be realized by them from the Illinois and Michigan canal, its assets, revenues, tolls, and lands granted to the said trustees by this act, which said certificate shall also be countersigned by the governor, and the impress of the great seal of the State shall be affixed thereon by the secretary of State.

(259.) SEC. XIII. The said board of trustees, when appointed, are hereby authorized to take possession of the said canal, lands, property, and assets, granted to them by this act, and proceed to complete the same. They are hereby authorized to make such changes and alterations of the original plan of said canal as they may deem advisable, without reducing its present capacity, or materially changing its present location, having due regard to economy, permanency of the work, and an adequate supply of water at all seasons. None of the lots, lands or water powers so granted to the said trustees, shall be sold until three months after the completion of said canal; the said lots, lands and water powers shall then be offered for sale by the said trustees at public auction, in lots and legal sub-divisions, once or oftener in each year for the four succeeding years; said sales to be made for cash or on credit in the manner prescribed in the act of the ninth of January, eighteen hundred and thirty-six. The said lands, lots and water power, before they are offered for sale as aforesaid, shall be appraised by three disinterested persons, to be appointed by the judge of the circuit court in which said lands, lots and water power are situated, who shall take an oath faithfully and impartially to discharge the duty of appraisers. Said lands, lots and water power, when so appraised, shall not be sold for less than the appraised amount. After the expiration of the four years, the said trustees shall expose the residue of said lands which may remain on hand, to sale at such times and in such manner as they may deem proper. The said board of trustees are authorized to convey lands and water powers sold by them as aforesaid, after the purchase money for the same be fully paid, but not before; and the said lands and lots shall be exempt from taxation of every description by and under the authority of any law of this State, until after the same shall have been sold and conveyed by the said trustees as aforesaid: Provided, also, That in the construction of the said canal, no change shall be made in its location so as to direct the water power from canal lands: Provided, That in all cases where improvements were made upon the said canal lands or lots previous to the first day of February, eighteen hundred and forty-three, the owner of such improvements shall be entitled to purchase the said lands or lots on which said improvements are situated, at an appraisement to be made as aforesaid without reference to said improvements.

(260.) SEC. XIV. The said trustees shall proceed to the completion of the said canal in a good, substantial and workman-like manner, so that the same shall, if practicable, be ready for use and navigation within two years and six months from the time this act goes into operation. The said trustees shall keep a just, full and accurate account of all the costs and expenditures of completing and superintending the said canal, and of the rents, issues, revenues and profits received by them from the said canal, and from the property granted to them by this act, and of the amounts received by them under the said loan, and shall annually make a report to the governor, in manner and form specified in the forty-third section of the said act of January ninth, eighteen hundred and thirty-six: Provided, That in case the subscribers, under the provisions of this act, shall fail or neglect to complete the said canal within three years after this act goes into operation, then and in such case the lands and property hereby granted to said trustees shall revert to the State.

(261.) SEC. XV. The said board of trustees shall annually establish a tariff of tolls to be paid for transportation upon said canal, (but the legislature hereby reserves the right to increase the tolls with a view to an increase of revenue, but shall not reduce the same without the consent of the trustees) and are hereby fully authorized and empowered to collect the same, and from time to time to make, ordain and establish such reasonable rules, by-laws and regulations in relation to the collection of tolls, the transportation upon the canal, the conduct of boats and rafts, and the general police of the said canal, as are usual or may be found necessary, and to enforce the observance of the same; and that said canal, when completed, shall in all future time be free for the transportation of the troops of the United States and their munitions of war, without the payment of any toll whatever.

(262.) SEC. XVI. After the completion of the said canal as aforesaid, the said board of trustees shall make annual dividends of the moneys which shall come to their hands from the said canal, its assets, tolls, revenues, and lands granted to the said trustees by this act, after payment of incidental expenses, among the holders of the bonds of this State, in the following order: First, the said board of trustees shall annually make a pro rata dividend, on payment of said moneys on the certificates given to the subscribers to the loan authorized by this act, until said certificates and interest thereon are fully paid. Second, the said trustees shall then make annual dividends and payments of said money, upon the interest due upon the bonds and other evidences of indebtedness held by the subscribers to the said loan, a description whereof shall have been filed with the governor, as provided in the ninth section of this act, until the interest thereon is fully paid. Third, the said trustees shall then make annual dividends and payments of said money upon the interest due to the non-subscribing holders of bonds or other evidences of canal indebtedness. Fourth, after paying all interest due such non-subscribing bond holders, the said trustees shall make annual dividends pro rata upon the principal of the bonds and other evidences of canal indebtedness, held by the subscribers to said loan, as provided for by the ninth section of this act, until the same shall be liquidated, at which time the trust hereby created shall cease, and the canal shall revert to the State, with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging: Provided, That the certificates of canal indebtedness, not stipulating on their face for the payment of interest, shall, when registered by subscribers to said loan as hereinbefore provided, bear an interest of six per cent. per annum, from and after the time when they shall be so registered: Provided, further, That no appraisal shall be made for any damages arising under the provisions of any contract entered into in pursuance of an act for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, unless the contractor or contractors interested therein, shall first signify his or their consent in writing, (which writing shall be deposited with the appraisers, to be filed in the auditor's office,) that such appraisal of damages shall be made without allowing any prospective damages, or any profits which said contractor or contractors might have made, had they finished their jobs; but such contractor or contractors shall be allowed the value of their machinery upon the canal at the time the work stopped, and back per centage and scaleage, which entire amount of damages so allowed to all contractors, shall not exceed the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

(263.) SEC. XVII. The governor is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint three discreet and skillful persons to go on to the jobs and lettings upon the canal, and appraise the actual damage which the respective contractors upon the said canal will sustain in being deprived of the same. Said appraisal shall be final and conclusive, unless appealed from. That if any person shall consider himself aggrieved by the decision of said appraisers, he may appeal from the same at any time within thirty days, to the circuit court of the county in which the job so appraised is situated. If the governor shall be satisfied that the appraisal is fair and honest, he shall issue certificates of canal indebtedness, bearing interest at six per cent., to the persons in whose favor the appraisal shall be made, for the amount; the holders of which certificates shall be entitled to all the privileges conferred by this act upon the other holders of canal indebtedness; and the present contractors of the Illinois and Michigan canal shall have the right to take the contract for the jobs which they now hold, at the estimate of the engineer to be appointed by said trustees, under such regulations and provisions as the said trustees shall direct.

(264.) SEC. XVIII. This act shall go into effect, and the said canal property and assets shall vest in the said trustees, as hereinbefore granted, whenever and as soon as the full amount of the said loan shall be subscribed for, and the trustees elected as hereinbefore provided; and when this act goes into effect, so much of the acts heretofore passed by the legislature of this State in relation to the Illinois and Michigan canal, and the canal lands and property, as conflicts with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

(265.) SEC. XIX. Whenever the trust created by this act shall have been fully executed and performed by the said trustees, the said canal and the canal property that may then remain, shall revert to the State, and the State hereby reserves the right of paying off the bonds and certificates to be paid to the said trustees, and the incidental expenses paid by them, and the interest thereon; and the said trustees shall then resign the said canal, and the remaining canal property and assets to the State.

(266.) SEC. XX. This act shall be a public act, and shall be liberally construed in all courts of justice; and the State hereby solemnly pledges its faith to supply, by future legislation, all such defects as may be found necessary to enable the said trustees to carry into full effect the fair and obvious intent of this act.

(267.) SEC. XXI. If, in consequence of any defect, omission or objection to the foregoing act, the said bond holders or other persons shall neglect or refuse to subscribe for the said loan, in that case, the governor is hereby authorized to negotiate and enter into a contract with the said bond holders or other persons, in pursuance of the general principles of this act: Provided, That he shall make no further pledge of the faith or credit of the State, for any advance of money, but shall be limited to pledging the canal and canal property therefor: And provided, further, That in any negotiations to be made under the provisions of this act, for the purpose of carrying them into effect, nothing shall be done which shall in any wise interfere with the rights now secured to the holders of canal bonds. The governor is hereby vested with all such power as may be necessary to carry this act into operation, or to make or cause to be made such negotiation.

(268.) SEC. XXII. The said trustees shall employ a chief engineer, of known and established character for experience and integrity, who shall be subject to the direction of the trustees, but shall be required to execute a bond to the governor in the sum of ten thousand dollars, to be approved by him, for the faithful performance of all the duties of an engineer, and shall be subject to be removed by the governor for any good reasons, which he shall make known to the next General Assembly. The said engineer shall, in addition, be required to take an oath "that he will faithfully and impartially perform all the duties of his office without respect to persons, and that he is neither interested nor will be interested in any job, work or contracts, let or to be let on the canal, or connected therewith," which oath shall be entered and subscribed on the bond of said engineer.

I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That all laws of this State so far as they provide for the election or appointment of commissioners, engineers, or other officers of the Illinois and Michigan canal, be and they are hereby repealed.

(270.) SEC. II. The present acting commissioner of the said canal shall continue to hold his office until some other officer or officers are appointed to take charge of the affairs of the canal, and shall perform all the duties heretofore required to be performed by the board of commissioners and treasurer. The office of secretary is also hereby continued as aforesaid; and one engineer, to be selected by the said commissioners, shall be retained until settlements have been made with contractors. also authorized to employ an agent for the prevention of trespasses upon canal lands, in case the services of such agent shall be deemed necessary.

(271.) SEC. III. The said commissioner shall at all times receive such evidence of canal indebtedness as have been issued or may be issued, as aforesaid, in payment for balances due for lands or lots, whenever the said evidence of indebtedness may be presented for that purpose; and upon full payment being made, he shall issue final certificates to the purchaser or purchasers of said land or lots.

(272.) SEC. IV. This act shall take effect from and after its passage; and thenceforth the salaries or pay of those officers not hereby expressly authorized to be continued or retained in office, shall cease.

WHEREAS, but a small amount of the money will be required to complete the FOX river feeder, and furnish water to propel machinery at Ottawa, La Salle county, from the canal, as has been heretofore planned, it would be for the interest of the State, as well as for the benefit and convenience of the citizens of La Salle county, that the agent of the State in charge of the canal, or the trustees who may be appointed under a late act to provide for the completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal, dispose of the same, as provided for by an act to provide for selling water lots on the Illinois and Michigan canal, approved February twenty-second, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, before the canal is finished, that the State may receive the income which would accrue, and the citizens of La Salle county the convenience from the use of the same; therefore, has been paid for by the purchaser or purchasers, together with the improvements thereon, and shall not extend to the interest of the State in said lots and lands.

(275.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the agents of the State having charge of the Illinois and Michigan canal, or the trustees that may be appointed under the provisions of an act to provide for the completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal, may and are hereby authorized to dispose of the surplus water from the canal at Ottawa, La Salle county, together with lots on which the same may be used, on the terms provided by an act to provide for the disposing of water lots on the Illinois and Michigan canal, approved February twenty-second, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, except so much of said act as is contained in the third section of said act, which said third section of the said act is hereby repealed, whenever and at such times as the said agents or trustees may deem it for the best interest of the State: Provided, That the water lots so sold shall be subject to an appraisal on the completion of said canal, as is now provided by an act entitled "An act to provide for the completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal," approved February [twenty-first,] one thousand eight hundred and forty-three; and the purchasers of any such water lots as may be sold under the provisions of this act, shall pay for the use of such lot such appraisal as shall be then made for the remaining term for which they have leased said lot.

(278.) SEC. II. (281.) SEC. V. The purchaser at any such tax sale, shall have the right to continue the payments agreed by the original purchaser or claimant to be paid to the State, until the expiration of the time limited for the redemption of the same, and until which time the original purchaser or claimant shall have a right to redeem the same by paying, in addition to the sums now required by law, the further sums, with legal interest thereon, which the purchaser at such tax sales may have paid to the State in fulfillment of the original purchase; and after the expiration of such time of redemption, the said lands and lots not having been redeemed, the purchaser at such tax sale shall have the right to make full payment according to the terms of the original purchase, and shall be entitled to a patent for such lands or lots, the same as if he had been the original purchaser.

(282.) SEC. VI. In making payments for the purpose of redeeming such lands or lots as aforesaid, all sums of money or scrip, advanced by the purchaser at tax sales, in continuation of the payments required of the original purchaser or claimant, shall be made at the canal office, in gold or silver.

(285.) SEC. III. Each of the said agents, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall execute a bond to the State of Illinois, in the penalty of five hundred dollars, with one or more securities, to be approved by the acting commissioner of the Illinois and Michigan canal, conditioned that he will well and faithfully execute all the duties required of him by law, and make full and true account and payment to the said acting commissioner, or such person or persons as may have charge of the affairs of said canal, of all moneys received by him as such agent, which said bond shall be filed and kept in the canal office.

(292.) SEC. X. That for the purpose of carrying this act into effect, the acting commissioner of the said canal shall have all the powers conferred upon the board of commissioners by the acts of which this is amendatory, and he shall require the said agents to make report of their proceedings to him at such times as he shall appoint therefor, under oath, stating the amount of money he has received for the use of the State, under the provisions of this act, for what and of whom he has received the same, the amount of judgments that have been received and from whom, and the number of days he has been actually engaged in such business.

(293.) SEC. XI. That so much of the act entitled "An act to protect the canal lands against trespassers," approved March fourth, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, and the act entitled "An act to amend an act to protect the canal lands against trespassers," approved February twenty-sixth, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, as comes in conflict with the provisions of this act, be and the same is hereby repealed; but all suits commenced under the provisions of the above recited acts, and now pending, shall be prosecuted to judgment in accordance with the provisions of said acts; and trespassers on canal lands prior to the passage of this act, against whom no suits have been commenced, may be prosecuted as heretofore provided by law.

(294.) SEC. XII. Archer, acting commissioner of the said board, and alleged a performance on the part of the plaintiff, setting forth the agreement verbatim; the defendants pleaded non est factum, without verifying the plea by affidavit: Held, that the power of the defendants to make the contract could not be questioned under the pleadings, and that the plaintiff might prove the execution of the contract by parol. Holcomb v. Ill. & Mich. Canal, 2 S. 228.

The canal commissioners had legal authority to draw drafts and checks, and the counterfeiting them and passing them knowingly is forgery, under the 73rd and 77th sections of the criminal code. Crofts v. The People, 2 S. 442.

The State continues to be the beneficial owner of the canal lands, notwithstanding the conveyance by the governor to the trustees; and may maintain an action to recover penalties given by the legislature against trespassers on such lands. The People v. Nichols, 4 G. 307.

The act of Congress of March 30, 1822, vesting certain public land in this State for the use of the Illinois and Michigan canal, does not include sections numbered 16 on the public surveys. Those sections were not public land at the time of the passage of the act of Congress, but had been before granted to the State for the use of schools. Canal Trustees v. Havens, 5 G. 558. See Canal Trustees v. Havens, 11 Ill. 554.

In 1837, the legislature authorized the canal commissioners to appropriate block 14, in Chicago, for a canal basin, and to permit the owners of block 14 to receive block 7, the property of the canal, in payment, at its appraised value. An act passed in 1843, granting the canal and canal property to trustees, who were required to complete the canal and sell the canal lands and lots. In March, 1845, an act passed, directing the trustees to perfect the appropriation of block 14, and the exchange and appraisal of block 7, according to the act of 1837. In June, 1845, the canal and the property belonging to it, passed into the hands of the trustees, who refused to appropriate block 14, and offered block 7 for sale: Held, that the owners of block 14 could not, by bill in equity, compel the trustees to take that block for the purposes of the canal, and have block 7 appraised and exchanged therefor. Canal Trustees v. Deves et al., 11 Ill. 592.

A feeder of the Illinois and Michigan canal was constructed in 1838, passing across the land of B. The act of 1843, by which the canal was transferred to the board of trustees, authorized the State trustee to settle existing claims for damages, arising from the construction of the canal, by issuing certificates of State indebtedness to the claimants. A law of 1847, required all unliquidated claims against the State, for damages arising from the construction of the canal, to be proved before the State trustee, and filed with the secretary of State, before the first of January, 1849. In 1848, B. made application for damages to the State trustee, who heard the proofs, and made a certificate, stating that B. produced satisfactory proof that he was the owner of the land, and that the same had been injured by the construction of the feeder to a certain amount. The proof and certificate were filed in the office of the secretary of State before the first of January, 1849: Held, that the State trustee, in hearing the proof and making the certificate, acted under the law of 1847, and not under the law of 1843; and that B. could not, by mandamus, compel him to issue a certificate of State indebtedness: Held, also, that if a settlement was designed, it was not so far perfected as to be binding on the State. The People v. Wells, 12 Ill. 102.

The real estate belonging to the trustees of the Illinois and Michigan canal, is liable to assessments for opening streets and similar improvements. Such assessments are distinguishable from taxes, are not for a general or public object, and are not a charge on an estate which reduces its value. The canal lands are not the legal property of the State; the trustees hold the legal title, but the State has such a beneficial interest therein as entitles it to insist that the trustees faithfully execute their trust. Canal Trustees v. City of Chicago, 12 Ill. 403.

The canal trustees have all the powers in relation to laying out towns upon canal lands that were conferred upon the board of commissioners. Purchasers of canal lands, either by pre-emption or at public sale, can only purchase in lots and legal subdivisions. The trustees are authorized to sell lands in such legal subdivisions as they may think best, and the right of pre-emption is limited to the lands on which the improvements are made. The pre-emptor cannot purchase till the trustees are authorized to sell, and if it is made their duty to subdivide the lands into town lots, and cause them to be appraised, the pre-emptor can only purchase such lots as embrace his improvements. A pre-emptor is entitled to the benefit of the law, whether he entered as a trespasser or under license. The right of pre-emption is not restricted to the person who was the owner at the time the improvement was made, but to him who was the owner at the time the land came into market. Canal Trustees v. Brainard, 12 Ill. 487.

A party who leased improved canal lots from the canal commissioners in 1841, and made repairs and improvements thereon prior to the 1st of December, 1842, has not a right to purchase the lots at their appraised value, under the 13th section of the act of Feb. 21, 1842, and the 2nd section of the act of March 4, 1843. Granger v. Canal Trustees, 13 Ill. 740.

The original plan of making the south branch of the Chicago river a part of the Illinois and Michigan canal having been abandoned, it is not the duty of the trustees to condemn and appropriate blocks 14 and 15, in the city of Chicago, for the purpose of forming a basin at the confluence of the north and south branches of the river. People ex rel. Chicago v. Ill. & Mich. Canal, 14 Ill. 292.

There is no distinction between the obligations resting upon the State at the time of the assignment of her interest in the canal to the trustees, and those of the trustees since. Because the State built certain bridges across the canal, at the crossing of certain highways, for the use of the public, it is not obligatory on her to do so at the crossing of every highway over the canal. The State has the power to build bridges out of the public treasury, but her power to build them over the canal, without the consent of the trustees, is doubted. People ex rel. Hoes v. Canal Trustees, 14 Ill. 402.

The grant of a charter by the legislature, authorizing a condemnation of the right of way over the lands held by the canal trustees, does not violate the grant by the State to those trustees. All grants made by the State, whether to the canal trustees or others, although irrevocable, are subject to the right of eminent domain, unless that right is expressly relinquished. The charter to the Rock Island R. R. Co. does not prohibit the construction of that road within ninety feet of either side of the canal. The effect likely to be produced by the rail road, in diminishing the revenues of the canal, does not violate the contract between the State and the trustees of the canal. Ill. & Mich. Canal v. Chicago & Rock Island R. R. Co., 14 Ill. 314.

DETINUE.

SECTION

1. Actions of detinue, how brought.
2. Defendant may give bond.
3. Sheriff made defendant in certain cases.
4. When bond forfeited, remedy of parties interested.

SECTION

5. Court or judge may reduce bail, accept surrender of defendant, and cancel bond.
6. Actions, how proceeded in.

[Approved March 3, 1845. Rev. Stat. 1845, p. 195.]

SECTION I. In all actions of detinue, where the plaintiff shall file in the office of the clerk of the court in which such action is to be commenced, an affidavit on the oath or affirmation of the plaintiff or some other credible person, stating that the property, to recover which such action is about to be commenced, is the property of the plaintiff, stating the value thereof, and that the defendant unlawfully detains the same, the clerk shall issue a writ of capias in detinue, and indorse the amount so sworn to, and direct the sheriff to take bail in double that sum.

SEC. II. It shall be the duty of any sheriff to whom a writ of capias in detinue shall be directed, to take the body of the defendant and commit him to the common jail of the county, unless he shall enter into a bond to the plaintiff, conditioned that if judgment shall be rendered in such action against him, he will deliver to the plaintiff the property which shall be thereby recovered, and pay all damages which shall be assessed for the detention thereof, and costs of suit: the sheriff shall return such bond with the writ, as in other cases.

SEC. III. If any sheriff shall return any such writ executed, and shall not have the body of the defendant according to the command of the writ, or return a bond, as is provided in the preceding section, or the bond returned shall be adjudged insufficient by the court, and the defendant shall fail to perfect his bail if ruled thereto, the sheriff shall be made a co-defendant, and may defend the suit upon the pleas of the defendant, and shall be subject to the same judgment and recovery as the defendant, and be joined therein. All questions concerning the sufficiency of such bond shall be determined during the return term.

SEC. IV. When any bond as aforesaid shall be forfeited, the plaintiff shall have the same remedy against the bail, and the bail shall have the same remedy against the principal, and the sheriff, when made a co-defendant, shall have the same remedy against the principal and bail, as is or may be provided by law in cases of bail in other civil causes, and the same proceedings shall be had thereon.

SEC. V. Any court out of which any writ as aforesaid shall issue, or any judge thereof in vacation, may reduce the sum for which bail is demanded, and the court may accept the surrender of the defendant, and cancel such bond, in the same manner, for the like causes, and with the like effect, as in other cases of bail in civil actions.

SEC. VI. All actions commenced in the manner aforesaid, shall be conducted and proceeded on in all things according to the principles and usages of law in actions of detinue. If any verdict for the plaintiff shall omit the price, or value or damages for detention, the court may, at any time, award an inquiry to ascertain the same.

Same law, approved Jan. 6, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1827, p. 179.

DECISIONS. The action of detinue is unusual, and the books contain but few rules of evidence respecting it; but greater certainty and accuracy in the description of the property demanded, are required, than in actions of trespass or trover. Felt v. Williams, 1 S. 206.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

DIVORCES.

SECTION

1. Divorces, for what causes may be decreed.
2. Jurisdiction of court in such cases; proceedings, nature of and when had.
3. Who entitled to divorce.
4. When court may refuse to grant divorce.
5. Suits for divorce, how tried; when confession of party may be used; how marriage proved.

SECTION

6. Alimony and support of children, when court may provide for.
7. Poor woman may prosecute for divorce without paying costs.
8. Power of courts of this State to try suits brought for causes not provided for by law; to decree alimony, and provide for children.

[Approved March 3, 1845. Rev. Stat. 1845, p. 196.]

SECTION I. In every case in which a marriage has been, or hereafter may be, contracted and solemnized between any two persons, and it shall be adjudged in the manner hereinafter provided, that either party, at the time of such marriage, was, and continues to be, naturally impotent; or that he or she had a wife or husband living at the time of such marriage; or that either party has committed adultery subsequently to the marriage; or has willfully deserted and absented himself or herself from the husband or wife, without any reasonable cause, for the space of two years, or has been guilty of extreme and repeated cruelty or habitual drunkenness for the space of two years; or has been convicted of felony or other infamous crime, it shall be lawful for the injured party to obtain a divorce and dissolution of such marriage contract; but no such divorce shall in anywise affect the legitimacy of the children of such marriage, except in cases where the marriage shall be declared void on the grounds of a prior marriage.

SEC. II. The circuit court, sitting as a court of chancery, shall have jurisdiction in all cases of divorce and alimony by this chapter allowed; and the like process, practice and proceedings shall be had, as are usually had in other cases in chancery, except as is hereinafter provided, and except that the answer of the defendant need not be on oath. The proceedings shall be had in the county where the complainant resides, and the process may be directed to any county in the State.

SEC. III. No person shall be entitled to a divorce in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, who has not resided in the State one whole year previous to filing his or her bill or petition, unless the offense or injury complained of was committed within this State, or whilst one or both of the parties resided in this State.

SEC. IV. If it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court, that the injury complained of was occasioned by collusion of the parties, or done with the assent of the complainant for the purpose of obtaining a divorce, or that the complainant was consenting thereto, or that both parties have been guilty of adultery, when adultery is the ground of complaint, then no divorce shall be decreed.

SEC. V. In all cases for a divorce, where the defendant shall appear and deny the charges in the complainant's bill or petition alleged, the same shall be tried by a jury; but if the bill or petition shall be taken for confessed, the court may proceed to a hearing of the cause, by examination of witnesses in open court; and no confession of the defendant shall be taken as evidence, unless the court or jury shall be satisfied that such confession was made in sincerity, and without fraud or collusion, to enable the complainant to obtain a divorce. But any marriage which may have been celebrated or had in any foreign State or country, may be proved by the acknowledgment of the parties, their cohabitation, and other circumstantial testimony.

SEC. VI. When a divorce shall be decreed, it shall and may be lawful for the court to make such order touching the alimony and maintenance of the wife, the care, custody and support of the children, or any of them, as from the circumstances of the parties and the nature of the case shall be fit, reasonable and just. And in case the wife be complainant, to order the defendant to give reasonable security for such alimony and maintenance, or may enforce the payment of such alimony and maintenance in any other manner consistent with the rules and practice of the court. And the court may, on application, from time to time make such alterations in the allowance of alimony and maintenance, as shall appear reasonable and proper.

SEC. VII. Any woman suing for a divorce, who shall make it appear satisfactorily to the court, that she is poor and unable to pay the expenses of such suit, shall be allowed by the court to prosecute her complaint without costs, and in such cases, no fees shall be charged by the officers of the court.

SEC. VIII. In addition to the causes hereinbefore provided for divorces from the bands of matrimony, courts of chancery in this State shall have full power and authority to hear and determine all causes for a divorce, not provided for by any law of this State. The same rule of proceeding shall be had as in other cases in chancery, and upon hearing of the bill, or bill and answer, and proofs and exhibits, if the court shall be satisfied of the expediency of decreeing a dissolution of the bands of matrimony, it shall have power to do so, and to make such order with regard to the costs as it may deem right, and also to make such order with regard to the children (if any) and the right of alimony, as it may think proper.

PRIOR LAWS. An act respecting divorces; approved Feb. 22, 1819. Laws, 1819, p. 35. Repealed June 1, 1827.

An act to amend "An act respecting divorces," approved Feb. 22, 1819; approved Jan. 17, 1825. Laws, 1825, p. 169. Repealed June 1, 1827.

An act concerning divorces; in force June 1, 1827. Rev. Laws, 1827, p. 181; Rev. Laws, 1833, p. 232.

DECISIONS. Upon a bill, filed by the wife, alleging desertion, the husband confessed the desertion in answer, and justified it by reason of alleged cruelty. The court decreed the divorce, and allowed alimony to the wife, continuing the cause to the next term, to inquire into the proper amount of alimony. At the next term, the same evidence was admitted upon the question of amount of alimony that had been heard on the question of divorce, though objected to by the respondent, and a decree was given for one cent alimony, and that each pay his or her own costs: Held, that such testimony was irrelevant on the question of amount of alimony, and that it was error to admit it; and the allowance of nominal alimony only, was a virtual rescission of the former judgment. The order on the wife to pay costs, was erroneous, and alimony should have been allowed, in proportion to the husband's ability and the wife's condition in life. Reavis v. Reavis, 1 S. 242.

The only divorce authorized by our statute is a vinculo matrimonii, and that for causes arising both before and after marriage. Legitimacy of issue is not affected, except the marriage is declared void on account of a prior marriage. Divorce for the fault of the wife involves loss of jointure, dower and rights secured by marriage settlements. The decree of divorce is conclusive evidence of the causes for which it was granted, in all collateral suits and proceedings. Clark et al. v. Lott et al., 11 Ill. 105.

Our courts have no authority to decree a divorce on a bill taken pro confesso; there must be proof to sustain the allegations of the bill. Shillinger v. Shillinger, 14 Ill. 147.

The 8th section of the statute of divorces does not confer an unlimited discretion upon the courts, to grant divorces wherever they deem it expedient. Birkley v. Solomons et al., 15 Ill. 120.

The marriage contract will not be dissolved for light and trivial causes; such a case must be shown as the law requires. Unkind treatment, threats of personal violence, and abusive language, without personal violence, do not constitute the "extreme and repeated cruelty," which the statute requires to authorize a divorce for that cause. Vignos v. Vignos, 15 Ill. 186.

Upon decreeing alimony, the court may direct that lands held by the wife, be divided between the parties, and that they execute to each other conveyances to perfect such decree. Unless manifest injustice be done, the supreme court will not disturb the decree of the court below on a question of alimony. Stewartson v. Stewartson, 15 Ill. 145.

Where a husband's interest in the real estate of his wife was during coverture, it is terminated by a divorce granted for his misconduct. Howey et al. v. Goings, 13 Ill. 95.

The husband obtained a decree of divorce from his wife, and the question of alimony was continued to the next term of the court. Before the next term the husband died, and at the next term the suit was abated so far as alimony was concerned, on the motion of the defendant. On motion, the supreme court granted a writ of scire facias to the executor of the deceased husband, and a writ of error to revise the decree. Wren v. Moss et al., 1 G. 560. See also, Wren v. Moss et al., 2 G. 72.

SECTION I. A widow shall be endowed of the third part of all the lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance, at any time during the marriage, unless the same shall have been relinquished in legal form. Equitable estates shall be subject to the widow's dower, and all real estate of every description contracted for by the husband in his life time, the title to which may be completed after his decease.

SEC. II. The widow of an alien shall be entitled to dower of the estate of her husband, in the same manner as if such alien had been a native born citizen of the United States.

SEC. III. Where a person seized of an estate of inheritance in land, shall have executed a mortgage of such estate before marriage, his widow shall, nevertheless, be entitled to dower out of the lands mortgaged, as against every person, except the mortgagee, and those claiming under him.

SEC. IV. Where a husband shall purchase lands during coverture, and shall mortgage such lands to secure the payment of the purchase money thereof, his widow shall not be entitled to dower out of such lands, as against the mortgagee or those claiming under him, although she shall not have united in such mortgage; but she shall be entitled to her dower as against all other persons.

SEC. V. When, in the cases specified in the two preceding sections, the mortgagee or those claiming under him, shall, after the death of such husband, cause the land mortgaged to be sold, either under a power contained in the mortgage, or by virtue of the judgment or decree of a court, and any surplus shall remain, after the payment of the moneys due on such mortgage, and the costs and charges of sale, such widow shall be entitled to the interest or income of one-third part of such surplus, for life, as her dower.

SEC. VI. A widow shall not be endowed of lands conveyed to her husband by way of mortgage, unless he have acquired an absolute estate during the marriage.

SEC. VII. When an estate in land shall be conveyed to a person and his intended wife, or to such intended wife alone, or to any person in trust for such person and his intended wife, or in trust for such intended wife alone, for the purpose of creating a jointure for such intended wife, and with her assent, to be taken in lieu of dower, such jointure shall be a bar to any right or claim for dower of such wife, in any land of her husband.

SEC. VIII. The assent of the wife to such jointure, shall be evinced, if she be of full age, by her becoming a party to the conveyance by which it shall be settled; if she be an infant, by her joining with her father or guardian in such conveyance.

SEC. IX. If, before her marriage, but without her assent, or if, after her marriage, land shall be given or assured for the jointure of a wife, in lieu of dower, she shall make her election, whether she will take such jointure, or whether she will be endowed of the lands of her husband, but she shall not be entitled to both.

SEC. X. Every devise of land, or any estate therein, by will, shall bar her dower in lands, or of her share in personal estate, unless otherwise expressed in the will; but she may elect whether she will take such devise or bequest, or whether she will renounce the benefit of such devise or bequest, and take her dower in the lands, and her share in the personal estate of her husband.

SEC. XI. When a woman shall be entitled to an election under either of the two last preceding sections, she shall be deemed to have elected to take such jointure or devise unless within one year after the authentication or probate of the will, she shall deliver or transmit to the court of probate of the proper county, a written renunciation, which may be in the following form, to wit:

"I, A. B., widow of C. D., late of the county of _____ and State of _____, do hereby renounce and quit all claim to the benefit of any jointure, bequest or devise made to me by the last will and testament of my said deceased husband, which has been exhibited and proved according to law, (or otherwise, as the case may be,) and I do elect to take in lieu thereof, my dower or legal share of the estate of my said husband."

Which said letter of renunciation shall be filed in the office of the probate justice of the peace, and shall operate as a complete bar against any claim which such widow may afterwards set up, to any provision which may have been thus made for her in such jointure, or in the will of any such testator, in lieu of dower; and by thus renouncing all claims, as aforesaid, such widow shall thereupon be entitled to dower in the lands, or share in the personal estate of her husband.

SEC. XII. If any woman shall be divorced from her husband for the fault or misconduct of such husband, except where the marriage was void from the beginning, she shall not thereby lose her dower, nor the benefit of any such jointure; but if such divorce be for her fault or misconduct, she shall forfeit the same; and when a divorce is obtained for the fault and misconduct of the husband, he shall lose his right to be tenant by curtesy in the wife's lands, and also an estate granted therein by the laws of this State.

SEC. XIII. If a wife voluntarily leave her husband and commit adultery, she shall be for ever barred her dower, and the benefit of any such jointure, unless her husband be voluntarily reconciled to her, and suffer her to dwell with him.

SEC. XIV. No act, deed or conveyance, performed or executed by the husband, without the assent of his wife, evinced by the acknowledgment thereof, in the manner required by law, shall pass the estate of a married woman; and no judgment or decree confessed or recovered against him, and no laches, default, covin, forfeiture or crime of the husband, shall prejudice the right of his wife to her dower or jointure, or preclude her from the recovery thereof, if otherwise entitled thereto.

SEC. XV. If a husband die, leaving a widow, but no children, nor descendants of children, such widow may, if she elect, have in lieu of her dower in the estate of which her husband died seized, whether the same shall have been assigned or not, absolutely and in her own right, as if she were sole, one-half of all real estate which shall remain after the payment of all just debts and claims against the deceased husband: Provided, That in case dower in such estate shall have been already assigned, she shall make such new election, within two months after being notified of the payment of such debts and claims.

SEC. XVI. If a husband, seized of an estate of inheritance in lands, exchange it for other lands, his widow shall not have dower of both, but shall make her election as hereinbefore provided, to be endowed of the lands given, or of those taken in exchange; and if such election be not evinced, by the commencement of proceedings for the recovery and assignment of her dower of the lands given in exchange, within one year after the death of her husband, she shall be deemed to have elected to take her dower of the lands received in exchange.

SEC. XVII. It shall be the duty of the heir at law, or other person, having the next estate of freehold or inheritance in any lands or estates of which the widow is entitled to dower, to lay off and assign such dower as soon as practicable after the death of the husband of such widow.

SEC. XVIII. If such heir or other person shall not, within one month next after the decease of said husband, assign and set over to the widow of the deceased, to her satisfaction, her dower in and to all lands, tenements and hereditaments, whereof by law she is or may be dowable, according to the true intendment of the law, then such widow may sue for and recover the same, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, against such heir or other person having the next immediate estate of freehold or inheritance, or tenant in possession, or other person or persons claiming right or possession in said estate.

SEC. XIX. Every widow claiming dower, may file her petition in chancery, in the circuit court of the county, against the parties aforesaid, stating their names, if known, setting forth the nature of her claim, and particularly specifying the lands, tenements and hereditaments in which she claims dower, and praying that the same may be allowed her; and the clerk shall thereupon issue a summons to the parties to appear at the next term of the said court to answer the complaint, which shall be served by the sheriff as other writs and process. If the parties do not reside in the county, said clerk shall cause an advertisement to be published, as provided in sections eight, forty-one and forty-two of chapter twenty-one of the Revised Statutes, notifying said parties that such petition is filed, and requiring them, or any of them, to appear at the next term of the circuit court, and show cause why such dower should not be assigned; which publication shall be deemed due notice, and the parties aforesaid, or any other person interested therein, may appear and contest the widow's right to dower.

SEC. XX. If there be persons interested in the same, whose names are unknown, it shall be lawful to make such persons parties to such suits or proceedings, by the name and description of persons unknown, or unknown heirs or devisees of any deceased person who may have been interested in the subject matter of the suit previous to his or her death; but in all such cases, an affidavit shall be filed by the party desiring to make any unknown person a party, stating that the names of such persons are unknown, and process shall be issued against all parties by the name and description given as aforesaid; and notices given by publication, as is required in the preceding section, shall be sufficient to authorize the court to hear and determine the suit as though all parties had been sued by their proper names; and all decrees, orders, judgments and proceedings had or made under the provisions of this chapter, respecting such unknown persons as aforesaid, shall be as binding and conclusive upon the persons and parties interested as though they had been sued by their proper names: Provided, That if any person residing out of this State as aforesaid, against whom a decree is or shall be made, his heirs, devisees, executor, administrator or assigns, as the case may require, shall, within one year after notice in writing given him or them of such decree, or within three years after such decree, if no such notice shall have been given as aforesaid, appear in open court and petition to be heard touching the matter of such decree, and shall pay such costs as the court shall deem reasonable in that behalf, the person so petitioning may appear and answer the complainant's bill, and thereupon such proceedings shall be had as if the defendants had appeared in due season, and no decree had been made. The decree shall, after three years from the making thereof, if not set aside in the manner aforesaid, be deemed and adjudged confirmed against such non-resident defendant, and all persons claiming under him by virtue of any act done subsequent to the commencement of such suit; and at the end of the said three years, the court may make such further order in the premises as shall be required and shall be just.

SEC. XXI. Answers to such petitions shall be sworn to; and in all cases where the claim of the widow to dower may be contested, the parties contesting the same shall be required to enter their appearance to the action, and the court shall thereupon proceed to try the cause, or direct an issue for that purpose, as the circumstances of the case may require.

SEC. XXII. Where any of the parties, defendants, are minors, and under age, and without guardians, the court shall appoint guardians ad litem for such minors.

SEC. XXIII. Petition for the recovery and assignment of dower, shall be heard and determined by the court, upon the petition, answer, exhibits and other testimony, without the necessity of formal pleading.

SEC. XXIV. Where the court adjudges that the widow shall recover dower, it shall be so entered of record, together with a description of the land out of which she is to be endowed; and said court shall thereupon appoint three commissioners, not connected with any of the parties, either by consanguinity or affinity, and entirely disinterested, each of whom shall take the following oath, to be administered by the court, or some justice of the peace:

"I do solemnly swear, that I will fairly and impartially allot and set off to A. B., widow of C. B., her dower out of the lands and tenements described in the order of the court for that purpose, if the same can be made consistent with the interest of the estate, according to the best of my judgment: so help me God."

SEC. XXV. The commissioners shall set off and allot to said widow her dower by metes and bounds, according to quality and quantity of all the lands, tenements and hereditaments described in said order of court: Provided, The widow shall have the homestead or dwelling-house of the husband, if she desire it; and make return in writing under their hands and seals to said court; which, if approved by said court, shall vest in her an estate in the lands and tenements so set off and allotted to her, for and during her natural life; or if such estate shall have been set off and allotted to said widow by virtue of section fifteen of this chapter, such estate shall be vested in her absolutely, in fee simple, and of inheritance forever, subject to her absolute use, control and disposition, as though her interest therein had been acquired by her when sole.

SEC. XXVI. When a widow has claim to dower in lands lying in different counties, she may proceed in the circuit court of the county where the lands lie; or if such lands lie in different counties, then in the county in which the major part of such lands lie; but if the major part thereof do not lie in any one county, then in any county in which any of the lands lie; and make recovery in the manner as is herein directed: and in all cases when the report assigning dower shall be approved, the court shall forthwith cause the widow to have possession, by a writ directed to the sheriff for that purpose, and such widow shall also be entitled to reasonable damages, to be awarded her from the time of her demand, and refusal to assign her her reasonable dower, which may be assessed by the court; or a jury, if required, shall be impaneled for that purpose, and execution may issue therefor.

SEC. XXVII. The widow may, in all cases, retain the full possession of the dwelling-house in which her husband most usually dwelt next before his death, together with the out-houses and plantation thereto belonging, free from molestation and rent until her dower be assigned.

SEC. XXVIII. If the commissioners aforesaid shall report that the lands or other estate is not susceptible of a division without great injury thereto, a jury shall be impaneled to inquire of the yearly value of the widow's dower therein, and shall assess the same accordingly; and the court shall thereupon render a judgment, that there be paid to such widow as an allowance in lieu of dower, on a day therein named, the sum so assessed, as the yearly value of her dower, and the like sum on the same day in every year thereafter, during her natural life; and such jury shall, moreover, if the same has not been done, assess the damages which may have accrued, down to the time of rendering the verdict.

SEC. XXIX. Commissioners appointed to assign dower, may make reports to the court during the same term at which they were appointed; and the court may, at such term, make all such orders upon such reports, as may be necessary to a final disposition of the case.

SEC. XXX. No woman that shall be endowed of any lands, tenements and hereditaments, shall wantonly or designedly commit or suffer any waste thereon, on penalty of forfeiting that part of the estate whereupon such waste shall be made, to him or them that have the immediate estate of freehold or inheritance in remainder or reversion, (and in case of negligent or inadvertent waste,) by her done or suffered; the damages that may be assessed for such waste, to be recovered by action of waste.

SEC. XXXI. Heirs, or, if under age, their guardians, or any other persons interested in lands, tenements or hereditaments, may also petition the court to have the widow's dower assigned, which shall be proceeded in in the same manner as is prescribed in other cases.

SEC. XXXII. Commissioners appointed to assign dower shall be allowed each one dollar per day, to be taxed as other costs.

SEC. XXXIII. At the death of any widow who hath dower in lands or estate of her deceased husband, such lands or estate shall descend in accordance with the will of such husband; or if the husband shall have died intestate, then to descend in accordance with the law providing for the distribution of intestate's estates.

SEC. XXXIV. No widow who shall, as executrix or administratrix, sell and convey by order of court, for the payment of debts, real estate of her husband, in which she shall be by law entitled to dower, shall be deemed to relinquish her right of dower therein, by reason of such conveyance, unless her relinquishment shall be specified in such deed or conveyance.

An act to amend "An act for the speedy assignment of dower and partition of real estate," approved Feb. 6, 1827, and in force June 1, 1827; approved Jan. 21, 1845. Laws, 1845, p. 33.

An act to amend an act relative to wills and testaments, executors and administrators, and the settlement of estates; approved Feb. 21, 1845. Laws, 1845, p. 38.

DECISIONS. A widow can only be endowed of estates of inheritance, and a pre-emption right is not such an estate. The statute making equitable estates subject to dower, refers to equitable estates of inheritance only. In a petition for dower, the words "owner and proprietor" are insufficient, as they do not technically, nor by common usage, describe an estate in fee simple or fee tail. Davenport et al. v. Farrar, 1 S. 315.

A mortgage was executed by G. and his wife, and foreclosed by scire facias: Held, that the wife should be made a defendant in order to bar her dower. Gilbert et al. v. Maggard, 1 S. 471; Ayres v. McConnell et al., 2 S. 307.

The legislature has no power to inquire or determine whether a widow is entitled to dower in a tract of land. All action on such subject is judicial action, not legislative. Edwards v. Pope et al., 3 S. 465.

At the common law, dower is the third part of all the lands, for life, whereof the husband, during coverture, has been seized of such estate as the children by the wife might possibly have inherited. Marriage, seizure, and the death of the husband, are all necessary to the consummation of dower. Until the death of the husband, dower is only an interest attaching to the land by virtue of marriage and seizure. Dower is defeated only by the assent or misconduct of the wife, or where the marriage was void ab initio, and not by sale on judgment and execution against the husband. The wife may accept other provisions by the will of her husband, in lieu of dower. Sisk v. Smith et al., 1 G. 503.

A widow is not a proper party to a proceeding for a mechanic's lien, when her only interest is dower in the premises, nor can her dower be affected by such lien. She can only be divested of dower, when she has released it in form prescribed by law, and except when a lien is created for the purchase money of the estate at the time the husband became seized. Shaeffer et al. v. Weed et al., 3 G. 511.

Dower is a right resting in action only, and not assignable. A widow may release her dower to the owner in fee, but cannot invest another with it, nor can she release her dower to the owner in fee till after it has been assigned to her. Dower cannot be sold under execution before it is assigned. A wife joining with her husband in a deed, is a party only for the purpose of releasing her dower, and is not estopped thereby from setting up a subsequent title. Dower cannot be disposed of by a wife so as to separate it from the principal estate. A deed, inoperative as to the husband, will not bar a right of dower. A widow, asking for equitable relief as to her right of dower, cannot resist an equitable defense against a purchaser for a valuable consideration, ignorant of her claim. Blain v. Harrison, 11 Ill. 384.

Though a wife join her husband in conveying lands, if such conveyance be set aside at the instance of his creditors, as fraudulent, and the land conveyed under a decree for the benefit of such creditors, the wife will be entitled to dower in the lands. Dower becomes liable to be sold or transferred only after it is assigned. A widow takes her dower according to the value of the land at the time of alienation; she is not dowable of improvements put upon the land, but is entitled to its increased value arising from other causes than the labor and expenditure of the alienor. Summers v. Babb, 13 Ill. 483.

It is error to debar a woman of dower in premises included in a mortgage which she did not sign. Gold v. Ryan, 14 Ill. 53.

When a widow dies, pending her suit for dower, without having established her right to dower in lands of which her husband was seized during coverture, but which were aliened before his death, her representative cannot have damages assessed. Turney v. Smith et al., 14 Ill. 242.

The power of a court of chancery to sanction a compromise on behalf of infant suitors, so as to satisfy a widow's claim of dower, for cash, should be exercised with great care, and only when it is manifestly for the interests of the infants to do so. King v. King, 15 Ill. 187.

(1.) SECTION I. The action of ejectment shall be retained, and may be brought in the cases and the manner heretofore accustomed, subject to the provision hereinafter contained.

(2.) SEC. II. It may also be brought—

1st. In the same cases in which a writ of right may now be brought by law to recover lands, tenements or hereditaments, and by any person claiming an estate therein in fee or for life, either as heir, devisee or purchaser.

2nd. By any widow entitled to dower, or by a woman so entitled and her husband, after the expiration of six months from the time her right accrued, to recover her dower of any lands, tenements or hereditaments.

(3.) SEC. III. No person shall recover in ejectment, unless he has, at the time of commencing the action, a valid subsisting interest in the premises claimed, and a right to recover the same, or to recover the possession thereof, or of some share, interest or portion thereof, to be proved and established at the trial.

(4.) SEC. IV. If the premises for which the action is brought, are actually occupied by any person, such actual occupant shall be named defendant in the declaration; if they are not so occupied, the action shall be brought against some person exercising acts of ownership on the premises claimed, or claiming title thereto, or some interest therein, at the commencement of the suit.

(5.) SEC. V. The action shall be commenced by the service of a declaration, in which the names of the real claimants shall be inserted as plaintiffs; and all the provisions of law concerning lessors of a plaintiff, shall apply to such plaintiffs.

(6.) SEC. VI. The use of fictitious names of plaintiffs or defendants, and of the names of any other than the real claimants and the real defendants, and the statements of any lease or demise to the plaintiff, and of an ejectment by a casual or nominal ejector, are hereby abolished.

(7.) SEC. VII. It shall be sufficient for the plaintiff to aver in his declaration that (on some day therein to be specified, and which shall be after his title accrued,) he was possessed of the premises in question, (describing them as hereinafter provided,) and being so possessed thereof, that the defendant afterwards, (on some day to be stated,) entered into such premises, and that he unlawfully withholds from the plaintiff the possession thereof, to his damage any nominal sum the plaintiff shall think proper to state; and the premises so claimed shall be described in such declaration with convenient certainty, so that, from such description, possession of the premises claimed, may be delivered. If such plaintiff claims any undivided share or interest in any premises, he shall state the same particularly in such declaration.

(8.) SEC. VIII. If the action be brought for the recovery of dower, the declaration shall state that the plaintiff was possessed of the one undivided third part of the premises, as her reasonable dower, as widow of her husband, naming him. In every other case the plaintiff shall state whether he claims in fee, or whether he claims for his own life, or for the life of another, or for a term of years, specifying such life or the duration of such term.

(9.) SEC. IX. In any case other than where the action shall be brought for the recovery of a dower, the declaration may contain several counts, and several parties may be named as plaintiffs jointly in one count, and separately in others.

(10.) SEC. X. To such declaration there shall be subjoined a notice, in writing, by the plaintiff or his attorney, addressed to the defendant, and notifying him—

1st. That the said declaration will be filed on some day in the then next term of the court in which the action is brought, specifying such day; or, if the same be served during the term of any court, that it will be filed on some day in such term, specifying the same;

2nd. That, upon filing the same, a rule will be entered, requiring such defendant to appear and plead to such declaration, within twenty days after the entry of such rule; and,

3rd. That if he neglect so to appear and plead, a judgment by default will be entered against him, and the plaintiff will recover possession of the premises.

(11.) SEC. XI. If the premises are actually occupied, the declaration shall be served by delivering a copy thereof, with the notice above prescribed, to the defendant named therein, who shall be in the occupancy thereof, or by leaving the same with some white person of the family, of the age of ten years or upwards, at the dwelling-house of such defendant, if he be absent.

(12.) SEC. XII. If the premises claimed are not actually occupied, the declaration and notice shall be served on the defendant named therein, or, if he cannot be found, by leaving the same with some white person, of the age of ten years or upwards, at the residence of the defendant; but where the declaration shall have been served in any other manner than upon the defendant personally, no rule to plead shall be entered without the special order of the court.

(13.) SEC. XIII. Instead of the rule to appear and enter into the consent rule as heretofore accustomed, the plaintiff, on the day specified for that purpose in the notice aforesaid, or on some day thereafter, upon filing the declaration with an affidavit of the service of a copy thereof, and of the notice hereinbefore required, shall be entitled to enter a rule requiring the defendant to appear and plead, within twenty days after the entering of such rule; and in case the defendant shall neglect so to appear and plead within such time, his default shall be entered.

(14.) SEC. XIV. A defendant in ejectment may, at any time before pleading, apply to the court, or to any judge thereof in vacation, to compel the attorney for the plaintiff to produce to such court or officer, his authority for commencing the action in the name of any plaintiff therein. Such application shall be accompanied by an affidavit of the defendant, that he has not been served with proof, in any way, of the authority of the attorney to use the name of the plaintiff stated in the declaration.

(15.) SEC. XV. Upon such application, the court or officer shall grant an order requiring the production of such authority, and shall stay all proceedings in the action until the same shall be produced. Any written request of such plaintiff or his agent to commence such action, or any written recognition of the authority of the attorney to commence the same, duly proved by the affidavit of such attorney, or other competent witness, shall be sufficient presumptive evidence of such authority.

(16.) SEC. XVI. If it shall appear that, previous to such application by any defendant, he was served with a copy of the affidavit of the plaintiff's attorney, showing his authority to bring such action, such application shall be dismissed; and such defendant shall be liable for the costs of such application, the payment of which may be compelled by attachment as in other cases, which may be issued upon proof of disobedience to the order of the court or officer directing the payment of such costs.

(17.) SEC. XVII. The defendant may demur to the declaration as in personal actions, or he shall plead the general issue only, which shall be that the defendant is not guilty of unlawfully withholding the premises claimed by the plaintiff, as alleged in the declaration, and the filing of such plea or demurrer shall be deemed an appearance in the cause; and upon such plea, the defendant may give the same matter in evidence, and the same proceedings shall be had, as upon the plea of not guilty in the present action of ejectment, except as herein otherwise provided. The defendant may likewise give in evidence any matter, which, if pleaded in the present writ of right or action of dower, would bar the action of the plaintiff.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. The consent rule heretofore used, is hereby abolished.

(19.) SEC. XIX. It shall not be necessary for the plaintiff to prove an actual entry under title, nor the actual receipt of any of the profits of the premises demanded; but it shall be sufficient for him to show a right to the possession of such premises at the time of the commencement of the suit, as heir, devisee, purchaser or otherwise.

(20.) SEC. XX. It shall not be necessary on the trial for the defendant to confess, nor for the plaintiff to prove, lease, entry and ouster, or either of them, except as provided in the next section; but this section shall not be construed to impair, nor in any way to affect, any of the rules of evidence now in force in regard to the maintenance and defense of the action.

(21.) SEC. XXI. If the action be brought by one or more tenants in common, or joint tenants against their co-tenants, the plaintiff, in addition to all other evidence which he may be bound to give, shall be required to prove, on the trial of the cause, that the defendant actually ousted such plaintiff, or did some other act amounting to a total denial of his right as such co-tenant.

(22.) SEC. XXII. If the action be brought against several defendants, and a joint possession of all be proved, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a verdict against all, whether they shall have pleaded separately or jointly.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. When the action is against several defendants, if it appear on the trial that any of them occupy distinct parcels in severalty or jointly, the plaintiff shall elect, at the trial, against which he will proceed; which election shall be made before the testimony in the cause shall be deemed to be closed; and a verdict shall thereupon be rendered for the defendants not so proceeded against.

(24.) SEC. XXIV. In the following cases the verdict shall be rendered as follows:

1st. If it be shown on the trial, that all the plaintiffs have a right to recover the possession of the premises, the verdict in that respect shall be for the plaintiffs generally.

2nd. If it appear that one or more of the plaintiffs have a right to the possession of the premises, and that one or more have not such right, the verdict shall specify for which plaintiff the jury find, and as to which plaintiff they find for the defendant.

3rd. If the verdict be for any plaintiff, and there be several defendants, the verdict shall be rendered against such of them as were in possession of the premises, or as claimed title thereto at the commencement of the action.

4th. If the verdict be for all the premises claimed, as specified in the declaration, it shall, in that respect, be for such premises generally.

5th. If the verdict be for a part of the premises described in such declaration, the verdict shall particularly specify such part, as the same shall have been proved, with the same certainty hereinbefore required, in the description of the premises claimed.

6th. If the verdict be for an undivided share or interest in the premises claimed, it shall specify such share or interest; and if for an undivided share in a part of the premises claimed, it shall specify such share, and shall describe such part of the premises as hereinbefore required.

7th. The verdict shall also specify the estate which shall have been established on the trial, by the plaintiff in whose favor it shall be rendered, whether such estate be in fee, for his own life, or for the life of another, stating such lives; or whether it be for a term of years, and specifying the duration of such term.

(25.) SEC. XXV. If the right or title of a plaintiff in ejectment expire after the commencement of the suit, but before trial, the verdict shall be returned according to the fact, and judgment shall be entered that he recover his damages by reason of the withholding of the premises by the defendant, to be assessed; and that as to the premises claimed, the defendant go thereof without day.

(26.) SEC. XXVI. The action of ejectment shall not be abated by the death of any plaintiff, or of one of several defendants, after issue and before verdict and judgment, but the same proceedings may be had as in other actions, to substitute the names of those who may succeed to the title of the plaintiff so dying; in which case the issue shall be tried as between the original parties; and in case of the death of a defendant, the cause shall proceed against the other defendants.

(27.) SEC. XXVII. In cases where no other provision is made, the judgment in the action, if the plaintiff prevail, shall be, that the plaintiff recover the possession of the premises according to the verdict of the jury, if there was such verdict; or, if the judgment be by default, according to the description thereof in the declaration, with costs to be taxed.

(28.) SEC. XXVIII. The plaintiff recovering judgment shall be entitled to a writ of possession, which shall be substantially in the following form:

“THE PEOPLE, &c., TO THE SHERIFF, &c.:

Whereas, A. B. has lately, in the circuit court held in and for the county of ———, by the judgment of the said court, recovered against C. D., one messuage, &c., (describing the premises recovered with the like certainty as above provided), which said premises have been and are still unjustly withheld from the said A. B. by the said C. D., whereof he is convicted, as appears to us of record; and forasmuch as it is adjudged in the said court that the said A. B. have execution upon his said judgment against the said C. D., according to the force, form and effect of his said recovery: Therefore, we command you, that, without delay, you deliver to the said A. B. possession of the premises so recovered, with the appurtenances; and that you certify to, &c., at, &c., on, &c., in what manner you shall have executed this writ. (If there be costs to be collected, the proper clause may be here inserted, or a separate execution may be issued therefor.)

(29.) SEC. XXIX. Every judgment in the action of ejectment, rendered upon a verdict, shall be conclusive as to the title established, in such action, upon the party against whom the same is rendered, and against all persons claiming from, through or under such party, by title accruing after the commencement of such action, subject to the exceptions hereinafter named.

(30.) SEC. XXX. The court in which such judgment shall be rendered, at any time within one year thereafter, upon the application of the party against whom the same was rendered, his heirs or assigns, and, upon the payment of all costs and damages recovered thereby, shall vacate such judgment, and grant a new trial in such cause; and the court, upon subsequent application made within one year after the rendering of the second judgment in said cause, if satisfied that justice will thereby be promoted, and the rights of the parties more satisfactorily ascertained and established, may vacate the judgment, and grant another new trial; but no more than two new trials shall be granted under this section.

(31.) SEC. XXXI. Every judgment in ejectment, rendered by default, shall, from and after two years from the time of entering the same, be conclusive upon the defendant, and upon all persons claiming from or through him by title accruing after the commencement of the action; but within two years after the entering of such judgment, on the application of the defendant, his heirs or assigns, and upon the payment of all costs and damages recovered thereby, the court may vacate such judgment and grant a new trial, if such court shall be satisfied that justice will be promoted, and the rights of the parties more satisfactorily ascertained and established.

(32.) SEC. XXXII. But if the defendant in such declaration, at the time of the entering of the judgment by default, be either, 1st, within the age of twenty-one years; or, 2nd, insane; or, 3rd, imprisoned on any criminal charge, or in execution upon some conviction of a criminal offense for any term less than for life; or, 4th, a married woman, the time during which disability shall continue, shall not be deemed any portion of the said two years; but any such person may bring an action for the recovery of such premises after that time, and within two years after such disability shall be removed, but not after that period.

(33.) SEC. XXXIII. If the person entitled to commence such action shall die during the continuance of any disability specified in the preceding section, and no determination or judgment be had of or upon the title, right or action so to him accrued, his heirs may commence such action after the time above limited for that purpose, and within two years after his death.

(34.) SEC. XXXIV. If the plaintiff shall have taken possession of the premises by virtue of any recovery in ejectment, such possession shall not in any way be affected by the vacating of any judgment as herein provided; and if the defendant recover in any new trial hereby authorized, he shall be entitled to a writ of possession, in the same manner as if he were plaintiff.

(35.) SEC. XXXV. Upon any new trial granted as herein provided, the defendant may show any matters, in bar of a recovery, which he might show to entitle him to the possession of the premises if he were plaintiff in the action.

(36.) SEC. XXXVI. The plaintiff recovering judgment in ejectment in any of the cases in which such action may be maintained, shall also be entitled to recover damages against the defendant for the rents and profits of the premises recovered.

(37.) SEC. XXXVII. Instead of the action of trespass for mesne profits heretofore used, the plaintiff seeking to recover such damages, shall, within one year after the entering of the judgment, make and file a suggestion of such claim, which shall be entered, with the proceedings thereon, upon the record of such judgment, or be attached thereto, as a continuation of the same.

(38.) SEC. XXXVIII. Such suggestion shall be substantially in the same form as is now in use for a declaration in an action of assumpsit for the use and occupation, as near as may be; and it shall be served on the defendant in the same manner hereinbefore prescribed respecting the service of a declaration in ejectment; and the same rules of pleading thereto shall be observed as upon declarations in personal actions.

(39.) SEC. XXXIX. The defendant may plead the general issue of non-assumpsit, and, under such plea, may give notice of, or may plead specially, any matter in bar of such claim, except such as were or might have been controverted in such action of ejectment; but he may plead or give notice of a recovery by such defendant, or any other person, of the same premises, or of part thereof, subsequent to the verdict in such action of ejectment, in bar or in mitigation of the damages claimed by the plaintiff.

(40.) SEC. XL. If any issue of fact be joined on such suggestion, it shall be tried as in other cases; and if such issue be found for the plaintiff, the same jury shall assess his damages to the amount of the mesne profits received by the defendant since he entered into possession of the premises, subject to the restrictions hereinafter contained.

(41.) SEC. XLI. On the trial of such issue, the plaintiff shall be required to establish, and the defendant may controvert, the time when such defendant entered into the possession of the premises, the time during which he enjoyed the mesne profits thereof, and the value of such profits, and the record of the recovery in the action of ejectment shall not be evidence of such time. On such trial, the defendant shall have the same right to set off any improvements made on the premises, to the amount of plaintiff's claim, as is now or shall hereafter be allowed by law; and in estimating the plaintiff's damages, the value of the use by the defendant of any improvements made by him shall not be allowed to the plaintiff.

(42.) SEC. XLII. If no issue of fact be joined on such suggestion, or if judgment thereon be rendered against the defendant by default, on demurrer or otherwise, a writ of inquiry to assess the value of such mesne profits shall be issued, of the execution of which, the same notice shall be given to the defendant or his attorney as in other cases.

(43.) SEC. XLIII. Upon the execution of such writ, the plaintiff shall be required to establish the same matters hereinbefore required in the case of an issue being joined, and the defendant may, in like manner, controvert the same, and make any set-off to which he shall be entitled; and the jury shall assess the damages in the same manner. The same proceedings shall be had on such writ, and it shall be returned as in other cases, with the inquisition taken thereon. Upon such inquisition, or upon the verdict of the jury in the case of the issue being joined, the court shall render judgment, as in actions of assumpsit for use and occupation, which shall have the like effect in all respects.

(44.) SEC. XLIV. If the plaintiff in ejectment shall have died after issue joined or judgment therein, his personal representatives may enter a suggestion of such death, of the granting letters testamentary or of administration to them, and may suggest their claim to the mesne profits of the premises recovered, in the same manner and with like effect as the deceased, and the same proceedings, in all respects, shall be had thereon.

(45.) SEC. XLV. If the action be brought to recover the dower of any widow, which shall not have been admeasured to her before the commencement of such action, instead of a writ of possession being issued, such plaintiff shall proceed to have her dower assigned to her in manner following:

1st. Upon the rendition of judgment, the court, upon the motion of the plaintiff, shall appoint three respectable and disinterested freeholders, commissioners for the purpose of setting off and allotting to the plaintiff her dower out of the lands described in the record; and the commissioners so appointed shall proceed in like manner, possess the like powers, and be subject to the like obligations and control, as commissioners appointed pursuant to law to make assignment of dower and partition of real estate.

2nd. Upon the approval of the report of the commissioners by the court, a writ of possession shall be issued to the sheriff of the proper county, describing the premises assigned for the dower, and commanding the sheriff to put the plaintiff in possession thereof.

(46.) SEC. XLVI. The commissioners to be appointed under this chapter shall be allowed, as compensation for their services, the sum of two dollars per day each, to be taxed as other costs.

(47.) SEC. XLVII. Every person who may hereafter be evicted from any land for which he can show a plain, clear and connected title in law or equity, deduced from the record of some public office, without actual notice of an adverse title, in like manner derived from record, shall be exempt and free from all and every species of action, writ or prosecution, for or on account of any rents or profits, or damages, which shall have been done, accrued or incurred at any time prior to receipt of actual notice of the adverse claim, by which the eviction may be effected, provided such person obtained peaceable possession of the land.

(48.) SEC. XLVIII. The court, who shall pronounce and give judgment of eviction, either in law or equity, shall at the time nominate seven fit persons, any five of whom shall have power, and it shall be their duty to go on the premises, and after viewing the same, on oath or affirmation, to assess the value of all such lasting and valuable improvements which shall have been made thereon, prior to the receipt of such notice as aforesaid; and also to assess all damages the land may have sustained by the commission of any kind of waste, or by deduction of soil by cultivation or otherwise, during the occupancy of the person evicted, and subtract the same from the estimated value of the said improvements, which assessment, signed and sealed by the persons making the same, shall be by them lodged with the clerk of the court wherein they were nominated, before the next ensuing term, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient; and at the next court after such assessment, it shall be entered up as a judgment in favor of the person evicted, and against the successful claimant of the land, by the clerk; upon which judgment, execution shall immediately be issued by the clerk, if directed by the person evicted, unless the successful claimant shall give bond and security, to be judged of by the court, to the person evicted, and to be taken at the time of entering up such judgment, conditioned to pay the same within twelve months from the date thereof, with five per cent. interest thereon: Provided, The balance shall ultimately be in favor of such occupying claimant, according to the directions and provisions of this chapter; which bond shall have the force of a judgment, and at the expiration of twelve months aforesaid, an execution shall be issued upon the same by the clerk of the court in which it was taken, at the request of the party entitled thereto, on oath being made that the same is yet due. Should the balance be in favor of the successful claimant, judgment in like manner shall be entered up in his favor, against the other party, for the amount of the same, upon which execution may be issued as aforesaid, unless bond and security be given to such claimant, which may be acted upon in the manner before directed, and to declare what shall be the law between adverse claimants, under distinct titles of the kinds aforesaid after notice.

(49.) SEC. XLIX. The persons nominated by the court as aforesaid, when making an assessment, shall carefully distinguish between such improvements as were made on the land prior to notice, and those which were made after notice; and when making an assessment, they shall also take into consideration all such necessary and lasting improvements as shall have been made on the lands after the receipt of such notice as aforesaid, and shall ascertain the amount of the value thereof; and they shall also take into consideration and ascertain the amount of the rent and profits arising from the whole of the improvements on the land from the time that notice of such adverse claim was received by such occupying claimant, and then after taking the amount of one from the other, the balance shall be added or subtracted from the amount of the value of the improvements which shall have been made before the receipt of the notice aforesaid, as the nature of the case shall require.

(50.) SEC. L. The commissioners shall also estimate the value of the lands in dispute, exclusive of any improvements that shall have been made thereon, and make report of the amount of such valuation to the court, and if the value of the improvements shall exceed such estimated value of the land in dispute, in that case it shall and may be lawful for the proprietor of the better title to transfer or convey, as the nature of the case may require, his better title to the occupying claimant, and thereupon judgment shall be entered up in his favor, against the occupying claimant, for such estimated value, upon which an execution may issue, unless the occupying claimant shall give bond and security, to be approved by the court, to pay the amount of such judgment within one year after the person transferring or conveying as aforesaid, with interest from the date, which bond shall have the force of a judgment, and if not paid at the expiration of the year, an execution may issue, in the manner before directed by this chapter: Provided, That the proprietor of the better title shall, in every such case, at the time of entering up judgment in his favor, give bond and security, to be approved by the court, to the occupying claimant, to refund the amount of such judgment, in case the land so transferred or conveyed, shall ever thereafter be taken from him by any other prior or better claim.

(51.) SEC. LI. The persons nominated by the court, by virtue of this chapter, shall be called commissioners, and shall respectively take an oath or affirmation to do equal right to the parties in controversy; and shall also have power and authority to call witnesses, and administer the necessary oaths, and to examine them for the ascertainment of any fact material in the inquiry and assessment by this chapter directed.

(52.) SEC. LII. The said commissioners, in making every estimate of value by virtue of this chapter, shall state separately the result of each, and the court shall have power to make such allowance to the said commissioners in any case, as shall seem just, which allowance shall be taxed and collected as costs: Provided, That this chapter shall not be extended to affect or impair the obligation of contracts, or to authorize the occupying claimant to be twice paid for his improvements; and in all cases where the occupying claimant is paid for his improvements by any other person than the proprietor of the better title, such person shall have the same redress as is allowed to the occupying claimant.

(53.) SEC. LIII. The court shall have the same power to proceed by appointing commissioners to assess the value of improvements, and the damages by the commission of any kind of waste, by reduction of soil by cultivation or otherwise, during the occupancy of the person evicted in case of arbitration, or by consent of the parties, on motion without suit.

(54.) SEC. LIV. Notice of any adverse claim or title to the land within the meaning of this chapter, shall have been given by bringing a suit either in law or equity, for the same, by the one or other of the parties, and may hereafter be given by bringing a suit as aforesaid, or by delivering an attested copy of the entry, survey or patent, from which he derives his title or claim, or leaving any such copy with the party, his wife, or other free person above the age of sixteen years, on the plantation: Provided, however, That notice given by the delivery of an attested copy as aforesaid, shall be void, unless suit is brought within one year thereafter: Provided, That in no case shall the proprietor of the better title be obliged to pay to the occupying claimant for improvements made after notice, more than what is equal to the rents and profits aforesaid.

(55.) SEC. LV. Notice to any occupying claimant shall bind all those claiming from, by or through such occupying claimant, to the extent of such claim.

(56.) SEC. LVI. Nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to prevent any court from issuing a precept to stay waste, and ruling the party to give bond and security in such manner as such court may think right.

(57.) SEC. LVII. In all cases in which any person has heretofore entered upon and occupied, or shall hereafter enter upon and occupy, any lands, tenements or hereditaments within this State, by virtue of any lease or permit from the United States or this State, such person, his, her or their heirs or assigns, may have and maintain an action of ejectment against any person who has or may enter upon such lands, tenements or hereditaments, without the consent of such lessee, his, her or their heirs or assigns; and proof of the right of possession shall be sufficient to authorize a recovery.

An Act to amend Chapter XXXVI, of the Revised Statutes of 1845, entitled "Ejectment."

(58.) SEC. I. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That it shall not be necessary in trials of actions of ejectment, when it shall appear by the return that the defendant or defendants were in possession of the premises at the time when suit was brought, for the plaintiff to prove that said defendant or defendants were in possession at the time of bringing such suit, unless the defendant or defendants shall, by special plea, deny that he, she or they were in possession; and that the plea of not guilty shall not put in issue the possession of said premises.

(59.) SEC. II. Be it further enacted, That so much of chapter thirty-six of the Revised Statutes of 1845, entitled "EJECTMENT," as is repugnant to the provisions of this act, be and the same is hereby repealed.

(60.) SEC. III. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

PRIOR LAWS. An act to simplify the proceedings in the action of ejectment. Laws, 1836, p. 238.

An act to define the extent of possession in cases of settlement on the public lands; in force Feb. 27, 1837. Laws, 1837, p. 154. See "LANDS," Chapter LXI, Rev. Stat. p. 336.

DECISIONS. Under a notice that a declaration will be filed on a certain day in term time, the plaintiff in ejectment may file his declaration, and obtain a rule to plead at any time during the term; and, after the expiration of twenty days from the entry of the rule, the plaintiff is entitled to his judgment, unless a plea is filed. Kelly v. Luman, 3 S. 28.

The defendant in such case is not, as a matter of right, entitled to plead at a subsequent term, though no default has been entered. Idem.

Under the ejectment laws of Illinois, the party against whom a judgment is rendered is entitled to one new trial as a matter of right. Whether a second new trial shall be allowed, is in the discretion of the court. Vance v. Schuyler, 1 G. 160; Riggs v. Savage, 4 G. 129.

In actions of ejectment the landlord may appear and defend the suit in the name of his tenant or in his own name. Williams v. Brunton, 3 G. 600.

If a defendant who is a tenant suffers a default, it will be set aside on application of the landlord, upon cause shown by affidavit. Idem.

Upon questions of practice, in ejectment cases, where the statute is silent, the common law prevails. Idem.

If a plaintiff declines to join issue upon a plea to an action of ejectment, it amounts to a discontinuance, and the court should dismiss the case. Idem.

A plaintiff in ejectment under the statutes of this State cannot recover, unless he proves that he had title at the time stated in his declaration. Wood v. Morton, 11 Ill. 547.

A landlord may, with the consent of the parties, be made a defendant in an action of ejectment. Thompson v. Schuyler, 2 G. 271.

The plaintiff in ejectment can only recover according to his declaration. If he declares for an estate in fee, he cannot recover a less estate; and vice versa. If he declares for a whole tract, he may recover an entirety of any portion of the tract, but not an undivided part or interest. Balance v. Rankin, 12 Ill. 420; Rowlings v. Bailey et al., 15 Ill. 178; Rupert v. Mark, 15 Ill. 540.

The verdict also must specify the estate recovered. Rowlings v. Bailey et al., 15 Ill. 178.

A landlord cannot be substituted in the place of his tenant in an action of ejectment, without the plaintiff's consent. Merritt et al. v. Thompson, 13 Ill. 716.

Where a party to an action of ejectment takes his case to the supreme court, and does not within the year take his new trial under the statute in the circuit court, if the judgment of the circuit court is affirmed, he has no further remedy. Gibson v. Manly et al., 15 Ill. 140.

The circuit court has power to vacate the judgment within the year, although the suit may be pending in the supreme court by appeal or writ of error. Idem.

The general issue only can be pleaded in ejectment. Warren v. President and Trustees of Jacksonville, 15 Ill. 236.

(1.) SECTION I. There shall be elected by general ticket, on the first Monday of November preceding the expiration of the term of each president of the United States, as many electors of president and vice president of the United States, as this State may be entitled to elect, which election shall be conducted and returns thereof made as hereinafter provided: Provided, That should Congress have fixed a different day, or shall hereafter fix a different day, for such election, then the election for electors shall be held on such day fixed, or to be fixed, by act of Congress.

(2.) SEC. II. The clerks of the several county commissioners' courts shall, within eight days next after holding an election for electors, as is provided for in this chapter, make three copies of the abstract of votes for electors, and transmit by mail one of said copies to the governor or person administering the government, another to the office of the secretary of State, and retain the third in his office, to be sent for by the governor, in case both the others should be mislaid. Within twenty days after the holding of such election, and sooner, if all the returns are received by either the governor or person administering the government, or by the secretary of State, the secretary of State, auditor of public accounts and treasurer, or any two of them, shall, in the presence of the governor or person administering the government, proceed to open and canvass said election returns, and to declare the persons having the highest number of votes elected; but should any two or more persons be returned with an equal and the highest vote, the said secretary of State shall cause a notice of the same to be published in the paper printed by the public printer, which notice shall name some day and place, not less than five days from the time of the publication of such notice, upon which the said secretary, auditor and treasurer will decide by lot which of said persons so equal and highest are elected; and upon the day and at the place so appointed in said notice, the said secretary, auditor and treasurer, or any two of them, shall, in the presence of the governor or person administering the government, decide by lot which of the persons so equal and highest shall be elected.

(3.) SEC. III. The governor, or person administering the government, shall cause the result of the said election to be published in the paper printed by the public printer, and shall transmit by mail to the persons elected, certificates of their election.

(4.) SEC. IV. The electors, chosen as aforesaid, shall meet at the seat of government of this State, at the time appointed by the laws of the United States, and give their votes in the manner herein provided, and perform such duties as are or may be required by law. Each elector shall receive, for every twenty miles' necessary travel in going to the seat of government to give his vote, and in returning to his residence, to be computed by the most usual route, the sum of three dollars, to be paid on the warrant of the auditor, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

(5.) SEC. V. In case any person, declared duly elected an elector of president and vice president of the United States, shall fail to attend at the state-house, at the seat of government of this State, at or before the hour of twelve o'clock at noon, of the day on which his vote is required to be given, it shall be the duty of the elector or electors of president and vice president, attending at that time and place, to appoint a person or persons to fill such vacancy: Provided, That should the person or persons chosen by the people as aforesaid, arrive at the place aforesaid, before the votes for president and vice president are actually given, the person or persons appointed to fill such vacancy shall not act as elector of president and vice president.

(6.) SEC. VI. All general elections for the election of governor, lieutenant governor, representatives to Congress, senators and representatives of the General Assembly, and county officers, shall be held on the first Monday of August, in each year in which the said officers are hereinafter directed to be chosen, which elections shall be conducted as hereinafter prescribed.

(7.) SEC. VII. The county commissioners' courts of the several counties in this State, are hereby authorized to divide their respective counties into as many election precincts, for all general and special elections, as they may think expedient for the convenience of the voters of said county, and to appoint as many sets of judges of elections, to receive votes at the county seats, as they may think necessary; and shall designate the house or place in each precinct, and in the precinct including the county seat, the house or houses, place or places, at which elections are to be holden; and the precincts and places of holding elections, so established, shall so remain until changed by the county commissioners' court; and all general and special elections shall be held at the places so designated, until changed as aforesaid: Provided, always, That it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court, at any time, to change any place of holding elections, upon a petition of a majority of voters residing within the precinct.

(8.) SEC. VIII. The said county commissioners' courts shall, respectively, at the last stated term preceding any election, appoint three capable and discreet persons, possessing the qualifications of electors, to act as judges of the election in each election precinct; and the clerk of the said court shall make out and deliver to the sheriff of the county, immediately after the appointment of said judges, a notice thereof in writing, directed to the judges so appointed; and it shall be the duty of the said sheriff, within twenty days after the receipt of said notice, to serve said notice upon each of the said judges of election.

(9.) SEC. IX. The said judges of the election shall choose two persons, having similar qualifications with themselves, to act as clerks of the election. The said judges of the election shall be and continue judges of all elections of civil officers to be held within their precinct, until other judges shall be appointed as hereinbefore directed; and the said clerks of election may continue to act as such during the pleasure of the judges of the election. And the county commissioners' courts shall, from time to time, fill all vacancies which may take place in the office of judge of the election, in any election precinct within their respective counties.

(10.) SEC. X. The clerks of the several county commissioners' courts shall, at least thirty days previous to any general election, and at least twenty days previous to any special election, make out and deliver to the sheriff of his county, three written notices thereof for each precinct, said notices to be, as nearly as circumstances will admit, as follows, to wit:

"NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that on Monday, the — day of — next, at the house of —, in — precinct, in the county of —, an election will be held for Governor, one Lieutenant Governor, one representative to the Congress of the United States, one senator, three representatives in the General Assembly of this State, one sheriff, one coroner, three county commissioners, &c., (as the case may require,) which election will be opened at eight o'clock in the morning, and will continue open until six o'clock in the afternoon of the same day.
Dated at — this — day of —, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and —.
A. B.,

And the said sheriff to whom such notices shall be delivered as aforesaid, shall post up in three of the most public places in each precinct, the three notices referring to such precinct, at least fifteen days before the time of holding any general election, and at least eight days before the time of holding any special election.

(11.) SEC. XI. If any person appointed to act as a judge of the election as aforesaid, shall neglect or refuse to be sworn or affirmed to act in such capacity, the place of such person shall be filled by any justice of the peace residing within the precinct, to be nominated by the other judge or judges of the election; and if there be no other justice present to act as judge, the other judge or judges of the election shall nominate one or more capable and discreet elector or electors, residing within the precinct, to fill such vacancy or vacancies; and if there be no judge of the election present to fill such vacancy or vacancies by nomination, then such vacancy or vacancies shall be filled by the votes of such qualified electors, residing within the precinct, as may then be present at the place of election; and the justice or justices, person or persons, so elected or nominated to fill such vacancy or vacancies, shall be and are hereby vested with the same power as if appointed by the county commissioners' court.

(12.) SEC. XII. Previous to any votes being taken, the judges and clerks of the election shall severally take an oath or affirmation, in the following form, to wit:

"I, A. B., do solemnly swear, (or affirm, as the case may be,) that I will perform the duties of judge, (or clerk, as the case may be,) according to law and the best of my ability; that I will studiously endeavor to prevent fraud, deceit and abuse, in conducting the same."

(13.) SEC. XIII. In case there shall be no judge or justice of the peace present at the opening of the election, or in case such judge or justice shall be appointed a judge or clerk of the election, it shall be lawful for the judges of the election, and they are hereby empowered to administer the oaths or affirmations to each other and to the clerks of the election; and the person administering such oaths or affirmations, shall cause an entry thereof to be made and subscribed by him, and prefixed to the poll books.

(14.) SEC. XIV. At all elections to be held under this chapter, the polls shall be opened at the hour of eight in the morning, and continue open until six o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, at which time the polls shall be closed: Provided, however, That if no judge shall attend at the hour of eight in the morning, and it shall be necessary for the electors present to appoint judges to conduct the election, as hereinbefore prescribed, the election may, in that case, commence at any hour before the time for closing the polls shall arrive, as the case may require; And provided also, That the judges of the election may, if they shall deem it necessary, for the purpose of receiving the votes of all the electors wishing to vote, postpone the closing of the polls until twelve o'clock at night. And upon opening the polls, one of the clerks, under the direction of the judges, shall make proclamation of the same, and thirty minutes before the closing of the polls, proclamation shall be made in like manner that the polls will be closed in half an hour.

(15.) SEC. XV. Electors shall vote, by first announcing their own names to the judges and clerks of the election, and then the names of the persons for whom they wish to vote, and the clerk shall enter their names and votes accordingly: Provided, That a voter may vote by presenting an open ticket to the judges, containing the names of the persons for whom he votes, and the offices; and the said judges shall read the same to the voter, and the clerks, with the assent of the voter, set the same down in their books, as in other cases.

(16.) SEC. XVI. (38.) SEC. XXXVIII. And if any judge of election shall order to be received the vote of any person who, being challenged, shall not take the oath or affirmation prescribed by law, such judge of election, so offending, shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by action of debt, in the name of the State, or of any person suing therefor, the one-half of said fine for the use of the county, and the other half for the use of the person suing.

(43.) SEC. XLIII. The party whose election is contested, may select another justice of the peace to attend at the trial. Should the party whose election is contested, refuse or neglect to select a justice as aforesaid, the justice chosen by the person contesting the election as aforesaid, shall make such selection for him. The two justices so selected or chosen, shall make choice of a third justice; and if they cannot agree upon a third justice to act with them, they shall make such selection by lot; and the three justices thus selected, or either of them, shall have power, and they are hereby authorized and required, to issue subpoenas and such other process as may be necessary to secure the attendance at such trial, of all persons, whose testimony may be required by either party, in the same manner as is provided in other cases of proceedings before justices of the peace.

(44.) SEC. XLIV. The said justices, or any one of them, shall, in all such cases, have power to issue subpoenas for witnesses to any county in this State, directed to the sheriff of such county, who shall make service and return as in other cases. And any witness, duly subpoenaed, refusing or neglecting to appear and testify, shall, in addition to the penalties otherwise imposed by law, forfeit and pay a fine of fifty dollars, to be recovered by action of debt, in any court having cognizance thereof, one-half to the county, and one-half to the person suing for the same.

(45.) SEC. XLV. The said justices, or any one of them, may issue attachments for witnesses so neglecting or refusing to attend, who may be brought before them; and at any time before the day for the decision of the question between the contesting parties, the said justices shall, at the request of either, after giving notice to the other party of five days, if resident in their county, or ten days, if residing out of their county, proceed to take the testimony of such witnesses, to be used in the case.

(47.) SEC. XLVII. The said justices shall hear and examine all the evidence offered on either side. If the contest be respecting any county office, they shall decide which of the said candidates shall have been duly elected, and certify the same to the clerk of the county commissioners' court of the proper county, who shall thereupon make out and deliver to the successful party a certificate of his election. If such contest be respecting a seat in the senate or house of representatives of this State, the said justices shall hear and reduce to writing all the testimony taken in the case, and certify and transmit the same under seal, together with all other papers and documents pertaining to the case, to the speaker of the senate or house of representatives, as the case may be.

(48.) SEC. XLVIII. No testimony shall be heard by the said justices on the part of the person contesting the election, which does not relate to the points specified in the notice. Such justices shall have power to appoint a clerk, and may adjourn from day to day, until their duties shall be completed. They shall have the same power to preserve order, and to punish disorders and contempts, as justices of the peace may exercise when holding courts.

(49.) SEC. XLIX. In all contests for county offices, in which the justices hearing the case are authorized to decide, they shall enter judgment on the docket of the justice last chosen, for all the costs of such contest, against the unsuccessful party, upon which execution may issue as in other cases. Either party may appeal from the decision of such justices to the circuit court, as in other cases of appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, the decision of which court shall be final.

(50.) SEC. L. In all contests other than for county offices, the proceedings for taking testimony hereinbefore provided, may be had in each county in which it is necessary to take testimony, and the like returns shall in each case be made. In those cases in which the justices examining, do not decide the contest, they shall not be compelled to certify or transmit the testimony and documents pertaining to the case, until the reasonable costs of the examination and of certifying the same, are tendered or paid; and the party who is finally unsuccessful shall be liable for such costs, to the person who shall have paid the same. But if neither party shall require or cause such testimony and documents to be transmitted, then judgment may be entered and execution had, as before provided, against the party at whose instance such examination was instituted.

Elections by joint vote of the two houses shall be made in the hall of the house of representatives, at such time as shall have been previously appointed by joint resolution of the two houses; and at all such joint meetings, the speaker of the house of representatives shall preside. Elections of justices of the supreme court and judges of inferior courts shall be made by joint ballot of both houses, in the hall of the house of representatives, the speaker of which shall appoint a member of each house to act as tellers. Returns for clerks of the circuit court shall be made and canvassed as is now provided for other county officers.

(64.) SEC. X. At any and all elections held in this State, every white male citizen above the age of twenty-one years, having resided in this State one year next preceding any election, and every white male inhabitant of the age aforesaid, who was a resident of this State on the first day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight, shall be entitled to vote at any election; but no person shall be entitled to vote except in the precinct, place or township where a poll shall be held, in which he shall actually reside at the time of such election: Provided, That when any such person shall offer his vote, and either of the judges of the election shall suspect that such person is not a qualified voter, or if his vote shall be challenged by any elector, the judge of the election shall tender to such person the following oath or affirmation:

"You do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be,) that you are a resident of this precinct, place or township; that you are a citizen of this State, and have resided herein one year preceding this election, or that you was an inhabitant of this State on the first day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight; that you are above the age of twenty-one years; and that you have not voted at this election: so help you God."

Every vote offered by any person who shall refuse to take the foregoing oath, shall be rejected.

(65.) SEC. XI. That the county court, or the board doing county business in each of the several counties in this State, at their first meeting in each and every year, shall cause a suitable number of blank forms of poll books and election returns to be made out (headed and certified as the case may be,) for each board of elections, in each precinct, township or place; which they shall cause to be delivered into the hands of the sheriffs respectively of said counties, whose duty it shall be to deliver them to the judges, or boards of election, at least ten days previous to the next election then to be held.

(66.) SEC. XII. Each qualified voter may vote once, and no more; and if any person shall attempt to vote more than once, or to hand in two or more tickets folded together, every person so offending shall be liable to indictment, and on conviction, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

(67.) SEC. XIII. Every ticket handed in shall contain the name of every candidate such voter intends voting for, either in writing or print, designating the office to which he wishes each to be elected: and if more persons are designated for any office than there are candidates to be elected, such part of the ticket shall not be counted for either of them, but no vote shall be rejected for the want of form, if the judges or board of election can determine therefrom, to their satisfaction, the person voted for, and the office which the voter intended such person should fill.

(68.) SEC. XIV. That the county court, or board doing business, shall provide a sufficient number of ballot-boxes at the expense of the county, for the several boards or judges of election, to be kept by one of the judges or board, and to be delivered over to the successors of such judges or board, each of which said ballot-boxes shall be furnished with a sufficient lock and key; and before any ballot shall have been deposited therein, the same shall be publicly opened and exhibited, to the end that the judges and clerks assisting at every election may see that no ballot is in said box; after which, the same shall be locked and the key delivered over to one of the judges or board of election, and shall not be opened during the said election, except in the manner and for the purposes herein provided. An opening shall be made in the top or lid of each of such ballot-boxes, not larger than shall be sufficient to admit a single closed ballot to be inserted therein at one time, through which each ballot received shall be inserted.

(69.) SEC. XV. The method of voting shall be by ballot, which ballot shall be folded by the voter and delivered to one of the judges or board of election, who shall, without unfolding or opening the same in any manner, deposit the said ballot in the said ballot-box: Provided, That no ballot shall be received or counted unless the same is written or printed upon white paper, without any marks or figures thereon, intended to distinguish one ballot from another.

(70.) SEC. XVI. Each clerk of the election shall keep a poll list, which shall contain one column, headed "names of voters." The name of each elector voting shall be entered by each clerk in regular succession under the said heading in his poll list. At each adjournment of the polls, and upon the final closing of the same, the clerks shall, in the presence of the judges or board of election, compare their respective poll lists, and correct all mistakes that may be discovered according to the decisions of the judges or board of election, until such poll lists shall be made to correspond in all respects; the ballot-box shall then be opened and the said poll lists placed therein; the box shall then again be locked, and the seal of one or more of the judges shall be so placed thereon as entirely to cover the opening in the lid or top of said box: the key of said box shall then be delivered to one of the judges or board of election, and the box to another; the judge having the key shall keep the same in his own possession, and deliver it again to the board at the next opening of the poll; the judge having the box shall carefully keep it, without opening it or permitting it to be opened, or the seal thereof to be broken or removed, and shall publicly deliver it in that condition to the board at the next opening of the polls.

(71.) SEC. XVII. As soon as the polls at any election shall have finally closed, the judges or board and clerks, may adjourn the counting and canvassing of the votes to some convenient hour of the next ensuing day, at which time they shall proceed to canvass the votes polled, by first counting the whole number of ballots in the box; if the ballots shall be found to exceed the number of names entered on each of the poll lists, they shall be replaced in the box, and one of the judges shall publicly draw out and destroy so many ballots unopened as shall be equal to such excess, and the ballots or poll lists agreeing, or being made to agree, the board shall proceed to count and estimate and publish the votes.

(72.) SEC. XVIII. As the judges or board of election shall open and read the tickets, each clerk shall carefully mark down the votes each candidate shall receive, in separate columns prepared for that purpose, with the name of such candidate at the head of such column, and the office or place it is designed by the voters such candidate shall fill; but if, on such canvassing, two tickets shall be found deceitfully folded together, they shall both be rejected as if the same had never been deposited in the ballot-box.

(73.) SEC. XIX. As soon as all the votes shall have been read off and counted, the judges or board of election shall make out a certificate under their hands, stating the number of votes each candidate received, designating the office for which such person received such vote or votes, as is prescribed and directed by the twenty-third section of the thirty-seventh chapter of the Revised Statutes, entitled "ELECTIONS;" and the said certificate, together with one of the lists of voters, and one of the tally papers, shall be put into the hands of one of the judges or board of election, who shall, within four days thereafter, deliver the same to the clerk of the county court, or his deputy, at the county seat or place of holding county courts; and when received, such clerk or deputy shall proceed to open, canvass and publish the return from each precinct, township or place, as is now provided by law.

(74.) SEC. XX. If any judge or the judges of any election shall refuse to receive the vote of any qualified elector, who shall take or offer to take the oath prescribed by this act, in such case every judge so refusing or neglecting to receive the vote or ballot, or opening or unfolding such ballot when the same shall be presented, shall be liable to be indicted, and on conviction, shall be fined five hundred dollars, and imprisoned not exceeding thirty days; and for every refusal or neglect to receive such vote, the party aggrieved may have an action on the case against the said judge or judges; the damages in such case shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars.

(75.) SEC. XXI. Sections one, six, fifteen, sixteen, eighteen, twenty-four and thirty-nine, of chapter thirty-seven, of the Revised Statutes, entitled "ELECTIONS," approved March 3rd, 1845, shall be and the same are hereby repealed; and such sections of said act as are not herein repealed, shall remain in full force and effect.

(76.) SEC. XXII. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

DECISIONS. The proclamation of the governor declaring who is elected to Congress, is prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. Lorton v. Gilliam et al., 1 S. 577.

Under the statute of this State, every white male inhabitant of the age of twenty-one years, who has resided in the State six months immediately preceding any general election, is entitled to vote at such election, and the judges of election are compelled to receive his vote. Under the existing laws, the judges of election have no right to investigate the question, whether the person offering his vote is an unnaturalized foreigner or a citizen. If such person takes the oath prescribed by law, the judges must receive his vote, unless the oath be proved false. The judges of election cannot inquire whether the person offering to vote is an inhabitant, and entitled to vote, within the meaning of that word in the constitution. Every man is a resident who has taken up his permanent abode in the State. When the judge of election allows a person to vote, whose right he suspects, or whose right is challenged, without tendering the oath prescribed by law, he violates his duty. He does not subject himself to the penalty for receiving an illegal vote, by permitting an alien to vote, who is a free white male inhabitant of the age of twenty-one years, who has resided in the State six months immediately preceding an election, and is a resident of the county where he votes. See the opinion of Justice Smith in this case. Spraggins v. Houghton, 2 S. 377.

The "Act to prohibit betting on elections," applies only to elections held in this State, and not to those held in other States. A bet or wager between two citizens of this State upon the majority which would be obtained at a presidential election in the State of Kentucky, is not illegal, and an action can be maintained by the winner to recover the amount of the bet. Morgan v. Pettit, 3 S. 529. See also, Adams v. Woldridge, 3 S. 255, and Williams v. Smith, 3 S. 524.

The proper mode of recovering a penalty from a person for voting illegally, is by action of debt. Cable v. The People, 12 Ill. 285.

SEC. II. When the attorney general or any circuit attorney shall be informed, or have reason to believe, that any real estate within his district hath escheated to the State, by reason that any person hath died seized thereof, without devising the same, and leaving no heir capable of inheriting the same, or by reason of the incapacity of the devisee to hold the same, and such estate shall not have been sold according to law, within five years after the death of the person last seized, for the payment of the debts of the deceased; or when he shall be informed, or has cause to believe, that any such estate within his district hath otherwise escheated to the State, it shall be his duty to file an information in behalf of the State, in the circuit court of the county in which such estate is situate, setting forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last lawfully seized, the names of the terre tenants and persons claiming such estate, if known, and the facts and circumstances in consequence of which such estate is claimed to have escheated, and alleging that, by reason thereof, the State of Illinois hath right by law to such estate: Whereupon such court shall award and issue a scire facias against such person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, as shall be alleged in such information to hold, possess or claim such estate, requiring them to appear and show cause why such estate should not be vested in the State, at the next term of such court, which scire facias shall be served at least fifteen days before the return day thereof; and the court shall, moreover, make an order, setting forth briefly the contents of such information, and requiring all persons interested in the estate to appear and show cause, if any they have, at the next term of the said court, why the same should not be vested in the State, which order shall be published for six weeks, successively, in some newspaper printed in the State, and in or nearest to the county in which such proceeding is had; the last insertion to be at least two weeks before the commencement of the term at which the parties are required to appear.

SEC. III. All persons, bodies politic and corporate, named in such information as terre tenants or claimants to the estate, may appear and plead to such proceedings, and may traverse or deny the facts stated in the information, the title of the State to the lands and tenements therein mentioned, at any time, on or before the third day of the return of such scire facias; and any other person claiming an interest in such estate, may appear and be made a defendant, and plead as aforesaid, by motion for that purpose in open court, within the time allowed for pleading as aforesaid; and if no person shall appear and plead, or appearing, shall refuse to plead within the time, then judgment shall be rendered that the State be seized of the lands and tenements in such information claimed; but if any person shall appear, and deny the title set up by the State, or traverse any material facts in the information, an issue or issues shall be made up and tried, as other issues of fact, and a survey may be ordered and entered as in other actions where the title or boundary of lands is drawn in question; and if, after the issues are tried, it shall appear from the facts found or admitted, that the State hath good title to the lands and tenements in the information mentioned, or any part thereof, judgment shall be rendered, that the State be seized thereof, and recover costs of suit against the defendant.

SEC. IV. When any judgment shall be rendered, that the State be seized of any land, tenements and hereditaments, such judgment shall contain a certain description of such estate, and shall be effectual for vesting the title in the State; and a writ shall be issued, directed to the sheriff of the same county, commanding him to seize and take the lands, tenements and hereditaments so vested in the State, into his hands; and upon the return of such writ of seizure, the attorney general or circuit attorney prosecuting such information, shall cause the record and process to be exemplified under the seal of the court, and deposit the same in the office of the auditor of public accounts, and shall also cause a transcript of the judgment to be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the land lies; and such judgment shall preclude all parties and privies thereto, their heirs and assigns, so long as such judgment shall remain in force.

SEC. V. Any party who shall have appeared to any proceeding as aforesaid, and the attorney general or circuit attorney, on behalf of the State, shall respectively have the same right to prosecute an appeal or writ of error upon any judgment as aforesaid, as parties in other cases.

SEC. VI. The auditor of public accounts shall keep just and true accounts of all moneys paid into the treasury, and of all lands vested in the State as aforesaid; and if any person shall appear within ten years after the death of the intestate, and claim any money paid into the treasury as aforesaid, as heir or legal representative, such person may file a petition to the circuit court, as a court of chancery for the county in which the seat of government may be, stating the nature of his claim, and praying such money may be paid to him; a copy of which petition shall be served upon the attorney general, who shall put in an answer to the same, and the court shall thereupon examine the said claim, and the allegations and proofs, and if it shall find that such person is entitled to any money paid into the treasury, such court shall, by an order, direct the auditor of public accounts to issue his warrant on the treasurer for the payment of the same, but without interest or costs; a copy of which order, under the seal of the court, shall be a sufficient voucher for the issuing such warrant. And if any person shall appear and claim any lands vested in the State as aforesaid, within five years after the judgment was rendered, it shall be lawful for such person (other than such as were served with a scire facias, or appeared to the proceeding, their heirs or assigns,) to file a petition in the circuit court, (as a court of chancery,) of the county in which the lands claimed lie, setting forth the nature of his claim, and praying that the said lands may be relinquished to him; a copy of which petition shall be served on the attorney general or circuit attorney of the district, who shall put in an answer, and the court thereupon shall examine said claim, and the allegations and proofs; and if it shall appear that such person is entitled to the lands claimed, the court shall decree accordingly, which shall be effectual for divesting the interest of the State in or to the lands; but no costs shall be adjudged against the State; and all persons who shall fail to appear and file their petitions within the times limited aforesaid, shall be forever barred; saving, however, to infants, married women and persons of unsound mind, or persons beyond the limits of the United States, the right to appear and file their petitions as aforesaid, at any time within five years after their respective disabilities are removed: Provided, however, That the General Assembly may cause such lands to be sold at any time after seizure, in such manner as may be provided by law. In which case the claimants shall be entitled to the proceeds, in lieu of the land, upon obtaining a decree or order as aforesaid.

(1.) SECTION I. Every person who shall take up any estray horse, mare, colt, mule or ass, after having given not less than ten nor more than fifteen days' notice, by posting up notices in three of the most public places in the justice's district in which he resides, shall take the same before some justice of the peace of the county where such estray shall be taken up, and make oath before such justice that the same was taken up at his or her plantation or place of residence in said county, and that the marks or brands have not been altered since the taking up.

(2.) SEC. II. The said justice shall then issue his warrant to three disinterested housekeepers in the neighborhood, unless they can otherwise be had, causing them to come before him to appraise said estray, after they, or any two of them, being sworn to appraise such estray, without partiality, favor or affection; which appraisement, together with the marks, brands, stature, color and age of such horse, mare or colt, mule or ass, shall be entered in a book to be kept by such justice, and certified under his hand, and transmitted to the clerk of the county commissioners' court of such county, within fifteen days after the same is taken up.

(3.) SEC. III. Any person who shall take up any head of neat cattle, sheep, hog or goat, after having given the notice required in section one of this chapter, shall go with some householder before a justice of the peace of the county, and make oath before him as is required in taking up an estray horse, mare or colt, mule or ass, and then such justice shall take from such housekeeper, upon oath, a particular description of the marks, brands, color and age of every such neat cattle, sheep, hog or goat, and said justice shall cause the said estrays to be appraised, in like manner as is required to be done in case of a horse, mare or colt, mule or ass; which description and valuation shall be entered by such justice in a book to be kept by him as aforesaid, and by such justice transmitted to the clerk of the county commissioners' court of the county, to be by him kept as before directed: Provided, That in all cases where the value of such neat cattle, sheep, goat or hog, does not exceed five dollars, said justice shall not be required to make a return to the clerk as aforesaid, but shall enter in his estray book the description and appraisement value of such sheep, hog or goat, and advertise the same in three of the most public places in his neighborhood.

(4.) SEC. IV. Every such clerk shall cause a copy of such description and valuation of every neat cattle, sheep, hog and goat returned to him, to be publicly affixed at the court-house door of his county, within five days after the same shall be transmitted to him as aforesaid, for which he shall receive the same fee as for entering the same in a book.

(5.) SEC. V. If two or more estrays of the same species are taken up by the same person, at the same time, they shall be included in one entry and one advertisement, and in such case, such justice and clerk shall receive no more pay than for one of such species.

(6.) SEC. VI. No person shall be allowed hereafter to take up and post any head of neat cattle, sheep, hog or goat, between the month of April and the first day of November, unless the same may be found in the lawful fence or inclosure of the taker up, having broken in the same; and for a reward of taking up, there shall be paid by the owner one dollar for every horse, mare or colt, mule or ass; and for every head of neat cattle, fifty cents; and for every hog, sheep or goat, twenty-five cents, together with all reasonable charges.

(9.) SEC. IX. It shall not be lawful for persons taking up estrays, to use the same previous to advertising them, unless it be to milk cows, and the like, for the benefit and preservation of such animals.

(10.) SEC. X. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the county commissioners' court, when the description and valuation of any estray horse, mare or colt, mule or ass, shall be transmitted to him by the justice as aforesaid, and in ten days thereafter make out a copy thereof, and transmit the same to the public printer of the State, and indorse thereon, "Estray papers," together with the sum of one dollar, to pay the said printer; which sum the taker up is required to deposit with the clerk prior to the expiration of said ten days. It shall be the duty of the public printer to publish said advertisement, and transmit one copy of each number of his paper to each of the clerks of the county commissioners' courts of the several counties of this State, free of charge, which shall be regularly filed by said clerks in their respective offices, for the examination of those who may desire it.

(11.) SEC. XI. And if no owner appear and prove his property within one year after such publication, the property shall be vested in the taker up; nevertheless, the former owner may, at any time thereafter, by proving his property, recover the valuation money, upon payment of costs and all reasonable charges.

(12.) SEC. XII. And if any person shall trade, sell, or take away any such estray or estrays out of the State, for any purpose whatever, before the expiration of said one year, he or she so offending, shall be liable to indictment in the circuit court of the proper county, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined in a sum double the value of the property, one-half to the owner thereof, and the other half to the county treasury; and when the owner of any estray head of neat cattle, sheep, hog or goat, does not prove his property within twelve months after the same has been published at the door of the court-house as aforesaid, and when the valuation does not exceed five dollars, the property shall be vested in the taker up; but when the valuation shall exceed five dollars, and no owner appear within the time aforesaid, the property shall also be vested in the taker up; nevertheless, the former owner may, at any time, by proving his property, recover the valuation thereof, upon payment of all reasonable costs and charges; and if the taker up and owner cannot agree upon the charges, they shall call upon three disinterested householders, whose decision shall be binding on both parties; and it shall not be lawful for any person to take up any estray, (except such as shall be hereinafter excepted,) unless he shall be a freeholder or a housekeeper.

(13.) SEC. XIII. Any person finding a stray horse, mare, colt, mule or ass, running at large without any of the settlements of this State, may take up the same, and shall immediately take such estray or estrays before the nearest justice of the peace, and make oath that he has not altered the marks or brands of such estray, since taking up; and if such taker up shall be a freeholder or housekeeper within that county, it may and shall be lawful for him to post such estray or estrays as hereinbefore directed in this chapter, as if the same had been taken up on his plantation or place of residence; and when the taker up shall not be qualified as aforesaid, he shall take the oath before required, and deliver such estray or estrays to the said justice, who shall cause the same to be dealt with as directed by this chapter.

(14.) SEC. XIV. If no owner appear to prove his property within one year, such estray or estrays shall be sold to the highest bidder, giving public notice of such sale twenty days previous thereto, the purchaser giving a bond and approved security, payable to the county commissioners' court of the county where such estray shall be taken up; and after paying the taker up all reasonable charges, the balance shall be put into the county treasury by the said justice, who shall take a receipt for the same from the county treasurer; nevertheless, the former owner, at any time within two years after taking up, by proving his property before the clerk of the county commissioners' court of said county, or before the justice of the peace before whom the property was taken up, and obtaining a certificate thereof from the clerk of said court or justice of the peace, to the treasurer, shall receive the balance aforesaid.

(15.) SEC. XV. And when any justice of the peace shall fail to pay any money for any estray or estrays to be sold agreeably to this chapter, into the county treasury, within three months after selling such estray or estrays, such justice shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars, with costs, to be recovered by action of debt, before any justice of the peace of the county, or other court having jurisdiction thereof, the one-half for the use of the county, and the other half for the use of any person suing for the same; and moreover, be liable to pay the price of such estray or estrays, with interest thereon.

(16.) SEC. XVI. If any estray or estrays, taken up as aforesaid, shall die or get away before the owner shall claim his or her right, the taker up shall not be liable for the same; and if any person shall take up any estray or estrays, at any other place within the inhabited parts of this State than his or her plantation or place of residence, or without being qualified as required by this chapter, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars, with costs, recoverable before any justice of the peace of the county where the offense shall have been committed, and not having property sufficient to pay such fine, he shall be liable to be confined one month in the jail of the county where he may be found, being found guilty of such offense according to law; and any person taking up any estray or estrays out of the limits of the settlements of this State, and failing to comply with the requisitions of this chapter, shall be liable to the same penalties; and if any person, taking up any estray or estrays of any species, fail to comply with the requisitions of this chapter, he shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay to the informer, the sum of ten dollars with costs, recoverable before any justice of the county where such offense shall be committed; one-half to the use of the county, and the other half to the use of the person suing for the same.

(17.) SEC. XVII. If any person or persons shall hereafter stop or take up any keel or flat boat, ferry flat, batteau, piroguo, canoe, or other vessel or water craft, or raft of timber, or plank, found adrift on any water course within the limits or upon the borders of this State, and the same shall be of the value of five dollars or upwards, it shall be the duty of such person or persons, within five days thereafter, (provided the same shall not before that time be proven and restored to the owner,) to go before some justice of the peace of the proper county, and make affidavit in writing, setting forth the exact description of such vessel or craft, when and where the same was found, whether any, and if so, what cargo was found on board, and that the same has not been altered or defaced, either in whole or in part, since the taking up, either by him, her or them, or by any other person or persons, to his, her or their knowledge; and the said justice shall thereupon issue his warrant, directed to some constable of his county, commanding him forthwith to summon three respectable householders of the neighborhood, if they cannot otherwise be had, whose duty it shall be, after being sworn by said justice, to proceed without delay to examine and appraise such boat or vessel, and cargo, if any, and make report thereof, under their hands and seals, to the justice issuing such warrant, who shall enter such appraisal, together with the affidavit of the taker up, at large in his estray book; and it shall be the further duty of said justice, within ten days after the said proceedings shall have been entered in his estray book, to transmit a certified copy thereof to the clerk of the county commissioners' court of his county, to be by him recorded in his estray book, and filed in his office.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. In all cases where the appraisal of such boat or water craft, including her cargo, shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the taker up shall advertise the same on the door of the court-house, and in three of the most public places in the county, within ten days after the justice's said certificate shall have been entered on the records of the county commissioners' court; and if no person shall appear to prove and claim such boat or water craft, within six months from the time of taking up as aforesaid, the property in the same shall vest in the taker up; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of twenty dollars, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the county commissioners' court, within twenty days from the time of the reception of the justice's said certificate at his office, to cause an advertisement to be set up on the door of the court-house, and also a notice thereof to be sent to the public printer as aforesaid, who shall publish the same as aforesaid; and if the said vessel be not claimed and proven within six months from said advertisement, the same shall be vested in the taker up; nevertheless, the former owner may, at any time thereafter, recover the valuation money by proving his property, and allowing to the taker up a reasonable compensation for his trouble, and costs and charges.

(19.) SEC. XIX. In all cases, where services shall be performed by any officers or other person or persons under this chapter, the following fees or compensation shall be allowed, to wit: To the justice of the peace for administering oath to the taker up or finder, making an entry thereof, with the report of the appraisers, and making and transmitting a certificate thereof to the clerk of the county commissioners' court, fifty cents; to the clerk or justice for taking proof of the ownership of, and granting a certificate of the same, twenty-five cents; for registering each certificate transmitted to him by any justice as aforesaid, twelve and a half cents; for advertisements, including the newspaper publications, fifty cents in addition to the cost of such publication; to the constable for each warrant so served on appraisers, twenty-five cents; and to each appraiser the sum of twenty-five cents; which said fees shall be paid by the taker up to the person entitled thereto, whenever said services shall be rendered. All which costs and charges shall be reimbursed to the taker up or finder, in all cases where restitution of the property shall be made to the owner, in addition to the reward to which such person may be entitled for taking up as aforesaid.

(20.) SEC. XX. If any person shall act contrary to the duties enjoined by this chapter, for which no penalty is hereinbefore pointed out, the person so offending shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay for every such offense, not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars, to be sued for in the name of the proper county, before any justice of the peace or other court having cognizance thereof.

The printed statute books of the United States, of this State, and of the several States, of the territories and late territories of the United States, printed under the authority of said States and territories, shall be evidence in all courts and places in this State, of the acts therein contained.

(2.) SEC. II. The books of reports of decisions of the supreme court and other courts of the United States, of this State, and of the several States and the territories thereof, published by authority of such courts, may be read as evidence of the decisions of such courts.

(3.) SEC. III. Copies of the proceedings and judgments before justices of the peace, certified by the justice or justices, under his or their hands and seals, before whom such proceeding or judgment is had, shall be received as evidence of such proceeding or judgment. Where such certified copy is to be used as evidence in any county other than that in which the justice or justices so certifying shall reside, the same shall not be received as evidence, unless a certificate from the clerk of the county commissioners' court, (with the seal of the court,) shall be annexed thereto, certifying that on the day on which such proceeding was had, or judgment rendered, such justice so granting the same, was a justice of the peace, duly commissioned and sworn.

(4.) SEC. IV. The official certificate of any register or receiver of any land office of the United States, to any fact or matter on record in his office, shall be received in evidence in any court in this State, and shall be competent to prove the fact so certified. The certificate of any such register, of the entry or purchase of any tract of land within his district, shall be deemed and taken to be evidence of title in the party who made such entry or purchase, or his heirs or assigns, and shall enable such party, his heirs or assigns, to recover the possession of the land described in such certificate, in any action of ejectment or forcible entry and detainer, unless a better legal and paramount title be exhibited for the same.

(5.) SEC. V. A patent for land shall be deemed and considered a better legal and paramount title in the patentee, his heirs or assigns, than the official certificate of any register of a land office of the United States, of the entry or purchase of the same land.

(6.) SEC. VI. An exemplification by the secretary of this State, of the laws of the other States and territories which have been, or shall hereafter be, transmitted by order of the executive or legislatures of such other States or territories, to the governor of this State, and by him deposited in the office of said secretary, shall be admissible as evidence in any court of this State.

(7.) SEC. VII. In trials of actions upon contracts, express or implied, where the action is brought by partners, or by joint payees or obligees, it shall not be necessary for the plaintiff, in order to maintain any such action, to prove the co-partnership of the individuals named in such action, or to prove the christian or surnames of such partners, or joint payees or obligees; but the names of such co-partners, joint payees or obligees shall be presumed to be truly set forth in the declaration, petition or bill: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the defendant in any such action from pleading in abatement as heretofore, or of proving on the trial either that more persons ought to have been plaintiffs, or that more persons have been made plaintiffs than have a legal right to sue, or that the christian or surname is other and different from the one stated in the declaration, petition or bill, in which event the defendant's rights shall be as at common law.

(8.) SEC. VIII. In actions upon contracts, express or implied, against two or more defendants, alleged to have been made or executed by such defendants, as partners or joint obligors or payors, proof of the joint liability or partnership of the defendants, or their christian or surnames, shall not, in the first instance, be required to entitle the plaintiff to judgment, unless such proof shall be rendered necessary by pleading in abatement, or the filing of pleas denying the execution of such writing, verified by affidavit, as required by law.

(9.) SEC. IX. Copies of all papers, books or proceedings, or parts thereof, appertaining to transactions in their corporate capacity; of any town or city heretofore incorporated, or now incorporated, or that may hereafter be incorporated, under a general or special law of this State, certified to be true copies by the clerk, or the keeper of the same, under the seal of said town or city, or under the private seal of said clerk or keeper, if there be no public seal; the said clerk or keeper also certifying that he is intrusted with the safe-keeping of the originals, of which he gives certified copies, shall be received as prima facie evidence of the facts so certified, in all the courts of this State, in any suit or proceeding pending before them.

(10.) SEC. X. When the testimony of any non-resident witness or witnesses shall be necessary in any civil cause depending in any court of law or equity in this State, it shall be lawful for the party wishing to use the same, on giving to the adverse party, or his attorney, ten days' previous notice, together with a copy of the interrogatories intended to be put to such witness or witnesses, to sue out from the proper clerk's office a dedimus potestatem or commission, under the seal of the court, directed to any number of persons, not exceeding three, as commissioners, or to any judge or justice of the peace of the county or city in which such witnesses may reside, authorizing and requiring him or them to cause such witness or witnesses to come before him or them, at such time and place as he or they may designate and appoint, and faithfully to take his, her or their deposition or depositions, upon all such interrogatories as may be inclosed with or attached to said commission, both on the part of the plaintiff and defendant, and none others; and to certify the same when thus taken, together with the said commission and interrogatories, into the court in which such cause shall be depending, with the least possible delay.

(11.) SEC. XI. When the testimony of any resident witness or witnesses shall be necessary in any suit in chancery in this State, it shall be lawful for the party wishing to use the same, to cause the deposition or depositions of such witness or witnesses to be taken before any justice of the peace, or clerk of the circuit or county commissioners' court of the county wherein such witness or witnesses shall reside, without being required to sue out a commission, or to file interrogatories for such purpose, on giving to the adverse party or his attorney reasonable notice of the time and place of taking the same. And it shall also be lawful, upon satisfactory affidavit being filed, to take the depositions of witnesses residing in this State, to be read in suits at law, in like manner as is above provided, in all cases where such witness or witnesses shall reside in a different county from that in which the court shall be held: is or are about to depart from the State; is or are confined in jail on legal process; or is or are unable to attend such court on account of advanced age, sickness, or other bodily infirmity: Provided, That such reasonable notice shall be intended to mean at least ten days in all cases, and one day in addition thereto, (Sundays inclusive,) for every thirty miles' travel from the place of holding the court, to the place where such deposition or depositions shall be taken.

(12.) SEC. XII. Previous to the examination of any witness whose deposition is about to be taken as aforesaid, he or she shall be sworn (or affirmed) by the person or persons authorized to take the same, to testify the truth in relation to the matter in controversy, so far as he or she may be interrogated; whereupon the said commissioner or commissioners, judge, justice of the peace or clerk, (as the case may be,) shall proceed to examine such witness upon all such interrogatories as may be inclosed with or attached to any such commission as aforesaid, and which are directed to be put to such witness; or where no such commission shall be necessary, upon all such interrogatories as may be directed to be put by either party litigant; and shall cause such interrogatories, together with the answers of the witness thereto, to be reduced to writing in the order in which they shall be proposed and answered, and signed by such witness. After which, it shall be the duty of the person or persons taking such deposition, to annex at the foot thereof a certificate subscribed by himself or themselves, stating that it was sworn to and signed by the deponent, and the time and place, when and where the same was taken. And every such deposition, when thus taken and subscribed, and all exhibits produced to the said commissioner or commissioners, judge, justice of the peace or clerk as aforesaid, or which shall be proved or referred to by any witness, together with the commission and interrogatories, if any, shall be inclosed, sealed up and directed to the clerk of the court in which the action shall be pending, with the names of the parties litigant indorsed thereon: Provided, That when any deposition shall be taken as aforesaid, by any judge or justice of the peace out of this State, such return shall be accompanied by a certificate of his official character under the great seal of the State, or under the seal of the proper court of record of the county or city wherein such deposition shall be taken.

(13.) SEC. XIII. Every examination and deposition which shall be taken and returned according to the provisions of this chapter, may be read as good and competent evidence in the cause in which it shall be taken, as if such witness had been present and examined by parol in open court on the hearing or trial thereof.

(14.) SEC. XIV. Each and every commissioner or commissioners, judge, justice of the peace, or clerk of the circuit or county commissioners' court, who may at any time be required to take depositions in any cause pending in any of the courts of law or equity in this State, or by virtue of any commission issued out of any court of record in any other State or territory, shall have power and authority to issue subpoenas, if necessary, to compel the attendance of all such witnesses as shall be named in the commission, or by the parties litigant, where no commission is necessary, in the same manner and under the same penalties as is prescribed in other cases, where witnesses are directed to be subpoenaed.

(15.) SEC. XV. Every witness attending before any commissioner, judge, justice of the peace or clerk as aforesaid, to be examined as aforesaid, shall be entitled to a compensation for his time and attendance, and traveling expenses, at the same rate, for the time being, as is or shall be allowed by law to witnesses attending courts of record in this State; and the party requiring such examination shall pay the expenses thereof, but may, if successful in the suit, be allowed for the same in the taxation of costs.

(16.) SEC. XVI. The party, his attorney, or any person who shall in anywise be interested in the event of the suit, shall not be permitted to dictate, write or draw up any deposition or depositions which may at any time be taken under this chapter; and every deposition so dictated, written or drawn up, or that shall be returned to the court unsealed, or the seal of which shall be broken, shall be rejected by the court as informal and insufficient: Provided, Such seal shall have been broken previous to its reception by the clerk, to whom it shall be directed.

(17.) SEC. XVII. It shall not be lawful for any party litigant, or the clerk of the court into which any deposition may be returned as aforesaid, to break the seal of the same, either in term time, or in vacation, unless by permission of the court. And if any such person or clerk shall presume to open any such deposition when taken and returned as aforesaid, without such permission as aforesaid, he shall be considered guilty of a contempt of court, and may be punished accordingly: Provided, That it shall not be considered an offense for the clerk to break open any such deposition as aforesaid, where it is doubtful, from the indorsements made thereon, whether the same be a deposition or not; but in such case, it shall not be proper for such clerk to permit any person to examine any deposition which may be thus opened by mistake, until permission shall have been first given by the court as aforesaid.

(18.) SEC. XVIII. All depositions taken in pursuance of this chapter, when returned into court, may be read by either party, on the trial of the causes to which they relate.

(19.) SEC. XIX. In all cases hereafter, where any person or persons shall desire to perpetuate the remembrance of any fact, matter or thing, which may relate to the boundaries or improvements of land; name or former name of water courses; the name or former name of any portion or district of country; regarding the ancient customs, laws or usages of the inhabitants of this country, as far as the same may relate to the future settlement of the land claims; or touching the marriage or pedigree of any person or persons, or in relation to the title to slaves or servants; or any other matter or thing necessary to the security of any estate, real or personal, or mixed, or any private right whatever; it shall be lawful for such person or persons, upon filing a petition, supported by affidavit, in the circuit court of the proper county, setting forth particularly the fact or facts intended to be established, to sue out from such court a dedimus potestatem or commission, directed to any two justices of the peace, or to any clerk of the circuit or county commissioners' court of the county wherein such testimony is to be taken, and may, thereupon, proceed to take such deposition or depositions as shall be prayed for in said petition.

(20.) SEC. XX. It shall be the duty of the person or persons suing out such dedimus as aforesaid, before proceeding to take such deposition as aforesaid, to give at least four weeks' previous notice of the time and place when and where the same is to be taken, together with a copy of the petition annexed thereto, to each and every person who may be known to be interested in the subject matter of such deposition, or to his, her or their attorney; or in case the person be a feme covert, to her husband; or if a minor or minors, to his, her or their guardian or guardians; or if such guardian or guardians should be interested, to such guardian or guardians as shall be appointed by the court to defend the interests of such infant or infants; or in lieu of such written notice as aforesaid, such petitioner or petitioners shall cause a notice in form as aforesaid, with a copy of the petition thereto annexed as aforesaid, addressed to such persons as may be known to be interested as aforesaid, as well as to all others whom it may concern, to be published for four weeks successively in some public newspaper printed in this State, at least eight weeks previous to the day of taking such deposition or depositions.

(21.) SEC. XXI. The said justices of the peace or clerk as aforesaid, shall attend at the time and place appointed, where each and every person who may think himself or herself interested in the deposition about to be taken, may attend, by themselves or attorneys, and may examine and cross-examine such deponent or deponents; and all such questions as may be proposed, together with the answers thereto by the witness, shall be reduced to writing in the English language, or in the language of the witness, (provided he or she shall not understand English,) as near as possible, in the exact words of such deponent, which said questions and answers, when reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be distinctly read over to the witness: and if found to be correct, shall be signed by him or her, in the presence of the said justice, (or clerk, as the case may be,) who shall thereupon administer an oath or affirmation to such witness, as to the truth of the deposition so taken as aforesaid, and shall annex at the foot thereof a certificate subscribed by himself or themselves, stating that it was sworn to and signed by the deponent, and the time and place when and where the same was taken: and all such depositions, when thus taken, shall be carefully sealed up, and transmitted to the clerk of the circuit court of the county from which such dedimus shall have been issued, within thirty days from the time of taking the same; who shall thereupon enter the same at large upon the records in his office, and shall certify on the back of such deposition that the same has been duly recorded, and return it to the person or persons for whose benefit it shall have been taken.

(22.) SEC. XXII. All depositions taken in manner and form as is provided in the two foregoing sections, or a duly certified copy of the record of any such deposition, may, in case of the death of any such deponent, or in case of inability to give testimony, in consequence of his, her or their insanity or imbecility of mind or body, or where such witness shall be rendered incompetent by judgment of law, or in the event of his, her or their removal, so that their testimony cannot be obtained in the ordinary way on trial, be used as evidence in any case to which the same may relate: Provided, That nothing herein contained, shall be so construed as to prevent any legal exception being made and allowed to the reading of any such deposition in any trial at law or in equity, in which the same may be introduced as evidence.

(23.) SEC. XXIII. A negro, mulatto or Indian shall not be a witness in any court, or in any case, against a white person. A person having one-fourth part negro blood shall be adjudged a mulatto.

DECISIONS. After a change of venue is allowed, and before the record is removed, the affidavit to take the testimony of witnesses is properly made in the court where such record remains. Phelps v. Torney, Breese, 255.

A magistrate taking depositions, need not certify the time and place of caption. Idem. Under the law of 1819, a deed made by a sheriff on a sale of real estate on execution, is properly acknowledged in the court of the county where the land lies, and the sheriff resides. Fall et al. v. Goodtitle et al., Breese, 156.

A certificate of a land office register is not evidence without proof of its execution. Idem.

The obligors to an attachment forthcoming bond are estopped to deny the recitals in the bond. Crisman et al. v. Mathews, 1 S. 148.

Under the act of Jan. 10, 1827, the certificate of the register of the land office, in actions of ejectment, trespass, &c., of the entry and purchase of a tract of land, is equal in dignity to a patent. And where two patents have issued for the same land, the party holding the first certificate of purchase, has the better title, no matter which has the oldest patent. Bruner v. Manlove, 1 S. 156; McConnell v. Wilcox, 1 S. 344; Wilcox v. Kinzie, 3 S. 223.

The record and judgment of the trial of a right of property is conclusive as against parties and privies. Arnez v. Reible et al., 1 S. 340.

The law of Illinois, making a register's certificate of purchase evidence, is binding as well between a citizen of the United States and the United States, as between citizens. McConnell v. Wilcox, 1 S. 344.

N. B. This decision was reversed by the supreme court of the United States. 13 Pet. R. 498. A deposition written by an attorney of a party, cannot be read in evidence. King v. Dale, 1 S. 513.

Courts will judicially take notice of the boundaries of counties. Ross et al. v. Reddick, 1 S. 73. A register's certificate of any fact on record in his office is competent evidence. Idem. See also, Delaney v. Burnett, 4 G. 454.

When the county commissioners have employed a person to attend on a pauper, the county is liable for the services of such person, whether any record is made of such contract or not. County of Vermillion v. Knight, 1 S. 97.

The party rendering the service need not prove that the pauper was entitled to aid under the law. Idem.

A promise to pay for improvements made on lands, which are not at the time of the promise in the United States, but which have been entered and purchased by the person making the promise, is not binding. Roberts v. Garen, 1 S. 396.

When a party admits an affidavit for a continuance, he admits the facts stated therein, and cannot be permitted to disprove them. Willis v. The People, 1 S. 400.

The assignor of a promissory note is not a competent witness to prove the assignment. Stacy v. Baker, 1 S. 417.

A note is made payable to "Williams & Lander." The declaration states that it is payable to Shadrach Williams and Henry Lander. Under the act of March 2, 1839, it will be presumed that the plaintiffs are the payees of the note. Hollenback v. Williams et al., 1 S. 544. See also, Vance et al. v. Funk et al., 2 S. 264; Salisbury et al. v. Gillett et al., 2 S. 290.

The governor's proclamation, in the State paper, declaring who is elected to Congress, is evidence of that fact prima facie. Lorton v. Gilliam et al., 1 S. 577.

An indorsement of the firm name of parties on the back of the deposition, is a compliance with the requisitions of the statute. Forsyth v. Baxter, 2 S. 10.

When depositions are taken by a justice of the peace in his official character, such official character must be certified by and under the seal of some court, or under the great seal of the State where the same are taken. Wheeler v. Shields, 2 S. 348.

An indorser or assignor of a promissory note, who is a mere agent of the assignee, is a competent witness for the defendant to impeach the consideration of the note. Welster v. Vickers et al., 2 S. 295.

A partial failure of consideration cannot be given in evidence under a plea of a total failure. Sewain et al. v. Curwood, 2 S. 505.

It need not necessarily appear in the certificate to a deposition when the oath was administered; it will be presumed to have been done at the proper period. Bullance v. Underhill, 3 S. 453.

The certificate of the receiver of a land office is not evidence of title. Roper v. Clabaugh, 3 S. 167.

A deposition of a defendant in chancery will not be excluded on the hearing, merely because it was taken without leave of court. The court will judge whether the witness is competent on the hearing. Sproule et al. v. Samuel, 4 S. 136.

Courts will judicially take notice who are justices of the peace of the county where the court is sitting, and of their official acts. But when the official acts of a justice of a foreign county are offered in evidence, they should be accompanied by a certificate of the proper officer of his official character. Chambers v. The People, 4 S. 352; Livingston v. Kettle, 1 G. 116.

A notice to take depositions need not state the residence of the witnesses. Hays v. Borders, 1 G. 64.

Objections to depositions on account of their "generality," should be made before trial. Kimball v. Cook, 1 G. 424.

In a suit against two joint debtors, a notice of a commission to take depositions served on one, is insufficient: a deposition thus used cannot be used on the trial against both. McConnell v. Stettinius, 2 G. 707.

Where parties have made diligent search and inquiry for a recorded deed, and cannot find the same, a certified copy may be given in evidence. Bestor v. Powell et al., 2 G. 119; Marriner v. Saunders, 5 G. 113; Newson v. Luster, 13 Ill. 176.

In an action under the statute for cutting timber, parol evidence of title is sufficient, unless objected to at the time. Clay v. Boyer, 5 G. 506.

Interrogatories accompanying a commission to take depositions, need not be copied into the deposition; it will be sufficient if it appear that the interrogatories were proposed and duly answered, so that the court can see that it was fairly taken. Hawks v. Lands, 3 G. 227.

The orders of county commissioners in making settlements with collectors, are prima facie evidence only of the correctness of the statements, and not the adjudication of a court. Washington County v. Parlier, 5 G. 232.

It is competent to prove the publication of town ordinances by the production of the record, and proving by the clerk that copies were posted, without producing the copies. Taft v. Size, 5 G. 432.

The court will not presume the existence of any evidence other than what appears in the record. Idem.

If a party appears and cross-examines a witness, he thereby waives all objections to notice for taking depositions. County of Greene v. Bledsoe, 12 Ill. 271.

If the officer taking depositions states in the caption that the witnesses were sworn, it need not necessarily be repeated at the close of the deposition. Idem.

If one of several defendants pleads in abatement, denying the joint liability of said defendants, the plea may be verified by the affidavit of one of the defendants, and if sustained, will amount to a defense for all. Warren v. Chambers et al., 12 Ill. 127.

Where a subscribing witness is proved to be dead, or beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or on inquiry cannot be found; or where such witness' hand-writing cannot be proved, proof of the hand-writing of the grantor in a deed will be sufficient evidence of its execution. Newson v. Luster et al., 13 Ill. 175.

Where a dedimus requires a commissioner to take the deposition of Seymour Rank, and the commissioner takes the deposition of Seigmund Rank, the deposition cannot be used. Scholes et al. v. Ackerland et al., 13 Ill. 650.

Under the new constitution of this State, no bill can become a law unless it is passed by the vote of a majority of all the members of the General Assembly. Sprangler v. Jacoby, 14 Ill. 297.

The law published by the State printer is prima facie evidence that it was passed by a constitutional vote; but this evidence may be rebutted by the journals. Idem.

Deeds for lands lying without this State are not within the provisions of the recording acts. Their execution must be proved like the execution of any other written instrument. Sisk v. Woodbury, 15 Ill. 15.

A party having filed his bill in chancery may proceed to take depositions before answer is filed, and without any order of court; but at his own costs, in case their necessity should be obviated by the answer. Wiley v. Doyles, 15 Ill. 572.

Depositions taken after a bill filed, and which has been dismissed by the complainant, may be read upon the hearing of a bill subsequently filed between the same parties for the same cause of action. Idem.
